I. INTRODUCTION AND OVERVIEW OF RELIEF REQUESTED

This case challenges the District Court’s arbitrary decision to strike Plaintiffs’ jury demand while offering only an incomplete analysis of the issue. Even though the District Court had previously found that Plaintiffs’ claims for misrepresentation and fraud with respect to certain contracts survived summary judgment,¹ the Court surprisingly enforced the jury trial waiver provisions within those contracts.² Such an arrangement now unfairly requires Plaintiffs to essentially try their case twice—once before the District Court and once before the jury. And, under the scenario offered by Defendants, there may even be a third trial before the District Court following the jury trial.³ Certainly, such an arrangement does not promote judicial economy, nor does Nevada law require that allegations of fraud and misrepresentation relate directly to jury trial waiver provisions, as opposed to the contracts and written documents governing a transaction.⁴

Therefore, Plaintiffs seek this Court’s relief in clarifying that their allegations of misrepresentation and fraud which were sufficient to overcome summary judgment are also sufficient for allowing this Court to order, at a minimum, a jury trial on these allegations prior to the jury trial on the substance of the contracts and other documents.⁵

³ PA 4:849.

⁵ PA 4:804–805.

1 Additionally, Plaintiffs also seek relief from this Court on the issue of the District
2 Court's improperly-ordered bifurcation. The District Court relied upon inapposite case 3 law to bifurcate Plaintiffs' claims for supposed non-jury trial claims and jury trial 4 claims.⁶ But, the District Court failed to evaluate, or make any specific findings, 5 regarding the interrelation of the issues in the two anticipated trials, the prejudice to 6 Plaintiffs, the duplication of proceedings, or the jury's confusion.⁷ If this Court finds in 7 favor of Plaintiffs with regard to the first issue presented in this writ petition dealing with 8 the jury trial waivers, this second issue may be moot. However, even if the Court finds 9 that Plaintiffs are not entitled to a jury trial on all issues, the Court should, nevertheless, 10 allow an advisory jury with any outstanding issues to be decided by the District Court in 11 post-jury proceedings since the prospect of two or even three trials creates a prejudicial 12 situation for Plaintiffs. Plaintiffs would essentially have to prove their case more than 13 once due to the related nature of the claims and issues. Moreover, if this issue is not 14 resolved prior to trial through this original proceeding, Plaintiffs' potential appeal from a 15 final judgment would be an inadequate remedy to properly address both the jury trial 16 waiver and the bifurcations issues.⁸

17 Therefore, Plaintiffs request that this Court exercise its jurisdiction to entertain 18 Plaintiffs' writ petition and decide these two important areas of law in Plaintiffs' favor.
19 In deciding these issues of law, Plaintiffs request either a writ of mandamus or a writ of 20 prohibition to compel the District Court to allow a jury trial on all claims, even if the 21 jury's findings are advisory as to some issues.

26 motion to strike the jury demand on appeal, petitioners would have too difficult a burden to meet on appellate review.").

18 A. STANDARDS FOR REVIEWING THE RIGHT TO A JURY TRIAL.

19 Issues related to a party's constitutional right to a jury trial are reviewed de novo.⁹

20 B. STANDARDS FOR REVIEWING QUESTIONS OF LAW.

21 This Court reviews questions of law de novo.¹⁰ Statutory interpretation is a 22 question of law which this Court reviews de novo.¹¹ Although this Court generally 23 reviews petitions for extraordinary relief with an abuse of discretion standard, this Court 24 will still apply a de novo standard of review to questions of law and statutory 25 interpretation in writ petition proceedings.¹²

26 ⁹ Zamora v. Price, 213 P.3d 490, 492 (Nev. 2009) (citing Moldon v. Clark Cty., 188 P.3d 76, 79 (2008); Awada v. Shuffle Master, Inc., 123 Nev. 613, 618, 173 P.3d 707, 711 (2007)).

1 C. STANDARDS FOR REVIEWING PETITIONS FOR WRITS OF 2 MANDAMUS AND PROHIBITION.

3 This Court has jurisdiction to grant the requested relief pursuant to Article 6, 4 Section 4 of the Nevada Constitution: “[t]he court shall also have power to issue writs of 5 mandamus, certiorari, prohibition, quo warranto, and habeas corpus and also all writs 6 necessary or proper to the complete exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.” NRS 34.160 7 provides that “[t]he writ [of mandamus] may be issued by the Supreme Court . . . to 8 compel the performance of an act which the law especially enjoins as a duty resulting 9 from an office, trust or station . . .” For more than a century, this Court has interpreted 10 Nevada’s constitutional and statutory law to vest original jurisdiction in the Supreme 11 Court to issue writs of mandamus.¹³ Thus, this Court has the constitutional and statutory 12 authority to issue a writ of mandamus when, in the Court’s discretion, circumstances 13 warrant.

14 A writ of mandamus is available to compel the performance of an act which the 15 law requires as a duty resulting from an office, trust or station, or to control a manifest 16 abuse of discretion.¹⁴ An abuse of discretion occurs if the district court’s decision is 17 arbitrary and capricious or if it exceeds the bounds of law or reason.¹⁵ “Arbitrary and 18 capricious” is defined as a willful and unreasonable action without consideration or in 19 disregard of the facts or law, or without a determining principle.¹⁶ “Abuse of discretion”

1 is defined as the failure to exercise a sound, reasonable, and legal discretion.¹⁷ “Abuse of 2 discretion” is a strict legal term indicating that the appellate court is of the opinion that 3 there was a commission of an error of law by the trial court.¹⁸ It does not imply 4 intentional wrongdoing or bad faith, or misconduct, nor any reflection on the judge but 5 refers to the clearly erroneous conclusion and judgment—one that is clearly against 6 logic.¹⁹

7 A writ of prohibition is the appropriate remedy for a court’s improper exercise of 8 jurisdiction.²⁰ A writ of prohibition may issue to arrest the proceedings of a district court 9 exercising its judicial functions, when such proceedings are in excess of the jurisdiction 10 of the district court.²¹ “Jurisdictional rules go to the very power” of a court’s ability to 11 act.²² A court must know the limits of its own jurisdiction and stay within those limits.²³ 12 “A writ of prohibition will lie to prevent a district court from exceeding its 13 jurisdiction.”²⁴ Although an individual can appeal a final judgment, where there is no 14 legal remedy, extraordinary relief is justified.²⁵

1 Petitions for extraordinary writs are addressed to the sound discretion of the Court 2 and may only issue where there is no “plain, speedy, and adequate remedy” at law.²⁶
3 However, “each case must be individually examined, and where circumstances reveal 4 urgency or strong necessity, extraordinary relief may be granted.”²⁷ This Court will 5 exercise its discretion to consider writ petitions, despite the existence of an otherwise 6 adequate legal remedy, when an important issue of law needs clarification, and this 7 Court’s review would serve considerations of public policy, sound judicial economy, and 8 administration.²⁸

