10                                    STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES

11                                    1.    The trial court committed constitutional error in 12 denying Defendant's motion to sever counts for trial.

13                                    2.    The trial court committed constitutional error in 14 denying Defendant's motion for a change of venue.

15                                    3.    The trial court committed constitutional error in 16 denying Defendant's motion to dismiss statutory aggravators based on 17 a failure to find probable cause for existence of such aggravating 18 circumstances.

19                                    4.    The trial court committed constitutional error by 20 improperly requiring Defendant to disclose expert witness test 21 results and allowing the state to make use of that data in 22 presenting penalty phase rebuttal evidence.

23                                    5.    The trial court committed constitutional error in 24 denying Defendant's motion to suppress Defendant's statements.

4                           STATEMENT OF THE CASE

5           This is an appeal from the judgment of conviction filed 6 September 5, 2000, wherein Appellant was adjudged guilty of Count I: 7 burglary while in possession of a firearm; Counts II - V: murder of 8 the first degree with use of a deadly weapon; Count VI: attempt 9 murder with use of a deadly weapon; Count VII: first degree 10 kidnaping with use of a deadly weapon; and Counts VIII - XI: sexual 11 assault with use of a deadly weapon; and sentenced to serve the 12 following sentences: Count I: a maximum term of one hundred eighty 13 (180) months in the Nevada Department of Prisons with a minimum 14 parole eligibility of seventy-two (72) months; Counts II - V: death 15 by lethal injection; Count VI: two consecutive maximum terms of two-16 hundred forty (240) months with minimum parole eligibility of 17 ninety-six (96) months, consecutive to Count I; Count VII: two 18 consecutive terms of life imprisonment with a minimum parole
19 eligibility of sixty (60) months, consecutive to Count VI; Counts 20 VIII - XI: as to each count, two consecutive terms of life 21 imprisonment with a minimum parole eligibility of one hundred twenty 22 (120) months, Count VIII to be served consecutive to Count VII, and 23 the remaining counts to be served consecutive to each other (ROA, 24 vol. 14, pp. 2732-35).

25                           STATEMENT OF FACTS

26           Appellant, Zane Michael Floyd, was charged by Information 27 and two subsequent amendments thereto, by Stewart L. Bell, District 28 Attorney, Clark County, Nevada with the following crimes: Count I:

1 burglary while in possession of a firearm; Counts II - V: murder
2 with use of a deadly weapon; Count VI: attempt murder with use of a 3 deadly weapon; Count VII: first degree kidnaping with use of a 4 deadly weapon; and Counts VIII - XI: sexual assault with use of a 5 deadly weapon (ROA, vol. 1, pp. 1-6; vol. 4, pp. 842-47; vol. 5, pp.
6 910-13). On July 11, 2000, Appellant's jury trial began before the 7 Honorable Jeffrey D. Sobel, District Judge in the Eighth Judicial 8 District Court of the State of Nevada. As a result of that trial, 9 Defendant was found guilty and sentenced as set forth above.

10           This case centers around the June 3, 1999 multiple 11 shooting incident at an Albertson's supermarket in Las Vegas, and 12 the sexual assault upon an escort service employee earlier that same 13 day. The evidence adduced at trial was as follows:

14           Ricky Workman, criminalistics bureau supervisor for the 15 Henderson Police Department, testified that he responded to the 16 Albertson's scene on June 3rd (ROA, vol. 8, p. 1407). Upon entering 17 the store, he observed Thomas Darnell lying face down with a shotgun 18 wound to the back. There was a multi-colored robe on the floor near 19 the entrance. Farther to the north, Chuck Leos was lying face up in 20 the center of an aisle, with two separate wounds. An expended 21 shotgun shell was recovered from that area. Moving even further to 22 the north, Workman observed Dennis Sargent lying on his side, with 23 an expended 12-gauge shotgun shell near his feet. Sargent had 24 sustained a shotgun wound to the center of the chest (ROA, vol. 8, 25 pp. 1412 & 1414). In the party tray preparation area, victim Luci 26 Tarantino was located on the floor (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1416-17). In 27 all, eighteen shotgun rounds or casings were recovered. This left 28 one expended shotgun shell that could not be accounted for (ROA,

1 vol. 8, pp. 1420-22). Of these, Workman recovered eight expended 2 shell casings and removed seven live rounds from the shotgun (ROA, 3 vol. 8, p. 1409).

4 Detective David Mesinar of the Las Vegas Metropolitan 5 Police Department testified that a "multiplex" videotape was 6 recovered from the store's surveillance system, containing images 7 recorded from seven cameras placed throughout the store (ROA, vol.
8 8, p. 1428). A review of this tape showed that five minutes passed 9 between Defendant's entry and ultimate exit from the grocery store.
10 The video recording included images of one of the employees being 11 shot, of Defendant reaching into his pocket and apparently 12 reloading the shotgun, and of Floyd leaving the store just prior to 13 surrendering to officers (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1432-33 & 1447). Other 14 than the five shooting victims, there were at least twenty-four 15 other people present in the store at the time of the incident.
16 Describing the location of these individuals, the witness testified:

17 Seven of them were able to run out of the 18 store. One was, I believe her name is Ms.
19 Goldsworthy was up on the office making the 911 20 call; two were hiding in a semi-trailer that 21 was parked backed up to the loading dock at the 22 back of the store and milk delivery vehicle.

23 . . . .
24 One was hiding in the dairy cooler; two were 25 hiding in a bakery freezer, a bakery cooler; 26 five were in a produce cooler; four were in an 27 air-conditioning compressor room upstairs above 28 the grocery freezer, and there were two hiding in the beer cooler. (ROA, vol. 8, p. 1435).

24 Christine Goldsworthy, the store bookkeeper, testified 25 that she was in the upstairs portion of the store when she heard a 26 loud bang which scared her. Looking down onto the sales floor 27 through the window, she saw two customers running, and then saw 28 Defendant Floyd running through checkstand seven and aisle seven

1 firing the shotgun. He was dressed in black pants, an army fatigue
2 jacket and was bald. She ran into the manager's office and called 3 911. Ms. Goldsworthy also testified to having identified Defendant 4 in a line-up (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1455-57).

5 Police dispatcher Samantha Cooper testified that the first 6 911 call on the shootings was received at 5:16 a.m. and that Zane 7 Floyd was taken into custody at 5:30 a.m. (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1759-8 60).

9 Produce manager Steven Johnson was one of those who hid in 10 the produce cooler after hearing what he concluded were several 11 gunshots. He testified that while in the cooler, he heard the 12 following:

13 Then seconds after I ducked down behind [milk 14 crates] I heard a gentleman say something like 15 how are you, or what's going on this morning, 16 or something like that, something very cordial.
17 And then I heard a women's voice, which at that time at that moment I realized Luci was still back here, Luci Tarantino, and then a gun fired, just seconds later, not even that.
(ROA, vol. 8, p. 1465).

