RE: State of Nevada Department of Motor Vehicles v. William Junge
NSC Case No. 49350

Dear Clerk:

I have just received the letter from the ACLU requesting a continuance in my case of Department of Motor Vehicles v. Junge. I do not know how the Court will treat the ACLU's last-minute request via letter.

This request by the ACLU puts me in a difficult situation. As the Court is well aware, the ACLU is not a party to this action; however, the Court has invited oral argument from the ACLU in this case. The ACLU's request is extremely last-minute; however, as a mother of two, I am quite aware that illness is not a planned activity. Of course, it is unfortunate that all three attorneys for the ACLU are ill at this point.

I will respectfully await the Court's decision and would like to be informed as soon as possible. I can be reached via cell phone at 702-250-4426 after 2:15 p.m. For some reason, if the airline ticket already purchased by the State for me to fly from Las Vegas is not transferable to a different date, we would ask that the State be compensated for such ticket by the ACLU (we will call the airline today). We would also request that if the matter is continued for oral argument, that the date be set out enough for me to make other calendaring and childcare arrangements.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

CATHERINE CORTEZ MASTO