9 In the instant case, extraordinary relief is justified for two main reasons. First, this 10 petition presents the Court with an opportunity to clarify an important issue of statewide 11 significance dealing with invalid jury trial waivers in the face of fraud and 12 misrepresentation in the inducement, especially when the District Court has concluded 13 that there is a factual issue precluding summary judgment with respect to such claims.
14 The resolution of this issue will provide guidance to similarly-situated litigants on 15 bifurcation issues as well. This Court previously held in Lowe Enterprises Residential 16 Partners, L.P. v. District Court that “the validity of contractual jury trial waivers is an 17 important issue of Nevada law that needs clarification, and public policy would be served 18 by our invocation of original jurisdiction.”²⁹ Notably, Lowe did not involve or 19 contemplate the facts of this case involving fraud and misrepresentation in the 1 inducement of the document containing the waiver. This Court has also exercised its 2 discretion to entertain issues involving the right to jury trial on the basis that the issue 3 impacts judicial economy and administration.³⁰

4 Second, the deprivation of Plaintiffs' constitutional right to a jury trial will be lost 5 if the case is permitted to go to trial under the current bifurcation (or possible trifurcation, 6 as proposed by Defendants).³¹ In Lowe, this Court also stated, "If petitioners had to wait 7 to challenge the district court's denial of their motion to strike the jury demand on appeal, 8 petitioners would have too difficult a burden to meet on appellate review."³² This case is 9 no different than Lowe in the sense that allowing the parties to proceed to trial would 10 require Plaintiffs, if aggrieved by the final judgment, to demonstrate that the result would 11 have been different. As this Court previously recognized in Lowe, many jurisdictions 12 address similar issues involving jury trial rights through original proceedings.³³ 13 Therefore, this Court should exercise its original jurisdiction and order briefing to resolve 14 these issues of public importance.

1 Nevada known as “ManhattanWest.”³⁴ ManhattanWest was designed and approved as a 2 mixed-use community featuring more than 600 condominium residences and 200,000 3 square feet of shops, restaurants, office, and hotel space that has come to a complete 4 standstill.³⁵ The claims in this case arise from a culmination of factors where the unusual 5 structure of the financing is at the center of the dispute.³⁶

6 A. GARY THARALDSON.

7 Gary Tharaldson (“Tharaldson”) formed entities such as Club Vista Financial 8 Services LLC (“CVFS”), a Nevada company; and Tharaldson Motels II, Inc. (“TM2I”), a 9 North Dakota corporation.³⁷ TM2I is an owner and operator of motel and lodging 10 properties. Tharaldson owns one hundred percent of the member interest in CVFS and a 11 minority interest in TM2I.³⁸

12 In 2006, Tharaldson decided to create a portfolio of quality real estate loans for the 13 production of income, to be held by CVFS. Part of this portfolio included a first lien on 14 ManhattanWest in the amount of $46 million, which was ultimately subordinated to the 15 $100 million Senior Construction Loan at issue in this case.³⁹

16 B. GARY THARALDSON AND BRAD SCOTT’S RELATIONSHIP.

17 Tharaldson began his business relationship with Brad Scott (“Scott”) in 1992 18 while Scott was employed by Bismarck National Bank in North Dakota.⁴⁰ During that

1 time, Scott arranged several loans to assist Tharaldson to finance acquisition or 2 construction of motel properties.⁴¹ In 2003, Scott founded his own company, Scott 3 Financial Corporation (“SFC”), a North Dakota corporation specializing in corporate 4 lending and lending services.⁴² SFC earns income through origination fees on the loans 5 and servicing fees equal to 0.5% of the loan balance.⁴³

6 Since SFC’s inception in 2003, Scott has continued to advise Tharaldson
7 concerning business and financial matters. Upon the encouragement of Scott, Tharaldson 8 and his entities exclusively relied on Scott and SFC as an investment broker and agent for 9 credit underwriting, due diligence, and feasibility analysis for the SFC loans to protect 10 Tharaldson’s legal and financial interests.⁴⁴ This seemingly trustworthy reliance resulted 11 in Tharaldson only investing in loans that Scott represented SFC had thoroughly 12 underwritten, investigated, and concluded were prudent credit risks based on the financial 13 merits of the underlying projects.⁴⁵ Scott regularly described his role as overseeing 14 Tharaldson’s lending division, and third parties perceived the same.⁴⁶

15 C. THE MANHATTANWEST PROJECT.

16 Tharaldson was introduced to ManhattanWest through his previous investment in 17 a related project, “Manhattan Project.”⁴⁷ The developer of the Manhattan Project was

Alexander Edelstein (“Edelstein”).⁴⁸ SFC, through Scott, made the investment recommendation on both projects, where ManhattanWest was recommended due to Tharaldson’s investment success of the original Manhattan Project.⁴⁹

D. THE FRAUDULENT INDUCEMENT.

Tharaldson’s decision to modify, extend, and subordinate the Prior Loan and Edelstein Loan for the ManhattanWest project, as provided in the Senior Loan Agreement and documents, was based upon the trust and confidence Tharaldson reposed in Scott and SFC.⁵⁰ The recommendations to Tharaldson were understood to be backed up by rigorous due diligence and assurances that the transaction was in the Plaintiffs’ best interest. These understandings were based from Tharaldson’s long-time business relationship with Scott.

SFC and Bank of Oklahoma (“BOK”) as lead lenders co-underwrote and were supposed to have performed all due diligence investigations on the Senior Loan Agreement (“SLA”) transaction.⁵¹ The material promises made to Tharaldson include:

(1) Plaintiffs would receive a pay down on the Prior Loans aggregating $10 million. These loans, as amended, would become a second position lien on the project.⁵²

(2) Fixed price construction agreement with a viable and reputable general contractor, which would deliver all required construction for approximately $79 million.⁵³

1 (3) $60 million in “lender approved” pre-sales and/or pre-leases secured before 2 vertical financing of the senior loan. This was to provide sources of repayment of the 3 senior loan.⁵⁴

4 (4) The May 2007 pro formas prepared by Edelstein and vetted by the 5 Defendants, before Tharaldson made any commitments on the senior loan, estimated total 6 acquisition, development, and construction costs to be $120 million. Total revenues 7 were projected at $154 million giving a net income of $34 million.⁵⁵

8 (5) Limited exposure on the guaranties to any excess of the senior loan balance 9 on any given day over the fair market value of all collateral for the senior loan.⁵⁶

10 Consistent with their prior course of dealing, Tharaldson relied upon the lending 11 experience and expertise of Scott and SFC to perform the underlying due diligence and 12 engage counsel to represent both SFC and Tharaldson in the proper administering of the 13 loan.⁵⁷ However, with respect to the foregoing material promises above, Defendants 14 omitted to identify that the Senior Loan transaction presented substantial conflicts of 15 interest and failed to disclose material information concerning the project and the Senior 16 Loan.