18 Johnson never saw the shooter (ROA, vol. 8, p. 1468).

19 Mark Schmitt, the store meat manager, testified that he 20 and three others hid in the air conditioning compressor room after 21 having been alerted by a customer. He was the last of the four to 22 climb up into the compressor room, and as he did so he saw the 23 gunman walking by below. He later identified the man in a lineup, 24 and made an in-court identification of Defendant as the person he 25 had picked out of the lineup (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1482-83).

26 Linda Torres, the bakery manager, hid in the bakery cooler 27 after hearing several bangs. She saw a bald white male, wearing a 28 . . .

1 camouflage jacket and carrying a shotgun, chase another man. She 2 did not see the gunman's face (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1494, 1496 & 1499).

3 Kelly Pearce, a clerk at the service deli, identified 4 Defendant as the person wearing the camouflage jacket, explaining 5 that she had seen him twice - once when he came through the 6 checkstands and a second time in the produce department (ROA, vol.
7 8, pp. 1505, 1507 & 1511).

8 Twenty-two year old Zachary Emenegger testified that at 9 approximately 5:15 a.m., he was stocking shelves on the sales floor
10 when he started hearing gunshots. As he moved, he saw Chuck Leos 11 lying on the ground (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1525-27). Recounting what 12 happened thereafter, the witness explained:

13 I see Zane, he comes after me with a shotgun, 14 sort of chasing me. Right here he takes a shot 15 and I duck and it goes over my head. He chases 16 me around the table, and I'm scrambling.
17 Immediately I get shot right here.

18 . . . . .
19 It hit me under my arm in my back. Then he 20 stands over me and takes another shot.

22 That shot hit me in the forearm.

23 . . . . .
24 After that second shot he leaned over me and 25 says, "yeah, you're dead." And then I heard him 26 move away. (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1529-30).

27 Emmenegger identified Defendant as the gunman (ROA, vol. 8, p.
28 1534).

29 Officer Andrew Tedesco was the first car on the scene in 30 response to the shots fired dispatch at the grocery store (ROA, vol.
31 9, pp. 1771-73). He testified that Defendant exited the store, ran 32 back inside, and then five to ten seconds later, again exited with 33 the shotgun pointed at his head (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1774-75). "He was 34 saying to shoot him. He put the gun in his mouth. He put it at his

1 head. Officer Mees was talking to him, trying to get him to put the 2 gun down." (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1776). After approximately eight 3 minutes of Mees talking to him, Defendant put the shotgun down and 4 was taken into custody (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1777-78). Tedesco patted 5 down Defendant and located four unexpended shotgun shells in his 6 pants pocket (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1781). The witness testified that 7 Defendant made the unsolicited remark, "I can't believe I shot those 8 people." (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1782).

9           Minoru Aoki, a police department criminalist, analyzed a 10 blood sample drawn from Defendant at 8:00 a.m. on June 3rd. The 11 blood alcohol level in the sample was 0.09. The witness 12 extrapolated this result to conclude that Floyd's blood alcohol 13 level at 5:15 or 5:30 a.m. would have been .14 (ROA, vol. 8, pp.
14 1538 & 1540). A test for controlled substances yielded negative 15 results (ROA, vol. 8, p. 1543).

16           Criminalist Torrey Johnson gave details concerning the 17 various rounds recovered at the shooting scene. The shells included 18 seven fired double aught buck, one number six, four live Federal 19 double aught buck cartridges, two Federal number six live rounds and 20 one Winchester double aught buck cartridge, in addition to the three 21 rounds impounded by Officer Tedesco; for a total of eighteen 22 recovered rounds (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1586-87). The witness also 23 opined that the shotgun recovered from Defendant fired the cartridge 24 cases gathered at the market (ROA, vol. 8, p. 1598).

25           Crime scene analyst Larry Morton testified that he went to 26 Defendant's residence at 4101 West Oakey on June 3rd, pursuant to a 27 search warrant (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1606-07). Items seized from the 28 residence included a shotgun stock and receipts from the Olympic

1 Gardens cabaret - a $15 receipt dated June 2nd at 8:01 p.m. and an 2 $11 receipt marked June 3rd at 12:04 a.m. Empty beer bottles were 3 observed in the livingroom (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1612 & 1616-17).

4 Twenty-one year old Tracie Rose Carter testified that on 5 June 3rd she worked as a dancer for an outcall service called "Love 6 Bound". (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1621). In addition to a set fee that went 7 to her employer, she would sometimes receive tips for engaging in 8 sexual activity with customers (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1624). Ms. Carter 9 testified that on June 3rd she arrived at Zane Floyd's residence 10 between 3:00 and 3:30 a.m., having been driven there by a friend.
11 She stayed there for an hour and a half to two hours (ROA, vol. 9, 12 p. 1629). As soon as she walked up to Floyd, he allegedly grabbed 13 her, pushed her into the house, locking the door behind him, and 14 held a 12-gauge shotgun on her. He ordered her to take her clothes 15 off (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1630-32). The witness added that when she 16 asked Defendant why he was doing this, "[h]e tells me it's just his 17 sick little fantasy that I happen to become a part of. He mentions 18 this, numerous things about how he, he, he wants to know what it's 19 like to kill." (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1634). Defendant also stated that 20 he didn't know what was wrong with him, and that it was the military 21 that had made him a killer (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1696-98). The witness 22 further explained that Floyd was angry at the military because he 23 couldn't understand why they let him go (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1699).
24 Subsequently, Ms. Carter removed her clothing in the bedroom (ROA, 25 vol. 9, p. 1638). Defendant had sexual intercourse, anal 26 intercourse and digitally penetrated her vagina. The couple also 27 engaged in fellatio (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1639-1646). Describing what 28 happened just prior to her release, the witness explained:

1           At the end he also, . . . he was showing me
2           the bullets he said, you know, like this one 3           has your name on it, you know. If you're 4           lucky, you know, you run, run fast enough or 5           whatnot. He's going to let me go. So, he was 6           saying, this is at the very end. He says he 7           has 19 bullets. He's going to kill the first, 8           whatever people he sees then he, then take his 9           life, (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1649).

10           Ms. Carter denied that either of them ingested any alcohol 11           or drugs during the time that they were together (ROA, vol. 9, p.
12           1676). However, she did admit that at the time she was into using 13           drugs and had been convicted of a drug offense in Oregon at age 14           eighteen (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1621). She had taken methamphetamine 15           earlier that morning and was still under the influence of the drug 16           while at Defendant's house (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1702).

17           On cross-examination, the witness acknowledged that in her 18           statement of June 6th, she had made no mention of Defendant saying 19           that he wanted to know what it was like to kill (ROA, vol. 9, pp.
20           1711-12). The witness made an in-court identification of Defendant 21           (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1725-26).