17 E. THE SENIOR LOAN.

18 In January 2008, the SLA was entered into by SFC, as lender, and Gemstone West 19 as borrower.⁵⁸ The loan consisted of two separate notes: A Senior Debt Construction

1 Note for $100,000,000 and a Senior Contingency Note for $10,000,000.⁵⁹ CVFS
2 provided $400,000 to the senior loan.⁶⁰ BOK committed to purchase a $24 million 3 participation in the loan. The purchase was made under the condition that BOK act as a 4 Co-Lead to SFC.⁶¹ As Co-Lead, BOK had a joint approval right over all advances under 5 the loan and any change in terms from what had been reflected in the Credit Display.
6 The finalization of the Senior Loan documents included Tharaldson's execution of the 7 Loan under the heading "acknowledgement of guarantor" and the Guaranty.⁶² Also in 8 connection with the SLA, TM2I executed the TM2I Guaranty, and CVFS executed the 9 CVFS Senior Participation Agreement.⁶³

10 F. THE MISREPRESENTATIONS AND OMISSION OF MATERIAL
11 INFORMATION.

12 In October 2007, SFC and Scott attached a pro forma to the Senior Loan 13 Agreement that now projected a net income of $10 million, rather than the $34 million 14 reflected in the pro forma that Scott and SFC had previously provided to Tharaldson.⁶⁴ 15 Scott and SFC had clear knowledge the net income decreased two-thirds of the amount 16 that had been represented to the Plaintiffs. This was evidenced by Defendants' initials on 17 the pro forma itself.⁶⁵ This material information was not disclosed to Plaintiffs which 1 caused them to continue to make additional pre-construction loans and ultimately execute 2 the Senior Loan documents.

3 The substantial deterioration in the projected financial viability of the project was 4 also not disclosed to Tharaldson.⁶⁶ Had he been apprised of this information, he never 5 would have agreed to the Senior Loan documents. Defendants also failed to disclose that 6 their underwriting of the senior loan relied solely on the guaranty and the TM2I 7 Guaranty, not on the financial viability of the project.⁶⁷ Instead, Tharaldson was misled 8 into believing that SFC, Scott, and BOK had found the Senior Loan to be credit worthy 9 on the basis of the merits and projected performance of the project.⁶⁸ This is another 10 omission which would have prevented Tharaldson from signing the Senior Loan 11 documents. In fact, Defendants orally told Tharaldson in October of 2008 (several 12 months after the Senior Loan Agreement was entered into) that their underwriting of the 13 loan had solely relied on the financial resources of the guarantors and not primarily on 14 financial viability as Tharaldson had understood.⁶⁹

15 G. FRAUD RELATING TO THE PRE-SALE CONDITION.

16 A condition to the funding of the Senior Loan was that $60 million in “lender 17 approved” pre-sales and/or preleases must have occurred.⁷⁰ The pre-sales provide an 18 assurance of true market interest in a project and a known source of revenue. Defendants 19 approved sales that were made to insiders, affiliates, or other persons or entities related to

1 Gemstone West Inc.⁷¹ These sales were used towards satisfaction of the pre-sales
2 condition, where $2.5 million were sales closely related to Gemstone, including but not 3 limited to family members. In addition, $17.5 million of the commercial pre-sales/ pre-4 leases were to Gemstone West affiliates including Gemstone Coffee House LLC; 5 Gemstone Development LLC; and Santa Rita Management Co., an entity owned by 6 Edelstein's father.⁷² This amount made up one-third of the supposedly "qualified" pre-7 sales.

8 It was not until after closing the Senior Loan, many of the related party 9 condominium sales and the $5.5 million office sale were cancelled.⁷³ The certification by 10 SFC that the pre-sale condition had been satisfied and Bank of Oklahoma's acceptance of 11 the certificate approving the advances under the Senior Loan were, therefore, fraudulent.

12 H. THE GUARANTIES.

13 The guaranties prepared by Defendants had an effect of negating protective 14 provisions of the Nevada Law. Defendants inserted a waiver of all statutory rights of a 15 guarantor under Nevada law, including the one action rule, the fair market defense, and 16 the jury trial waiver.⁷⁴ Defendants also did not disclose to Tharaldson their insertion of 17 these waiver provisions or explain their legal ramifications. The same can be stated with 18 regard to TM2I, except in this guaranty, North Dakota law applied.⁷⁵ And, North Dakota
19 does not provide a one action rule which also altered Plaintiffs' rights. The guaranties 20 severely limited Tharaldson's knowledge to make a proper business decision. The omission of material facts and misrepresentations as to the financials camouflaged what the true finance structure and ramifications would be to make a truly informed decision.

I. DEFAULT BY THE OBLIGORS.

The obligors on the ManhattanWest Loans have not made any of the required interest payments since September 2008 and are in monetary default.⁷⁶ Written notice of default was given to the obligors, and in response none of the defaults have been cured within the applicable cure periods.⁷⁷ The monies owed on the loans including interest and penalties continue to be due and payable. These events gave rise to the instant litigation.

V. RELEVANT PROCEDURAL HISTORY

A. PLAINTIFFS' COMPLAINT.

On July 1, 2009, Plaintiffs Gary Tharaldson and his entities Club Vista Financial Services LLC and Tharaldson Motels II, Inc filed their Complaint against Scott Financial Corporation; Bank of Oklahoma; Gemstone Development West, Inc.; and Asphalt Products Corporation.⁷⁸ Plaintiffs' Complaint states that the nature of their action was based upon fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, and breach of contract in addition to other claims arising from a highly unusual real estate finance deal.⁷⁹ The basic premise of Plaintiffs' Complaint is that the Defendants wrongfully induced Plaintiffs' participation in the financing transaction through multiple breaches of fiduciary duty, misrepresentations, and omissions.⁸⁰ Plaintiffs' claims against Defendants include

6 B. PLAINTIFFS DEMAND FOR A JURY TRIAL.

7 Plaintiffs demanded a jury trial on July 7, 2009.⁸² In response, Defendants filed a 8 motion to strike the jury demand, arguing all claims relating to the guaranty would be 9 covered by the jury trial waiver.⁸³ The District Court properly denied Defendants' 10 motion without prejudice, stating the jury demand would have to be determined down the 11 road how the case would be tried.⁸⁴

12 C. THE DISTRICT COURT PROPERLY DENIES DEFENDANTS'
13 MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT AS TO FRAUDULENT
14 CONCEALMENT/FRAUDULENT OMISSION.

15 The District Court found there were material issues of fact to be settled as to 16 SFC's motion for summary judgment regarding the Plaintiffs' first, second, and third 17 claims for relief, which were claims for fraudulent misrepresentation, fraudulent 18 concealment/omission, and constructive fraud.⁸⁵ Although the District Court granted 19 summary judgment in part, the District Court found there were issues to be resolved as to 20 the fraud claims.⁸⁶

1 With regard to BOK's motion for summary judgment on Plaintiffs' third, seventh, 2 and eleventh claims, the District Court found that genuine issues of material fact exist as 3 to constructive fraud and breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing.⁸⁷
4 Therefore, the District Court had already recognized that many of the operative 5 agreements may not even be capable of enforcement, given the context in which they 6 were obtained.

7 D. THE DISTRICT COURT PROPERLY DENIES EDELSTEIN'S
8 MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT AS TO FRAUDULENT
9 MISREPRESENTATIONS AND FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT.

10 The District Court allowed the relationship between CVFS and SFC to dictate its 11 decision that representations made about pre-condition sales would arguably be made to 12 CVFS.⁸⁸ The District Court noted that although there are no proscriptions against sales to 13 family members, the Court was unable to say as a matter of law or fact that reasonable 14 expectations of lenders in the transaction would not have meant qualified sales would 15 have been deemed to refer to third parties dealing at arm's length.⁸⁹ The District Court
16 was of the same view with respect to Plaintiffs' concealment claim.⁹⁰ The District Court 17 also reasoned that genuine issues exist as to what Defendants did in conjunction with the 18 Scott Defendants that would bear upon aiding and abetting of fiduciary duties owed by 19 the Scott Defendants to Club Vista.⁹¹ The District Court also recognized that these 20 relationships were created on trust.⁹² Thus, the motions were properly denied.

2 THE TRIAL WHILE AGAIN ASKING THE COURT TO STRIKE
3 PLAINTIFFS' JURY DEMAND.

4 On January 10, 2011 Defendants asked the District Court to bifurcate this matter 5 into two parts.⁹³ The first part would be for claims related to the guarantor Plaintiffs, 6 Gary Tharaldson and Tharaldson Motel II Inc., while the second portion would be for 7 claims related to Club Vista Financial Services.⁹⁴ Only a few weeks before trial, 8 Defendants requested that the Court separate the case to hear the non-jury portion of the 9 trial first based upon a renewed motion to strike Plaintiffs' jury demand.⁹⁵ And, 10 Defendants proposed that the District Court allow a second trial with a jury to decide 11 remaining claims that were not subject to any jury trial waiver.⁹⁶

12 Plaintiffs opposed both requests and particularly the motion to strike the jury trial 13 waivers in the guaranties because they were procured by fraudulent inducement and, thus, 14 ineffective.⁹⁷ Plaintiffs set forth four main arguments: (1) Plaintiffs have a constitutional 15 right to a jury trial on the fraudulent inducement claims relating to the guaranties; (2) it is 16 not necessary to prove the jury waiver itself was specifically induced by fraud to avoid a 17 jury trial waiver in a document that is voidable by fraudulent inducement; (3) there is a 18 genuine issue of material fact regarding the validity of the jury waiver in the guaranties 19 under Nevada law; and (4) if North Dakota law applies to the TM2I guaranty, then the 20 waiver of jury trial in that document is legally invalid.⁹⁸

F. THE DISTRICT COURT ERRONEOUSLY GRANTS BIFURCATION OF THE CASE AND UPHOLDS THE FRAUDULENTLY-OBTAINED JURY TRIAL WAIVERS.

The District Court reasoned in its written decision that according to Lowe, the conspicuous upper case jury waiver language just above the signature lines for use by Tharaldson is valid and enforceable as to all issues surrounding the validity and enforceability of the guaranties, despite the previous findings that fraud and misrepresentation were at least factual issues for trial.⁹⁹ Yet, the District Court did not make specific findings regarding the remaining Lowe factors.¹⁰⁰ The District Court surprisingly never acknowledged in this decision that it had previously found that questions of fact remain as to the fraud and its application to the contracts.

The District Court further reasoned that it was never directed to any North Dakota law to the effect that the right to a jury trial cannot be waived.¹⁰¹ However, in the Plaintiffs' Opposition to bifurcate the trial and strike the jury demand, they explained that no North Dakota case has validated a contractual waiver of jury trial in bank financing documents.¹⁰² Plaintiffs also pointed out that the North Dakota Constitution provides, "the right of trial by jury shall be secured to all, and remain inviolate..."¹⁰³

Ct., 118 Nev. 92, 97, 40 P.3d 405, 408 (2002) (outlining relevant factors to determine whether a jury trial has been waived, including: (1) the parties' negotiations concerning the waiver provision, if any; (2) the conspicuousness of the provision; (3) the relative bargaining power of the parties; and (4) whether the waiving party's counsel had an opportunity to review the agreement).

1 Finally, the District Court concluded that some of Plaintiffs' claims were subject 2 to the jury trial waiver, while others were not.¹⁰⁴ And, the District Court relied upon 3 inapposite case law allowing the bifurcation of equitable and legal claims to arbitrarily 4 bifurcate non-jury claims and jury trial claims without any regard to the prejudicial effect
5 to Plaintiffs, especially in light of the fraud and misrepresentation claims that the District 6 Court already allowed to be presented at trial.¹⁰⁵ Upon these issues, Plaintiffs seek 7 extraordinary relief.

18 In order to be sustained as a valid contract, a contract must be fairly and 19 knowingly made. Where fraud or mistake is alleged, the intent of the parties should be 20 considered. Factors include: (1) the haste with which the contract was obtained; (2) the 21 amount of consideration; (3) the circumstances surrounding the contract, including the 22 intelligence of all parties involved; and (4) the actual presence of an issue of liability.¹⁰⁶
23 Total reliance upon a misrepresentation, however, is not required to void the contract. It 24 is enough that the misrepresentation is part of the inducement to enter into the

1 transaction.¹⁰⁷ Even negligence on the part of the party seeking rescission will not bar
2 relief when the misrepresentation was made intentionally by the other party.¹⁰⁸ A party 3 who has made a false representation knowingly and with the intention that the other party 4 be deceived by it should not be allowed to profit from the credulity or negligence of the 5 party upon whom it had its intended effect.¹⁰⁹ It is, of course, true that one has an 6 obligation not to speak falsely when inducing another to make a bargain; and, this worthy 7 rule is recognized both by statute and case law in Nevada.¹¹⁰

8 In Nevada, an agreement induced by fraud or misrepresentation never came into 9 being and there is no contract to enforce.¹¹¹ The facts that vitiate the guaranty must also 10 vitiate the waiver of jury trial term of the guaranty. In fact, this Court recently explained 11 that it is not good policy for Nevada that a party asserting fraud or misrepresentation be 12 required to show particularized fraud for a certain contractual provision when there are 13 indications that there was fraud or misrepresentation with respect to the entire 14 agreement.¹¹² This Court's recent position on this topic is of utmost importance because 26 506, 519, n. 14 (1974)).

1 State courts have consistently held that a claim for fraud in the inducement of a 2 contract as a whole invalidates the jury trial waiver along with the rest of the contract.¹¹⁴
3 Defendants asserted in the District Court that the Bank of N.Y. case requires a guarantor 4 to show that “the waiver itself was induced by fraud.”¹¹⁵ That assertion is clearly false.
5 The defense asserted in Bank of N.Y. went to the “validity of the guaranty” not to the 6 “validity of the jury trial waiver.”¹¹⁶ Only federal courts, applying a different rule of 7 federal common law, have held that a party must prove fraud specific to the jury trial 8 waiver provision itself in order to avoid its impact.¹¹⁷ However, this Court is not bound 9 by any federal common law of jury waiver and should hold that if a guaranty as a whole 10 is induced by fraud or other invalidating cause, the jury trial waiver is also invalidated.
11 And, this Court has already parted ways with the federal cases making this distinction.