22           Linda Ebbert, a registered nurse at University Medical 23           Center, testified that shortly after midnight on June 5th, she 24           performed a sexual assault examination on Tracie Carter, some 42 to 25           43 hours after the alleged assault (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1740-41).
26           Describing Ms. Carter's demeanor, the witness told the jury : "She 27           was very anxious. She appeared frightened. She was a bit 28           uncooperative at times during her examination, and she was also 29           rather hostile." (ROA, vol. 9, p. 1740).

30           The nurse noted that there was no trauma to the vaginal 31           area or orally, but that there was irritation around the entire 32           sphincter of the rectum, including a slight tearing, which would

1 have been consistent with rectal penetration (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1742-2 43).

3 Crime scene analyst, Maria Thomas, was present when a 4 second search warrant was served at the Floyd residence on June 5th.
5 At that time, she impounded a shirt and Vaseline bottle located 6 underneath a bed. Videos bearing apparently pornographic titles 7 were also removed from the residence (ROA, vol. 9, pp. 1747-51).

8 Dr. Gary Telgenhoff, a forensic pathologist and deputy 9 medical examiner for the Clark County Coroner's Office, testified 10 that he performed autopsies on the bodies of Dennis Troy Sargent and 11 Lucille Tarantino. Mr. Sargent died as a result of penetrating 12 gunshot wounds to the chest; and Ms. Tarantino died of a shotgun 13 wound to the head (ROA, vol. 10, pp. 1923, 1927 & 1930).

14 Dr. Lary Simms performed autopsies on Chuck Leos and 15 Thomas Darnell. Mr. Leos' cause of death was multiple gunshot 16 wounds. Mr. Darnell died of a shotgun wound to the back (ROA, vol.
17 10, pp. 1935 & 1937-40).

18 Officer Christopher Catanese was one of the officers who 19 arrested Defendant and placed him in the back seat of a patrol car.
20 Once so situated, Officer Catanese took a tape recorded statement 21 from Zane Floyd (ROA, vol. 10, pp. 1954-55). The witness noted that 22 Defendant smelled of alcohol, but did not stagger nor slur his 23 speech (ROA, vol. 10, p. 1958). A tape recording of the interview 24 was played for the jury (ROA, vol. 10, p. 1963). On cross-25 examination, the witness acknowledged that Defendant mentioned that 26 he had been drinking Jack Daniels; and stated, "Why did I shoot 27 those people?" "I don't know why." (ROA, vol. 10, pp. 1966-67). At 28 times during the interview, Officer Catanese would tell Defendant to 1 "relax" or "It's all right, Zane." Describing what was going on at 2 these times, the witness recounted:

3           He was at a point where he was 4 hyperventilating. He was excitable. The 5 adrenalin rush of being in a shooting or a 6 catastrophic incident. He built up and built 7 up and built up and got to a point where he was 8 almost hyperventilating. I needed to calm him 9 down. I didn't want him to hurt himself or go 10 into a seizure or heart attack. (ROA, vol. 10, 11 p. 1968).

12           Officer Paul Bigham conducted a seconded recorded 13 interview with Defendant once at the Clark County Detention Center.
14 (ROA, vol. 10, pp. 1974-75). This tape was also played for the 15 jury (ROA, vol. 10, p. 1979).

16           The jury returned guilty verdicts on all counts, including 17 four counts of first degree murder with use of a deadly weapon. A 18 penalty hearing was subsequently convened.

19           Rene Sanchez, who was employed by Pacific Floral Services
20 and inside the Albertson's store on June 3rd gave penalty hearing 21 testimony that she is affected by the incident every day and that 22 the image never leaves her mind. She said that she had not slept 23 one full night since the day of the shootings, and had been put on 24 antidepressants and high blood pressure medication (ROA, vol. 11, p.
25 2052). Shari Seech, an Albertson's employee, told the jury that 26 after the incident she couldn't sleep in the dark for a long time, 27 and that she will be at work and just begin crying thinking about it 28 (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2059). A family member of each of the decedents also gave victim-impact testimony at the penalty hearing.

          Carolyn Smith, a neighbor of the Floyd family, was called as a defense witness at the penalty hearing. She testified that she had known the Floyd's from the time they first moved to Las Vegas,

1 and lived by them for two or three years (ROA, vol. 11, pp. 2109-
2 10). She added, "[m]y daughter is an only child and Zane was like 3 a big brother to her, so they played together sometimes. When he 4 was older sometimes he would watch her for us." (ROA, vol. 11, p.
5 2112). When asked if Zane had ever exhibited any violence toward 6 her daughter, Mrs. Smith replied, "No, actually just the opposite, 7 he was like just a big teddy bear with her." (ROA, vol. 11, p.
8 2115).

9           Jorge Abreu, a clinical social worker and psychoanalyst, 10 testified that his employer, Alfonso Associates, had been hired by 11 the defense to conduct a psychosocial evaluation of Defendant Zane 12 Floyd (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2127). He noted that many of the people in 13 Floyd's family had alcohol and substance abuse problems (ROA, vol.
14 11, p. 2131). His mother, Valerie Floyd used alcohol and marijuana 15 and then moved on to LSD, reporting having done more than a hundred 16 LSD trips. Her drug of choice was basically alcohol (ROA, vol. 11, 17 p. 2134). It was also reported that there were many domestic 18 violence episodes (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2135). Many details were 19 missing from the mother's historical account of her life because by 20 age 22 she had become so depressed that she was admitted to a 21 psychiatric hospital in which electroconvulsive therapy was 22 administered, resulting in the side-effect of a loss of memory (ROA, 23 vol. 11, p. 2139). Michael Floyd married Valerie before Zane's 24 third birthday and had adopted the boy by age four (ROA, vol. 11, p.
25 2142). The witness also mentioned that Zane was held back to repeat 26 the second grade (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2146). By age thirteen, Zane 27 continued having problems with concentration and with doing 28 homework. There was also fighting in the home and domestic violence

1 (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2147). On one particular occasion, Zane witnessed
2 Mike Floyd head-butt the boy's mother. Also, by age thirteen, Zane 3 had seen Mike throw his mother through a wall and threaten to get 4 the shotgun and kill her. This incident resulted in Mike Floyd's 5 arrest (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2150). The witness also reported that by 6 age fifteen Defendant had begun drinking, and that he was using 7 drugs, including methamphetamines, at age sixteen (ROA, vol. 11, p.
8 2151). Additionally, Defendant had been expelled from public school 9 because of suspected drug use and for fighting on a school bus (ROA, 10 vol. 11, p. 2152).

11           At age seventeen, Zane enlisted in the Marine Corps. (ROA, 12 vol. 11, p. 2153). A devastating blow in his life came at age 13 twenty-two when he attempted to contact his biological father with 14 the result that his father refused any contact (ROA, vol. 11, p.
15 2160). After having problems with alcohol in the Marine Corps., he 16 was offered an honorable discharge, if he promised not to reenlist.
17 In fact, he was told that he would not be able to reenlist (ROA, 18 vol. 11, p. 2161). Zane was very frustrated with having to come 19 home from the military and live with his parents. He had been a 20 Marine, and should have been able to be on his own. However, 21 because of a driving under the influence incident, he did not have 22 a driver's license, and was quite dependent at that point. (ROA, 23 vol. 11, p. 2162). Shortly after beginning a job at Costco, he was 24 terminated (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2163).