12 In the District Court, the Defendants asserted that there is “zero evidence that 13 either Gary Tharaldson or TM2I were fraudulently induced into waiving their right to 14 trial by jury.”¹¹⁸ As shown above, that is not the applicable legal standard. Plaintiffs are 15 entitled to a jury trial on their fraudulent inducement claims relative to the two 16 guaranties. And, the District Court previously found that there were issues of fact with 17 regard to Plaintiffs’ claims for fraud and misrepresentation.

1 Even if specific fraud with respect to the jury waiver provision had to be proved, it 2 has been proved here. The Tharaldson Guaranty is a contract between Tharaldson and 3 SFC, and the TM2I Guaranty is a contract negotiated and prepared by SFC and provided 4 by SFC to Tharaldson for signature and sent by SFC to BOK after it was signed.¹¹⁹ The 5 District Court had previously ruled that if Plaintiffs prove at trial that Tharaldson 6 (individually and as a representative of TM2I) had a “right to expect trust and confidence 7 in the integrity and fidelity of [SFC],” then a fiduciary relationship exists.¹²⁰ In that 8 event, both guaranties are contracts between a fiduciary and the fiduciary’s principal.
9 Under those circumstances, SFC had a duty not to enter into either contract until it had 10 first assured itself that Tharaldson’s assent to those contracts was “with full 11 understanding of his legal rights and of all relevant facts [SFC] knows or should 12 know.”¹²¹ Scott has admitted that he took no steps to assure that Tharaldson’s assent to 13 these documents was with “full understanding of his legal rights” with respect to jury trial 14 waiver provision (or any of the other unfair provisions of the two guaranties).¹²² Nor did 15 he advise Tharaldson that he should consult with independent legal counsel to review 16 those important matters.¹²³ BOK, Co-Lead in the transaction in which it required the 17 TM2I Guaranty, had no conversations at all with Tharaldson about any aspect of the 18 TM2I Guaranty, including the jury trial waiver provision.¹²⁴ Under any circumstances,

4 2. The District Court Abused Its Discretion by Failing to Consider or Analyze the Minimum Lowe Factors.

5 Although the District Court's order striking Plaintiffs' jury demand relies upon 6 Lowe Enterprises Residential Partners, L.P. v. District Court,¹²⁵ the District Court failed 7 to consider and analyze the minimum standards set forth by this Court. Lowe adopted the 8 holding of Whirlpool Finance Corp. v. Sevaux,¹²⁶ which requires the following minimum 9 elements to be considered in determining whether a jury trial waiver was entered into 10 knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally:

11 The factors to consider in determining whether a contractual waiver of the 12 right to jury trial was entered into knowingly and voluntarily include: 13 (1) the parties' negotiations concerning the waiver provision, if any, (2) the 14 conspicuousness of the provision, (3) the relative bargaining power of the 15 parties and (4) whether the waiving party's counsel had an opportunity to 16 review the agreement.

15 Instead of considering and analyzing each of these issues, the District Court's order 16 simply states that because the jury trial waiver provision was conspicuous and near 17 Tharaldson's signature, the waiver provision was somehow valid.¹²⁷ Had the District 18 Court actually considered the remaining Lowe factors, the District Court would have 19 been restrained to deny Defendants' motion to strike the jury demand.

20 It is undisputed that Tharaldson was not provided advance copies of any drafts of 21 any of the Senior Loan Documents, including any guaranties, during the two week or so

1 drafting process.¹²⁸ It is also undisputed that Tharaldson received the Senior Loan
2 Documents on Wednesday, January 30, 2008, with each signature page “flagged by rose 3 color post it” and with instructions from SFC to deliver them to Gemstone as soon as 4 possible, so the documents could be returned that same day.¹²⁹ Further, by the time
5 Tharaldson saw the documents, SFC’s time deadline was imminent.¹³⁰

6 Tharaldson also testified that he believed that Scott, SFC, and the Maslon law firm 7 had reviewed the documents he was asked to sign and they were protecting his interests 8 in doing so.¹³¹ According to Tharaldson, “Brad, you know, he put in emails and told 9 Ryan that Maslon was looking out for our best interests and that we didn’t have to go get 10 an outside attorney.”¹³² Tharaldson further explained,

11 My complaint I guess is that Brad Scott and Scott Financial and Maslon 12 when they reviewed this for me they didn’t. Didn’t point it out and not only 13 that I didn’t have a chance to read it, we were instructed to get them over to 14 Alex within a short time after I received them. So I signed them with 15 knowing the fact that they’s already been review by the attorneys that Brad 16 had returned, reviewed them for us, and so one of our issues is the one 17 action rule. If I’d have known the One Action Rule my, Maslon’s attorneys 18 would have explained it to me they’d have never, they’d advise me not to, 19 not to, to sign it.¹³³

20 In short, they should have advised him on the guaranties, but did not. Nor was there any 21 time for Tharaldson to have a separate attorney review the guaranties.¹³⁴

1 The evidence also supports TM2I's contention that TM2I did not knowingly, 2 intentionally or voluntarily waive its right to a jury trial. There is no corporate resolution 3 establishing that TM2I authorized Tharaldson to execute the TM2I Guaranty in the first 4 place. Moreover, Tharaldson testified he did not agree to have TM2I guaranty the BOK 5 portion of the Senior Loan, he does not recall signing the TM2I Guaranty, and he did not 6 know about it until early 2009.¹³⁵ Tharaldson also testified he did not have personal 7 knowledge of the TM2I Guaranty, but that if he did sign it, his signature was obtained 8 "fraudulently" and "through deception" since it was never discussed and was not 9 supposed to be part of the agreement."¹³⁶

10 Scott did not communicate to Tharaldson that the two guaranties contained jury 11 trial waivers or discuss the scope of the waivers or their possible implications.¹³⁷ As a 12 result of these circumstances, Tharaldson did not have actual knowledge that the two 13 guaranties contained waivers of jury trial.¹³⁸ Although he signed the two guaranties at 14 Scott's direction, being unaware of the jury trial provision he did not knowingly and 15 intentionally waive jury trial rights or any other rights.¹³⁹

16 Whether the jury trial waivers were made knowingly, intentionally, and 17 voluntarily is a material issue in this case. And the evidence summarized above creates a 18 genuine question of fact on that material issue. On these facts, a jury could find as a 19 matter of fact that the jury trial waivers in both guaranties were not knowing, intentional,

1 and voluntary. Therefore, it was error for the District Court to engage in an incomplete
2 analysis of the Lowe factors and summarily strike Plaintiffs' jury demand.

4 3. According to North Dakota Law, the Pre-Litigation Jury Trial
Waivers Are Not Valid or Enforceable.

5 In its order, the District Court concluded that it was not provided with any North 6 Dakota law stating that the pre-litigation jury trial waivers were invalid.¹⁴⁰ However, the 7 District Court overlooked the arguments in this regard which provide an alternative basis 8 for allowing Plaintiffs' jury demand to stand.

9 In the District Court, Defendants contended that the TM2I Guaranty is governed 10 by North Dakota Law. No North Dakota case has validated a contractual waiver of jury 11 trial in bank financing documents. Cases of the North Dakota Supreme Court have, 12 however, made clear that the right of jury trial in civil cases is a "basic and fundamental 13 part of our system of jurisprudence," and other cases have held that important statutory 14 rights of debtors cannot be contractually waived in advance of default on a loan. Thus, 15 presented with this question, the North Dakota Supreme Court would conclude that the 16 jury waiver in the TM2I Guaranty is invalid as a matter of law.

17 The North Dakota Constitution provides that "the right of trial by jury shall be 18 secured to all, and remain inviolate. . . . All verdicts must be unanimous."¹⁴¹ The North 19 Dakota Supreme Court has repeatedly held that "the right to trial by jury in actions at law 20 is a basic and fundamental part of our system of jurisprudence."¹⁴² Further, the Supreme 21 Court has noted that "This State has been more liberal than most in construing the 22 guarantee of jury trial, indicating the high regard with which we value the right to a jury trial.”¹⁴³ Its “high regard [for] the right to a jury trial” led the North Dakota Supreme Court to hold that, before a debtor can be deprived of a jury trial on the ground that the action is “equitable” in nature, the lender must “clearly and unambiguously” show that “he is seeking an equitable remedy and that he is clearly entitled to it if he proves the facts as alleged in his complaint.”¹⁴⁴ In Richman, the court held that the complaint sought money damages on a promissory note and recovery of specific property, not foreclosure (an equitable proceeding), and therefore the defendant must be accorded a jury trial. The same “high regard” for a right to civil jury trial articulated by the North Dakota Supreme Court has led other courts to hold that pre-litigation contractual jury trial waivers are entirely unenforceable.¹⁴⁵

When it comes to overreaching by lenders attempting to secure advance contractual waivers of a debtor’s rights, the North Dakota Supreme Court has resolutely invalidated pre-default waivers. In First Interstate Bank of New Rockford v. Anderson, the Court reaffirmed its earlier holdings that there can be no pre-default waiver by a mortgagor of his statutory right of redemption which right the Supreme Court “zealously guards.”¹⁴⁶ Similarly, the North Dakota Supreme Court has held that a debtor’s rights under the anti-deficiency statute cannot be waived prior to default.¹⁴⁷ A right to a jury trial entailing a unanimous verdict held to be “fundamental and sacred” under the North Dakota Constitution, is at least as important as whether the statutory redemption period is one year or six months, and at least as important as a guarantor's rights under the anti-deficiency statutes. Accordingly, if North Dakota Law applies to the TM2I Guaranty, as Defendants suggest, this Court should hold that the jury trial waiver is unconstitutional and invalid. Therefore, this Court should order the extraordinary relief that Plaintiffs seek based upon these alternative grounds.

4. Instead of Arbitrarily Concluding that Plaintiffs Waived Their Right to a Trial by Jury, the District Court Should Have Ordered a Jury Trial Limited to This Sole Issue of Waiver.

Since the District Court already found that there are factual issues with regard to Plaintiffs' fraud and intentional misrepresentation claims, the waiver issue with respect to Plaintiffs' jury demand should also be presented to a jury to first determine the sole issue of waiver. This precise issue was decided in Federal Housecraft, Inc. v. Faria:¹⁴⁸

I think there should be a reappraisal of our position in respect to a situation, such as this one, involving a defense which challenges the validity of the writing wherein the jury waiver clause appears. In such a case, it seems to me that the party resisting the contract should be afforded the privilege of a preliminary trial by jury on the defense of fraud.¹⁴⁹

So, the decision of whether there was fraud can actually be made by the jury so that the waiver issue is not treated lightly, as in the instant case. Other courts weighing the available remedies when fraud is alleged with respect to contracts containing jury trial waivers have reached similar conclusions. For example, in Gardner and North Roofing and Siding Corp. v. Champagne, the court confirmed the holding of Faria and reasoned:

One who disaffirms for fraud a writing which contains a jury waiver clause should not be required to proceed to trial without a jury until there has been a determination as to the validity of the disputed instrument.¹⁵⁰

1 Since the District Court already found that fraud and intentional misrepresentation are 2 issues for the jury to decide, with regard to the substance of Plaintiffs' claims, the District
3 Court should have also allowed Plaintiffs to dispute the validity of the waiver before a 4 jury. Therefore, this Court should, at a minimum, order Plaintiffs' fraud and 5 misrepresentation issues to be tried before a jury on the issue of jury trial waivers prior to 6 reaching the substance of the actual claims.

16 1. The District Court Abused Its Discretion in Relying Upon 17 Awada to Bifurcate the Trial.

18 The District Court's bifurcation order cites to Awada v. Shuffle Master, Inc. for 19 the proposition that the District Court had the authority to bifurcate non-jury issues from 20 jury issues.¹⁵¹ In reaching this conclusion, the District Court did not provide any analysis 21 under NRCP 42—all to the detriment of Plaintiffs. At a minimum, this Court should 22 require the District Court to properly analyze any bifurcation in light of the controlling 23 rule, if necessary. Of course, if this Court rules in favor of Plaintiffs on the jury trial 24 waiver issue, bifurcation may not even be necessary.

25 In the District Court, Defendants cited to Awada, claiming that bifurcation would 26 not impair Plaintiffs' constitutional right to jury trial.¹⁵² Awada does not support Defendants' argument for two separate and independently sufficient reasons. First, the

1 distributor in Awada had no jury-triable claims that could possibly have been adversely 2 affected by trying the rescission claim first, resulting in an order of rescission. Second, 3 the distributor in Awada voluntarily made an early election of remedies, which has not 4 occurred in this case, and which Plaintiffs are entitled to delay until a jury verdict is 5 rendered.

6 In Awada, the distributor filed a counterclaim which sought the equitable remedy 7 of rescission of a licensing agreement with the developer. There is no indication that the 8 distributor asserted a tort claim for fraud, a contract claim for damages, or any other 9 claim that might have had common issues of fact with the rescission claim.¹⁵³ In the 10 absence of such claims having been asserted, there was no risk that trying the equitable 11 claim first could intrude on the distributor's right to a jury trial on any other claims. In 12 this case, however, CVFS's claims that the Mezzanine Deeds of Trust Subordination 13 Agreement in which it subordinated $46 million in first position liens, and the 14 Nonrecourse Participation Agreement through which it also purchased a loan 15 participation, were induced by the very same acts and omissions by the very same 16 Defendants as the claims of Tharaldson and TM2I to avoid the Tharaldson Guaranty and 17 the TM2I Guaranty.¹⁵⁴

18 Also in Awada, prior to litigation, the distributor sent a letter to the developer 19 notifying that it was rescinding the licensing agreement due to fraud and returned to the 20 developer everything he had provided to the distributor in connection with the licensing 21 agreement.¹⁵⁵ In its counterclaim, the distributor sought rescission, not damages, thereby

1 confirming its early election not to sue for damages. Under Nevada law, such an election 2 does not have to be made prior to obtaining a jury verdict.¹⁵⁶

3 Trial of the “guarantor related claims” first, in a non-jury trial, would force 4 Plaintiffs to elect prematurely whether to affirm the guaranties and seek breach of 5 contract and tort damages, or whether to elect the equitable remedy of rescission, without 6 the benefit of a jury verdict. Where, as here, the jury claims and the alleged non-jury 7 claims are “inextricably intertwined” an order of bifurcation with trial first of the non-8 jury claims violates the fundamental right of jury trial.¹⁵⁷ Therefore, because there is no 9 logical analogy between the equitable claims/legal claims and non-jury claims/jury 10 claims, Awada did not excuse the District Court from analyzing NRCP 42 before 11 bifurcating the trial.