25           The witness also referenced the following series of 26 events: Zane learned that his best friend, Robert J. Hall, was gay 27 and was living with a lover. Zane felt very betrayed by this. The 28 same week he learned this, he purchased the shotgun. Zane obtained

1 employment as a security guard, but a discrepancy regarding pay led 2 to the job being terminated in May of 1999. That same month, his 3 closest cousin, Clayton Hodson, was killed. Zane's mother described 4 him as being "intensely stricken" by this loss (ROA, vol. 11, pp.
5 2163-65). The psychoanalyst added that he did not get the 6 impression that Zane was fabricating as he spoke of the above-7 described events (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2174).

8 Dr. Norton Roitman, psychiatrist, testified that Zane 9 Floyd was referred to him by a neurologist who was treating him for 10 attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ROA, vol. 12, pp. 2182-11 83). His evaluation of Zane revealed that "in his case there was 12 plenty to suggest learning disabilities, home trouble, a residual 13 depression and anxiety." (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2193).

14 Laurel Lane worked with Zane at Costco. She told the jury 15 that everyone loved working with him (ROA, vol. 12, pp. 2213-14).
16 Floyd had never talked to her about any violent-type fantasies, and 17 she never saw him act violently toward others (ROA, vol. 12, p.
18 2219). During the first three months of 1999, when she would pick 19 him up for work, Ms. Lane noticed that Zane "would look really bad" 20 and suspected that he had been doing a lot of drugs (ROA, vol. 12, 21 pp. 2215-17). When she saw him on television after the Albertson's 22 incident, she did not recognize him. The next day, she visited him 23 in jail. "He was just like a zombie. . . he was just in like total 24 shock." She further described him as being nonresponsive and out of 25 it. "It was really scary. It wasn't even him." (ROA, vol. 12, pp.
26 2218-20).

27 Brian Miller was in the Marine Corps. with Zane. The two 28 served together as instructors in combat skills training school

1 (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2227). He described Zane as being good at 2 teaching the students, and as being happy, having a good sense of 3 humor (ROA, vol. 12, pp. 2230-31). He added that the two of them
4 would drink a lot together, starting on Friday and continuing all 5 day Saturday (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2232). Miller offered the following 6 insights into Defendant's character:

7           We always said if we kept Zane in the 8           field, he would be a perfect Marine. . .[H]e 9           didn't do well when he was on his own. Like out at the barracks or out in the town, he just didn't do well.

10 When he was acting as one of those in charge of students, he would 11 take the responsibility and do a good job (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2236).

12           Robert Hall met Zane when he was eleven or twelve years 13 old. The two attended junior high school together for six months, 14 but maintained their friendship even after Hall had moved away.
15 While in the same school, they would walk home together. They spent 16 a lot of time at Zane's house (ROA, vol. 12, pp. 2252-2255). "[W]e 17 hung out and played basketball." (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2253). Hall 18 recounted that the two of them started doing drugs at age fifteen or 19 sixteen, smoking a lot of marijuana and using a lot of 20 methamphetamine (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2256). With alcohol available at 21 Mike and Valerie Floyd's house, the two youths were also drinking 22 (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2257). The witness went on to explain that he 23 would see Valerie drunk; and that on Zane's sixteenth birthday, "a 24 few of us got kind of plastered" participating in drinking games 25 that Mike Floyd, Defendant's adoptive father, was in charge of 26 conducting (ROA, vol. 12, pp. 2261-62).

27           When Zane returned from the Marines, he was still 28 drinking, but was not using marijuana or methamphetamines. In 1 Hall's company, Zane returned to heavy use of these drugs. He would 2 go to work, but at the same time would go for three, four or five 3 day stints without sleep because of the drug use (ROA, vol. 12, pp.

4 2273-74). Floyd seemed more obsessed with firearms after his 5 service in the Marines (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2275).

6 Michael Floyd, Defendant's adoptive father, testified that 7 Zane had behavioral problems when the family lived in Colorado. He 8 was taken out of public school and placed in a private school. Zane 9 continued to have problems in school after the family had moved to 10 California. According to the witness, "[h]e would blow up in class 11 from frustration. He would scream, run sentences together." (ROA, 12 vol. 12, p. 2287). Mr. Floyd added that Zane's mother was way over-13 protective of the boy, attributing this attitude to the fact that 14 her first child had died (ROA, vol. 12, p. 2291).

15 Defendant hereby incorporates by reference all additional 16 facts initially referenced in the argument portion of this brief.

17 ARGUMENT

18 I.

19 THE TRIAL COURT COMMITTED CONSTITUTIONAL ERROR 20 IN DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SEVER COUNTS FOR TRIAL.

21 The trial court committed constitutional error in denying 22 Defendant's motion to sever counts, in which separate trials were 23 sought for the two distinct criminal episodes here involved.

24 The Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution, 25 made applicable to the States by the Fourteenth Amendment, provides 26 that no person shall be deprived of liberty without due process of 27 law. The Due Process Clause requires that . . . "criminal 28 prosecutions must comport with prevailing notions of fundamental

1 fairness." California v. Trombetta, 467 U.S. 479, 485 (1984). This 2 Court has interpreted that due process right to include "the right
3 to a fair opportunity to defend against the State's accusations."
4 Brown v. State, 107 Nev. 164, 167, 807 P.2d 1379 (1991). In the 5 case at bar, the trial court's failure to grant Defendant's motion 6 to sever the trial of the kidnapping and sexual assault counts from 7 that of the unrelated murder counts, deprived Defendant of a fair 8 opportunity to defend against the State's allegations, thereby 9 denying him his constitutional right to a fair trial under the Due 10 Process Clause.

11           NRS 173.115, allows charges to be joined in certain 12 circumstances:

13           Two or more offenses may be charged in the same 14 indictment or information in a separate count 15 for each offense if the offenses charged, 16 whether felonies or misdemeanors or both, are: 17           1. Based on the same act or transaction; or 2. Based on two or more acts or transactions connected together or constituting parts of a common scheme or plan.

18 NRS 174.165(1), however, outlines limitations to joining offenses:

19           If it appears that a defendant or the State of 20 Nevada is prejudiced by a joinder of offenses 21 or of defendants in an indictment or 22 information, or by such joinder for trial 23 together, the court may order an election or 24 separate trials of the counts, grant a 25 severance of defendants or provide whatever 26 other relief justice requires.

24           In the case at bar, Defendant was prejudiced by the 25 joinder of offenses for trial. The impact of that prejudice 26 significantly increased since the State was seeking the death 27 penalty in the case. Ensuring a fair jury necessitates eliminating 28 . . .

1 any undue prejudice if it can be handled in some other forum, i.e.
2 a separate trial.

3           The Supreme Court of California propounded the following 4 standard for deciding whether a severance motion is appropriate:

5           When a trial court considering a defendant's motion 6 for severance of unrelated counts has determined that the 7 evidence of the joined offenses is not "cross-admissible," 8 it must then assess the relative strength of the evidence 9 as to each group of severable counts and weigh the 10 potential impact of the jury's consideration of "other 11 crime" evidence. I.e., the court must assess the 12 likelihood that a jury not otherwise convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt of one or more of the charged offenses might permit the knowledge of the defendant's other criminal activity to tip the balance and convict him. (Citation omitted). If the court finds a likelihood that this may occur, severance should be granted.

13 People v. Bean, 760 P.2d 996, 1006 (Cal. 1988).

14           In the instant case, there is little question that the 15 Defendant was prejudiced in the manner contemplated by the Bean 16 Court, as a result of the failure to sever. First, there was 17 nothing suggestive of the fact that the offenses were "cross-18 admissible". These offenses were totally different actions, 19 committed at two different locations. The sexual assault charges 20 existed independent of the murder and burglary charges. The State 21 did not need one incident to prove the other. Moreover, there was 22 nothing unique about the manner in which they occurred. The 23 Defendant was identified by store employees, was on video 24 surveillance at the store and was stopped as he exited the store 25 with the gun in his hand. Thus, the prosecution certainly did not 26 need the exotic dancer, Tracie Carter, to identify the Defendant.
27 If, however, she were needed for identification, the sexual assault 28 . . .

1 counts could still be tried separately, with the witness testifying 2 in a limited fashion.

3           The Nevada Supreme Court has considered severance of 4 counts on prior occasions. One recent opinion is Brown v. State, 5 114 Nev. 1118, 967 P.2d 1126 (1998), wherein the Nevada Supreme 6 Court held that ex-felon in possession of a firearm charges must be 7 severed from other counts in order to ". . . ensure fairness and 8 avoid prejudice to the defendant."

9           The Nevada Supreme Court's earlier opinion in Fairman v. State, 10 83 Nev.137, 425 P.2d 342 (1967) is also noteworthy. In Fairman, a 11 police informer arranged to purchase marijuana from Fairman on two 12 occasions. On the first occasion, the informer contacted Fairman 13 at a Las Vegas hotel. Fairman then drove the informant to a house, 14 obtained some marijuana, then sold the marijuana to the informant 15 for five dollars. A few days later, the identical series of events 16 was repeated. Fairman went to trial on, and was convicted of, two 17 counts of sale of a controlled substance. Id.

18           The Fairman Court held that joinder of the two offenses 19 was inappropriate, stating that: ". . . evidence of the 20 perpetration of distinct crimes from those for which a defendant is 21 being tried will not be considered [by the trier of fact]." Id. at 22 139 (quoting State v. McFarlin, 41 Nev. 486, 172 P. 371 (1918)).
23 The Court held that Fairman's alleged drug transactions did not 24 constitute a "common scheme or plan," (an exception to the rule) and 25 accordingly, should not have been adjudicated together. The Court 26 further reasoned that, although the two transactions were "similar 27 in plan or modus operandi," they were separate and different acts 28 which could be proven independently of one another. Id.

1 In the case at bar, we not only have two crimes that can 2 be proven independently of one another, but also two 3 crimes/incidents that are totally distinct and different from one 4 another. If it is improper to try two identically perpetrated drug 5 sale counts together, clearly the crimes alleged in this case 6 warranted severance.

7 The multiple unrelated charges were replete with unfair 8 prejudice to the Defendant. The door was opened for the jury to 9 infer that if the Defendant committed the murders then he committed 10 the sexual assaults or vice versa. This is exactly what NRS 48.045 11 was designed to prevent. A jury hearing evidence on all of the 12 charges, at the same time, would be hard-pressed to disregard the 13 highly inflammatory sexual assault charges from the emotionally-14 charged murder counts. If admissible at all, any such "bad act" 15 evidence should have been allowed only to rebut a defense alleging 16 mistake, erroneous identification, etc. No such defenses were 17 offered.

18 The Supreme Court of Montana has given further guidance by 19 articulating the possible prejudice to a defendant when offenses are 20 joined for trial:

21 The first kind of prejudice results
22 when the jury considers a person facing 23 multiple charges to be a bad man and tends to 24 accumulate evidence against him until it finds 25 him guilty of something. The second type of 26 prejudice manifests itself when proof of guilt 27 on the first count in an information is used to convict the defendant of a second count even though the proof would be inadmissible at a separate trial on the second count. The third kind of prejudice occurs when the defendant wishes to testify on his own behalf on one charge but not on another.

28 State v. Campbell, 615 P.2d 190, 198 (Mont. 1980).

1 Defendant's case falls into the prejudicial areas noted 2 above. The Defendant faced a jury deciding not only guilt or 3 innocence, but also life or death. Having been forced to go to trial 4 on the kidnaping and sexual assault charges, at the same time as the 5 burglary and murder charges, the jury was likely prejudiced by 6 multiple violent charges of an unrelated nature, thus causing them
7 to see the Defendant as a "bad man" versus looking at the evidence 8 itself. It is highly likely that this affected the jury's ability 9 to make a fair decision in the case.

10 Moreover, if the jury was going to convict the Defendant 11 of the murder counts, they would be much more likely to just throw 12 in the "less serious" charges of sexual assault, under the Campbell 13 decision's line of reasoning. (See also Drew v. United States, 118 14 U.S. App. D.C. 11, 331 F.2d 85, 88 (D.C. Cir. 1964) wherein the 15 court acknowledges that with multiple charges, ". . . a jury may 16 cumulate the evidence of the various crimes charged and find guilt 17 when, if considered separately, it would not so find. . . .")

18 Based upon the trial court's constitutional error in 19 failing to grant Defendant's motion to sever counts, the judgment of 20 conviction must be vacated and the case remanded for conducting of 21 a new trial.

22 II.

23 THE TRIAL COURT COMMITTED CONSTITUTIONAL ERROR 24 IN DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR A CHANGE OF VENUE.

25 Defendant filed a pre-trial motion for change of venue
26 (ROA, vol. 1, pp. 207-241; vol. 2, pp. 447-464). The trial court 27 committed constitutional error in denying that motion.

28 . . .

1           In addition to the police arriving at the Albertson's 2 market scene, the news media had also been alerted to the shootings.
3 As the Defendant exited the store, the cameras captured him on video 4 and continued to film the entire incident from that point on. Those 5 video clips were shown on local news stations that day and on 6 subsequent days.