12 2. Because the Issues Are Interrelated, the Bifurcation of Jury 13 Trial and Non-Jury Trial Issues Severely Prejudices Plaintiffs.

14 When the issues are inextricably interrelated, there should not be separate trials, 15 and a district court abuses its discretion when order bifurcation.¹⁵⁸ Although Rule 42 16 allows for separate trials, it is not a rule that lends itself to a liberal or indiscriminate 17 application.¹⁵⁹ It should be carefully and cautiously applied and be utilized only in a case 18 and at a juncture where informed judgment impels the court to conclude that application

1 of the rule will manifestly promote convenience and actually avoid prejudice.¹⁶⁰
2 Defendants simply did not carry their burden to demonstrate that bifurcation satisfied 3 these tests.

4 Of the Rule 42(b) factors, the avoidance of prejudice is the most compelling 5 justification for bifurcation.¹⁶¹ So, how would Defendants be prejudiced by a single trial 6 of all of the claims and counterclaims in this case? Defendants did not even attempt to 7 make a case that they would be prejudiced by a failure to bifurcate. And, they failed to 8 even cite any cases identifying the types of “prejudice” that have been accepted, or 9 rejected, by courts under Rule 42(b). So, Defendants tacitly concede that bifurcation is 10 not required to avoid prejudice to them.

11 Where a proposed bifurcation would create prejudice to any party, granting a 12 separate trial is an abuse of discretion.¹⁶² The prejudice to Plaintiffs from Defendants’ 13 notion of bifurcation is obvious and far reaching. First, the proposed bifurcation would 14 unconstitutionally impair the Plaintiffs’ right to a jury trial. Beyond that, however, the 15 same decision maker, under the same facts and circumstances, including Defendants’ 16 misrepresentations and omissions, simultaneously decided to agree to all aspects of the 17 Senior Loan Transaction including two guaranties, a $46 million Subordination, and the 18 purchase of a Participant Interest.¹⁶³ So the facts of both sets of claims are “inextricably 19 intertwined” requiring the same proof at both proposed trials, clearly a prejudicial waste

1 of resources. At the hearing for Defendants’ bifurcation motion, Defendants even 2 suggested that there could potentially be three trials—a completely unnecessary 3 trifurcation.¹⁶⁴ Undoubtedly, Defendants’ intentions with respect to dividing Plaintiffs’ 4 claims was designed to separate the fraud and intentional misrepresentation claims from 5 the contractual claims, which is simply impossible. Tellingly, the District Court’s order 6 provides no reasoning with respect to this prejudice.

8 3. The District Court’s Bifurcation Order Deprives Plaintiffs of a Fair Trial.

9 a. The Bifurcated Trials Do Not Promote Judicial Economy.

10 The “convenience” factor in Rule 42(b) as distinct from the “expedition” and 11 “economy” factors goes to logistical issues of “parties” and non-party “witnesses” in 12 connection with the litigation.¹⁶⁵ The Parties reside in Nevada, North Dakota, and 13 Oklahoma. The fact witnesses reside in California, Colorado, North Dakota, Oklahoma, 14 Texas, Nevada, and perhaps others. The expert witnesses reside in Arizona, Texas, 15 Montana, and Nevada. It is hardly “convenient” for all these out of state fact witnesses 16 and expert witnesses to testify at two trials in Las Vegas rather than one. Additionally, 17 counsel for the parties reside in Oklahoma, Arizona, and Nevada. It is much more 18 “convenient” for out of state witnesses and counsel to participate in one trial of all claims 19 in Las Vegas rather than two. As it stands, the Court’s bifurcation order deprives 20 Plaintiffs of a fair trial by requiring them to participate in at least two trials involving the 21 same witnesses.

22 Despite Defendants’ assertions, there is no judicial economy in holding two 23 separate trials, one before the court and one before a jury, rather than a single trial. The

1 “expedition” factor in Rule 42(b) goes to the time that will elapse in the complete 2 resolution of an entire case. In the abstract, it is hard to see how two trials can, in 3 combination, be more “expeditious” than one. In a specific case, in assessing whether 4 two trials could more expeditiously resolve an entire case, three considerations arise.
5 First, what is the probability that the first trial may resolve the entire case, and therefore 6 eliminate the second trial? Second, how long will the first trial take, compared with the 7 second trial? And third, what is the state of the court’s trial calendar? All three 8 considerations cut against Defendants’ position in the bifurcation.

9 Where a single defense, such as laches, statute of limitations, or release would be 10 case dispositive and can be tried in a relatively short time period, bifurcation makes 11 sense. In this case, however, the proposed first trial would not be short, as it would 12 require trial of the same Fraudulent Inducement Claims as to the Tharaldson Guaranty 13 and the TM2I Guaranty as are involved in the CVFS Subordination and Participant 14 Interest purchase claims. And, the proposed first trial will not be case dispositive. If the 15 Court at the first trial were to hold that the guaranties are enforceable, Plaintiffs’ 16 affirmative tort claims for fraud, constructive fraud, and breach of fiduciary duty, and 17 their statutory claim for securities fraud, would still have to be tried, but the damages on 18 those claims would increase from the $46 million subordinated debt to include also the 19 amount required to be paid on the guaranties.

20 The “economy” factor in Rule 42(b) goes to conservation of resources, including 21 both the Court’s available time and the costs to the parties of concluding the litigation.
22 The two trials ordered by the District Court would waste, not conserve, judicial resources, 23 especially since Defendants suggest that there may need to be a third trial. Instead of 24 bifurcation, there could simply be a single, simultaneous trial of all claims. Under these 25
26

1 circumstances, “bifurcation of claims is not warranted, as it would hamper judicial 2 economy, rather than promoting it as defendants contend.”¹⁶⁶

4 b. The Bifurcated Trials Would Not Preserve Inviolate Plaintiffs’ Right to a Jury Trial.

5 A jury trial in civil cases is guaranteed by Article 1, § 3 of the Nevada
6 Constitution and Article I, § 13 of the North Dakota Constitution. Where claims triable 7 to a jury and claims triable to the court involve common questions of fact, it is 8 unconstitutional to try the non-jury claims first, as the doctrines of res judicata or 9 collateral estoppel could effectively eliminate the right to jury trial.¹⁶⁷ In Wood, the 10 plaintiff had a breach of contract claim for damages as well as claims for trademark 11 infringement, for injunctive relief, and for an accounting. The Supreme Court reversed 12 the district court’s refusal to grant the plaintiff’s jury demand. The Supreme Court held 13 that because the “factual issues related to the question of whether there has been a breach 14 of contract” are “common with those upon which respondents’ claim to equitable relief is 15 based, the legal claims involved in the action must be determined prior to any final court 16 determination of respondents’ equitable claims.”¹⁶⁸

17 In the decades since Wood, both federal and state courts have consistently held 18 that claims triable to a jury must be tried first whenever those claims have common 19 factual issues with the claims not triable to a jury.¹⁶⁹ Indeed, a guaranty case cited by 20 ¹⁶⁶ Tuttle v. Sears Roebuck & Co., 2009 WL 2916894 *3 (N.D. Ohio 2009).