7           The media followed the story extensively. As of the date 8 that Defendant's motion for change of venue was filed, approximately 9 forty-seven news articles had appeared in local newspapers.
10 Summaries and excerpts from these articles were included in the 11 exhibits attached to Defendant's motion. Additionally, more than 12 seventy-nine television news spots highlighted the case. Again, 13 listings of these broadcasts were contained in the exhibits 14 accompanying the motion. The news media successfully petitioned the 15 justice court to allow a live video feed of gavel-to-gavel coverage 16 of the preliminary hearing. After exhausting all appellate 17 remedies, to no avail, Defendant was forced to waive the preliminary 18 hearing in order to avoid the live feed broadcast.

19           Media coverage included photographs, articles on the 20 victims of the shootings, interviews with individuals who knew the 21 Defendant, coverage of in-court proceedings, pending motions, 22 comments by prosecutors and defense attorneys, and interviews and 23 analyses of counselors and psychiatrists as to "how this could have 24 all happened."

25           Pursuant to NRS 174.455, the place of a trial may be 26 changed ". . .on the ground that a fair and impartial trial cannot 27 be had in the county where the indictment, information or complaint 28 is pending." Where the defendant meets this burden of showing that

1 a fair and impartial trial cannot be held in the county, the 2 defendant is entitled to a change of venue. See, Hale & Norcorss 3 Gold & Silver Mining Co. v. Bajazette & Golden Era G. & S. M. Co., 4 1 Nev. 322 (1865).

5           The preeminent issue in a motion seeking a 6           transfer of trial site is whether the ambiance 7           of the place of the forum has been so 8           thoroughly perverted that the constitutional 9           imperative of a fair and impartial panel of 10          jurors has been unattainable.

11 Ford v. State, 102 Nev. 126, 129, 717 P.2d 27 (1986). Additionally, 12 the trial should be moved to a location where it is clear that the 13 jury would not be intimidated by the public furor. State v.
14 Millain, 3 Nev. 409 (1867).

15           In Corona v. Superior Court, 24 Cal.App.3d 872, 877-79, 16 101 Cal.Rptr. 411 (Cal.App.3d Dist. 1972), the court found that an 17 honest juror may admit knowledge, or even a prejudgment, and find 18 himself excluded. Other jurors will sincerely try to set aside 19 their preconceptions and give assurances of impartiality. The Court 20 recognized, however, that subconsciously, the jurors will be 21 influenced by the initial impressions gained from the news media.

22           The message from the California courts is clear: in an age 23 of pervasive mass communications, trial courts can no longer look to 24 judicial admonitions as a cure to prejudicial pretrial publicity.
25 The conclusion is also clear that, notwithstanding the usual sincere 26 expressions by prospective jurors that they can not only sincerely 27 "put aside" prejudgments, but affirmatively sit throughout the trial 28 with the presumption of innocence, it is unrealistic to expect that any normal human being will be able to do that. In this case, in particular, the Defendant contends that the voluminous news articles

1 and television spots on this case establish the unrealistic nature 2 of these expectations, and that an unbiased verdict, could not be 3 reasonably expected in Clark County. Accordingly, the granting of 4 a change of venue was required.

5         The fair trial right protected by the change of venue 6 statute is a fundamental right guaranteed by the Sixth and 7 Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and by the 8 Nevada Constitution. As a matter of constitutional law, it is well 9 settled that the accused is entitled to a change of venue if he 10 produces evidence of "inflammatory, prejudicial pretrial publicity 11 that so pervades or saturates the community as to render virtually 12 impossible a fair trial by an impartial jury drawn from that 13 community, [since jury] `prejudice is [then] presumed and there is 14 no further duty to establish bias.'" Coleman v. Zant, 708 F.2d 541, 15 544 (11th Cir. 1983) (quoting Mayola v. Alabama, 623 F.2d 992, 997 16 (5th Cir. 1980), cert. denied, 451 U.S. 913 (1981)).

17         It is equally well settled that a change of venue is 18 constitutionally required when it is demonstrated that jurors called 19 for the case entertain an opinion on guilt or punishment and are 20 unable to lay aside their opinions and render a verdict based on the 21 evidence. See Irvin v. Dowd, 366 U.S. 717, 723, 727 (1961); Coleman 22 v. Zant, 708 F.2d at 544; Ross v. Hopper, 716 F.2d 1528, 1541 (11th 23 Cir. 1983), modified on other grounds, 756 F.2d 1483 (1985) (en 24 banc), remanded on other grounds, 785 F.2d 1467 (1986). The 25 Fourteenth Amendment's due process clause safeguards a defendant's 26 Sixth Amendment right to be tried by "a panel of impartial, 27 `indifferent' jurors." Irvin v. Dowd, 366 U.S. at 722. When 28 prejudicial pretrial publicity or an inflamed community atmosphere

1 precludes seating an impartial jury, due process requires the trial 2 court to grant a defendant's motion for a change of venue. Rideau 3 v. Louisiana, 373 U.S. 723 (1963). Where there has been such 4 prejudicial pretrial publicity, voir dire is not adequate to protect 5 the accused's right to a fair trial by an impartial jury. See 6 Coleman v. Kemp, 778 F.2d 1487, 1542 (11th Cir. 1985).

7           In the context of a death penalty case, the principle that 8 a defendant is entitled to a fair and impartial jury takes on 9 additional importance because of Eighth Amendment considerations.
10 The jury not only decides the issue of the guilt or innocence of the 11 defendant, but, if he is found guilty, will also decide whether he 12 should live or die. Id. at 1541; Woodson v. North Carolina, 428
13 U.S. 280, 305 (1976); Gardner v. Florida, 430 U.S. 349, 357-58 14 (1977).

15           In the case at bar, the charged crimes ignited community 16 shock, fear and indignation. The fact that these shootings took 17 place in an "average neighborhood", at a public place, namely a 18 supermarket, caused the media to pay much closer attention to the 19 event and to give much more media coverage than with other 20 shootings. The publicity made the members of the community so aware 21 of the alleged circumstances that an impartial jury could not be 22 obtained.

23           Media coverage included front page pictures, feature 24 stories, and in depth analyses about how service in the Marine Corps 25 does or does not affect a person. Defendant's motion was 26 accompanied by an exhibit showing that media polls ranked the 27 shooting as the number five top story of the year.

28 . . .

1 Defendant argued to the trial court that the two largest 2 Clark County newspapers, the Las Vegas Sun and the Las Vegas Review 3 Journal, with a combined daily circulation of some 209,000 and 4 Sunday circulation of 222,000, blanketed the area with coverage of 5 the Zane Floyd case and related incidents and issues. As of the 6 filing date of Defendant's motion to change venue, approximately 7 twenty-eight articles had been printed in the Las Vegas Sun and 8 nineteen articles appeared in the Review Journal.

9 The case also received massive television news coverage.
10 In fact, media attention was so pervasive that Defendant was forced 11 to waive his preliminary hearing in order to avoid a live, gavel-to-12 gavel broadcast of the preliminary hearing. Defendant's motion 13 pointed out that more than seventy-nine news stories had been aired 14 locally; and at least one news channel, Channel 1, included the 15 Defendant walking in the store parking lot on their nightly 16 promotional spots.