21 ¹⁶⁷ Dairy Queen, Inc. v. Wood, 369 U.S. 469 (1962); Beacon Theatres, Inc. v. Westover, 22 359 U.S. 500 (1959).

23 ¹⁶⁸ 369 U.S. at 479–480.

24 ¹⁶⁹ See, e.g., Kolstad v. Am. Dental Ass’n, 108 F.3d 1431, 1440 (D.C. Cir. 1997) (jury 25 claims tried first; court bound by jury’s fact finding in later deciding non-jury claims); 26 Zions First Nat’l Bank v. Rocky Mtn. Irrigation, Inc., 795 P.2d 548, 662 (UT 1990) (fraud issue must be resolved by jury first; court is bound by jury’s factual determinations on the “parallel equitable issue.”)

1 Defendants holds that, even if bifurcation between jury issues and non-jury issues were to 2 occur, the jury claims must be tried first.¹⁷⁰ Only where the claims triable to the jury do 3 not involve common factual issues with claims triable only to the court can the court 4 exercise discretion to try the non-jury claims first.¹⁷¹

5 In light of these authorities, it is obvious that Tharaldson's decision under all the 6 facts and circumstances, to sign the Tharaldson Guaranty and the TM2I Guaranty have 7 "common factual issues" with his simultaneous decision, under all the same facts and 8 circumstances, to sign CVFS's $46 million Subordination and its Participant Interest 9 purchase. Because the facts giving rise to the Fraudulent Inducement Claims relative to 10 the Guarantor Claims are the same as the facts giving rise to the Fraudulent Inducement 11 Claims relative to CVFS's claims, the facts are not distinct, but are common. Therefore, 12 the District Court abused its discretion by ordering bifurcated trial, which in turn 13 diminishes Plaintiffs' jury demand since the jury trial would be held after the non-jury 14 trial. As a result, Plaintiffs request extraordinary relief from this Court to either hold a 15 single jury trial or allow Plaintiffs' jury trial claims be heard first prior to the non-jury 16 claims.

18 4. Even if this Court Were to Uphold the Jury Trial Waivers, the Court Should Order This Case Submitted to an Advisory Jury.

19 NRCP 39(c) permitted the District Court "upon motion" to "try any issue with an 20 advisory jury" that is not "triable of right by a jury." The purpose of Rule 39(c) is to 21

22 ¹⁷⁰ Bank of N.Y. v. Royal Athletic Ind., Ltd., 637 N.Y.S.2d 478, 479 (App. Div. 1996) (jury trial first on defenses going to validity of guaranty; if defenses are rejected, then a 23 non-jury trial would be held on the guaranty liability).

24 ¹⁷¹ Granite State Ins. Co. v. Smart Modular Technologies, Inc., 76 F.3d 1023, 1027 (9th 25 Cir. 1996) (facts related to equitable estoppel defense are "distinct rather than common 26 issues" with the breach of contract and negligence claims.); West v. Devitt, 311 F.2d 787, 788 (8th Cir. 1963) (issue of laches independent of the merits of Plaintiff's claim could be tried to the court first).

1 perfect the “complete fusion of law and equity” and to permit “the time-saving trial of 2 common jury and non-jury issues at one time without the loss or surrender of any 3 substantive rights by the parties.”¹⁷² Nevada courts have often taken this approach where 4 a case involves both equitable claims and legal claims.¹⁷³

5 Even if this Court were to uphold the jury trial waivers, the fact that a trial by jury 6 on some issues may have been waived does not preclude the District Court from 7 impaneling an advisory jury to assist in its determinations of those and other non-jury 8 claims.¹⁷⁴ Any other interpretation of Rule 39(c) is “undesirable” because “the use of an 9 advisory jury is of no binding legal significance, and the responsibility for the decision 10 remains with the judge, he or she should be allowed whatever help in reaching the 11 decision he or she thinks desirable.”¹⁷⁵ Additionally, the advisory jury hearing all issues 12 would then allow the District Court to subsequently resolve any issues either by judgment 13 or by a potential second trial, which is consistent with Defendants’ position that a second 14 non-trial may be needed anyway after the jury trial. Therefore, even if this Court is 15 inclined to uphold the jury trial waivers, as ordered by the District Court, this Court

17 ¹⁷² Note 1 to FRCP Rule 39(c); Bruckman v. Hollzer, 152 F.2d 730, 732–733 (9th Cir.
18 1946).

19 ¹⁷³ See, e.g., Anderson v. Weise, 95 Nev. 540, 543, 598 P.2d 1144, 1147 (1979) (action to 20 reform legal description on a deed and to recover damages; jury was advisory on the 21 reformation action and Court decided to follow its recommendation; but mandatory on the damages claim).

22 ¹⁷⁴ Am. Lumbermens Mut. Cas. Co v. Timms & Howard, Inc., 108 F.2d 497, 499–500
(2d Cir 1939) (advisory jury is the “discretionary right of the court to have its ‘conscience 23 enlightened.’”); Cudmore v. Smith, 260 F. Supp. 760 (D. Conn. 1966) (jury trial waived by lack of timely demand; court impaneled advisory jury anyway); *Computer Sys.
24 Engineering, Inc. v. Qantel Corp.*, 571 F. Supp. 1365, 1372–1373 (D. Mass. 1983) (jury advisory on statutory unfair business practice claim, but mandatory on fraud claim tried 25 concurrently).

26 ¹⁷⁵ 9 Wright & Miller, FED. PRAC. & PROC. CIV. § 2335 (3rd ed.).

1 should, at a minimum, require the District Court to analyze NRCP 42 and 39 to maintain 2 the integrity of Plaintiffs' jury trial claims.

3 VII. CONCLUSION

4 This case presents two main issues of public importance dealing with the right to a 5 jury trial. Plaintiffs request that this Court find that when fraud and intentional 6 misrepresentation have been alleged and supported with respect to certain documents that 7 no further proof be required to show that there was fraud and intentional 8 misrepresentation with respect to waiver of jury trial provisions within those documents.
9 Once there has been a showing of a factual issue regarding fraud and misrepresentation, 10 the District Court should allow this waiver issue to go to a jury to first decide this issue 11 before summarily denying a party's right to a jury trial.

12 Second, once the invalidity of the jury trial waiver is determined by a jury, only 13 then can the District Court determine whether any bifurcation of issues is necessary.
14 However, even if this Court upholds the District Court's order striking Plaintiffs' jury 15 demand, the Court should, nevertheless, order the District Court to consider the 16 mandatory factors of NRCP 42 in determining bifurcation, as well as the use of an 17 advisory jury for issues triable only before the District Court in a non-jury capacity.