17 The overwhelming impact of the media coverage was well 18 illustrated in a jury questionnaire for an unrelated death penalty 19 trial in 1999, the year before the trial in the case at bar. That 20 potential jury was asked to comment on the death penalty. One 21 prospective juror wrote: "They say it's not a deterrent but I 22 believe it is necessary but I don't think I could recommend it 23 unless it was beyond a shadow of a doubt, i.e. Albertsons 24 supermarket shooting." (ROA, vol. 1, p 236).

25 It is obvious that the pretrial publicity in this case was 26 prejudicial. Such unfair prejudice could not be cured during voir 27 dire to such an extent that the Defendant could be guaranteed his 28 constitutional entitlement to trial before a fair and impartial

1 jury, to confrontation of witnesses, and to a jury selected from a 2 fair cross-section of the community as guaranteed by the Sixth, 3 Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments. In light of these deficiencies, 4 the lower court committed constitutional error in denying 5 Defendant's motion for change of venue. Based upon that error, the 6 judgment of conviction must be vacated, and the case remanded to 7 district court for conducting of a new trial.

8 III.

9 THE TRIAL COURT COMMITTED CONSTITUTIONAL ERROR
10 IN DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS STATUTORY 11 AGGRAVATORS BASED ON A FAILURE TO FIND PROBABLE CAUSE 12 FOR EXISTENCE OF AGGRAVATING CIRCUMSTANCES.

13 State and federal constitutions require the State to 14 submit a criminal charge to a grand jury or to a neutral magistrate 15 for a finding of probable cause. Since that was not done in the 16 case at bar with regard to those allegations contained in the 17 State's notice of intent to seek the death penalty, that notice of 18 intent should have been dismissed or stricken. The trial court 19 committed constitutional error in denying Defendant's motion to 20 strike the notice of intent to seek the death penalty.

21 On June 25, 1999, the State filed in open court an Amended 22 Criminal Complaint charging Defendant with twelve felonies, 23 including four counts of murder with use of a deadly weapon..

24 No allegation was made in the criminal complaint filed in 25 justice court of any aggravating circumstances which, if supported 26 by a finding of probable cause by a magistrate and ultimately proven 27 beyond a reasonable doubt to a jury, could subject Defendant Floyd 28 to a sentence of death. The defense waived the preliminary hearing in this case, and the magistrate bound Defendant over to district

1 court to face trial on all the charges and facts alleged in the 2 Amended Criminal Complaint. The magistrate made no finding 3 supporting probable cause for any allegation of aggravating
4 circumstances.

5 The State subsequently filed, in district court, an 6 Information, Amended Information, and Second Amended Information.
7 The Second Amended Information repeated the allegations in the 8 Amended Criminal Complaint with the exception that one count of 9 attempted murder with use of a deadly weapon was abandoned by the 10 State.

11 The State also filed in district court a Notice of Intent 12 to Seek the Death Penalty, as mandated by Nevada Supreme Court 13 Rules, Rule 250. The Notice of Intent contained allegations of 14 aggravating circumstances which, if proven beyond a reasonable 15 doubt, could subject Defendant to the death penalty. In the absence 16 of the charged facts in the notice of intent, Mr. Floyd could only 17 face a maximum penalty of life in prison without the possibility of 18 parole.

19 The Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 20 Article 1, Section 8, of the Nevada Constitution provide that no 21 person shall be held to answer to criminal charges without a finding 22 of probable cause by a grand jury. The United States Supreme Court 23 has endorsed a probable cause finding by a neutral magistrate by way 24 of a preliminary hearing as a constitutionally permissible 25 alternative to a Grand Jury Indictment. See, Hurtado v. California, 26 110 U.S. 516 (1884) (upholding California's preliminary hearing 27 process against a due process challenge).

28 . . .

1           The preliminary hearing process in Nevada requires the 2 State to present legal evidence that a crime occurred and that the 3 charged Defendant committed the crime. Thedford v. Sheriff, 86 Nev.
4 741, 476 P.2d 25 (1970). If the State fails to meet that burden, 5 the case must be dismissed. NRS 171.206. The purpose of 6 requiring a probable cause finding is to ensure that a Defendant has 7 the benefit of a pre-trial review of the sufficiency of the evidence 8 before having to face the same charges at an actual trial. Issues 9 can be narrowed, and charges and allegations having no basis in fact 10 can be eliminated. The probable cause hearing process has been 11 characterized as a "shielding function" whereby individuals are 12 protected from vindictive prosecution by private enemies, political 13 partisans, or vindictive government officials. Hurtado v.
14 California, 110 U.S. at 555 (1984) (J. Harlan, dissenting).

15           In the event a criminal charge survives the probable cause 16 scrutiny of a grand jury or neutral magistrate, and the Defendant is 17 bound over to face a criminal charge in District Court, Nevada 18 procedure requires the State to file an Information or Indictment 19 containing a plain, concise, and definite written statement of the 20 essential facts constituting the offense charged. Sheriff v.
21 Levinson, 95 Nev. 436, 596 P.2d 232 (1979). In cases where the 22 allegations go beyond alleging a simple crime, and instead allege a 23 set of facts to which different statutes apply, the key inquiry is 24 what facts or allegations must ultimately be proven to a jury beyond 25 a reasonable doubt. For example, the allegation of "robbery with 26 use of a deadly weapon" must be alleged in the charging document, 27 and both the "robbery" and the "use of a deadly weapon" must 28 ultimately be proven to a jury for a conviction to occur. See,

1 e.g., Bartle v. Sheriff, 92 Nev. 459, 552 P.2d 1099 (1976)
2 (Magistrate was required to find some evidence supporting 3 enhancement as well as underlying crime, and Information must 4 reflect both allegations).

5 No Nevada statute or any interpretative opinion by the 6 Nevada Supreme Court has ever required that "sentencing factors" be 7 subjected to the same pre-trial scrutiny that applies to elements 8 of a criminal offense. Indeed, when this argument has been made in 9 the past, the Nevada Supreme Court has summarily rejected the 10 argument that "sentencing factors" such as aggravating circumstances 11 be subject to the same process. Schoels v. State, 114 Nev. 981, 966 12 P.2d 735 (1998) [overturned on other grounds by Schoels v. State, 13 115 Nev.Adv.Op.No. 8, 975 P.2d 1275 (1999)].

14 Nevada statutory law requiring allegations of "essential 15 facts" in the Information has only been applied to the "essential 16 facts" of the criminal offense, not to any "essential facts" 17 regarding sentencing.

18 Instead, Nevada Supreme Court Rule 250 allows the State to file 19 the notice of intent to seek the death penalty, thereby alleging the 20 aggravating circumstances, without any pre-trial scrutiny such as 21 would occur, if the allegation of the aggravating circumstances were 22 submitted to the grand jury or neutral magistrate for a finding of 23 probable cause. This procedure not only deprives the defense of the 24 opportunity of testing probable cause for the finding of aggravating 25 circumstances, but also deprives the defense of the opportunity to 26 challenge a magistrate's ruling using an actual record of testimony.

27 In light of recent decisions of the United States Supreme 28 Court, Nevada's Rule 250 notice of intent procedure must be deemed

1 unconstitutional, as violative of the Due Process Clause of the 2 Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. The United States Supreme Court, 3 in Jones v. United States, 526 U.S. 227 (1999), ruled that the Due 4 Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment and the Notice and Jury Trial 5 provisions of the Sixth Amendment require the State to allege any 6 fact (other than prior conviction) that increases the maximum 7 penalty for a crime in the Indictment and that fact must then be 8 tried before a jury and proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

9           The Supreme Court reiterated this holding in Apprendi v.
10 New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000). In Apprendi, the Court rejected 11 any distinction between "sentencing enhancements" and "elements of 12 the offense":

13           Any possible distinction between an "element" of 14 a felony offense and a "sentencing factor" was 15 unknown to the practice of criminal indictment, 16 trial by jury, and judgment by court-as it 17 existed during the years surrounding our 18 Nation's founding. As a general rule, criminal 19 proceedings were submitted to a jury after 20 being initiated by an indictment containing "all 21 the facts and circumstances which constitute 22 the offense,...stated with such certainty and 23 precision, that the defendant...may be enable to determine the species of offence they constitute, in order that he may prepare his defense accordingly . . . and that there may be no doubt as to the judgment which should be given, if the defendant is convicted.
[authority omitted]. The defendant's ability to predict with certainty the judgment from the face of the felony indictment flowed from the invariable linkage of punishment with crime..."

24 530 U.S. at 478.

25           Under Apprendi and Jones, the State must charge 26 aggravating circumstances in the criminal complaint or proposed 27 Indictment so there can be no doubt "as to the judgment which should 28 be given, if the defendant is convicted."

1 In the present case, it is undisputed that the State did 2 not allege aggravating circumstances in the complaint submitted to 3 the justice court. It is also undisputed that the magistrate bound 4 over the case to district court without any finding of aggravating 5 circumstances. Under Apprendi and Jones, the State's notice of 6 intent was a fugitive document and should have been dismissed, 7 leaving the State with the charges that were subjected to a finding 8 of probable cause, that being those charges contained in the Second 9 Amended Information.

10 Relying on the legal charges in the Second Amended 11 Information, which is devoid of any allegations of aggravating 12 circumstances, the defense submits that this case was not one which 13 allowed for jury consideration of the death penalty, there being no 14 probable cause finding of any aggravating circumstances.

15 The trial court committed constitutional error in allowing 16 the penalty-hearing jury to consider the death penalty as a possible 17 sentence. And the death penalty having been imposed by the jury, 18 the judgment of conviction must be reversed and the case remanded 19 for conducting of a new penalty hearing.

20 IV.

22 BY IMPROPERLY REQUIRING DEFENDANT TO DISCLOSE EXPERT 23 WITNESS TEST RESULTS AND ALLOWING THE STATE TO MAKE USE 24 OF THAT DATA IN PRESENTING PENALTY PHASE REBUTTAL EVIDENCE.

25 Defendant originally filed a notice of expert witnesses, 26 pursuant to NRS 174.234(2), which included the names of two 27 psychiatrists/psychologists (ROA, vol. 4, p. 778). Based upon this 28 notice, the State filed a motion to compel independent psychological/psychiatric examination of Defendant and requested

1 reciprocal discovery of the defense experts' reports (ROA, vol. 1, 2 p. 88). Over defense counsel's objection, the district court
3 ordered reciprocal discovery (ROA, vol. 4, p. 823). The trial court 4 also ordered independent examination of Defendant by psychologist 5 Louis Mortillaro and psychiatrist Thomas Bittker (ROA, vol. 4, pp.
6 880 & 882). Defendant subsequently filed a supplemental notice of 7 expert witness, naming neuropsychologist David L. Schmidt. This 8 notice was filed on June 13, 2000 (ROA, vol. 4, p. 863). Dr.
9 Schmidt administered some standardized psychological tests to 10 Defendant Floyd. Again, over defense counsel's objection, the trial 11 court ordered that Schmidt's report concerning his examination of 12 Defendant be provided to the State (ROA, vol. 4, p. 873). Pursuant 13 to this order, the report and testing materials were delivered to 14 the prosecution.

15           Note must be taken that Defendant did not pursue an 16 insanity defense at trial; and did not call Dr. Schmidt as a defense 17 witness. Not only was the forensic psychologist not called during 18 Defendant's case-in-chief, but he was not called as a rebuttal 19 witness nor during the penalty phase of trial. Indeed, prior to 20 trial defense counsel unendorsed Dr. Schmidt as an expert witness.
21 This occurred some two weeks after his report had been delivered to 22 the State pursuant to the lower court's reciprocal discovery order.

23           Dr. Schmidt never was called by either party as a trial 24 witness. During the penalty phase, the defense called psychologist 25 Edward Dougherty to testify. In rebuttal, the State called Dr.
26 Mortillaro to testify concerning his examination of Defendant and 27 the conclusions he had reached. The State's expert used the 28 standardized tests administered by Schmidt as part of the materials

1 that he reviewed. He also based his conclusions, in part, upon this 2 testing; and, explained the testing in his penalty phase rebuttal
3 testimony. All of this testimony was given over defense counsel's 4 objection. The district court reviewed the issue prior to Dr.
5 Mortillaro testifying and specifically approved reliance upon and 6 reference to the Schmidt-administered tests. In so ruling, the 7 trial court committed constitutional error, depriving Defendant of 8 his Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment right to a fair trial, and 9 specifically contravening Nevada statutory authority.

10           The genesis of the problem lies in the lower court's 11 March 9, 2000 ruling that NRS 174.234(2) required disclosure of 12 defense experts' reports, regardless of whether that expert would be 13 testifying in defendant's case-in-chief, as a rebuttal witness, or 14 even at the penalty hearing. This interpretation, and the court's 15 resultant orders, are completely inconsistent with the law as set 16 forth in NRS 174.234(2). The trial court completely mis-read and 17 mis-applied the statute, rendering entirely too broad an 18 interpretation of its applicable scope. NRS 174.234(2) reads as 19 follows:

20           If the defendant will be tried for one or 21 more offenses that are punishable as a gross 22 misdemeanor or felony and a witness that a 23 party intends to call during the case in chief 24 of the state or during the case in chief of the 25 defendant is expected to offer testimony as an expert witness, the party who intends to call that witness shall file and serve upon the opposing party, not less than 21 days before trial or at such other time as the court directs, a written notice containing:

26           (a) A brief statement regarding the subject matter on which the expert witness is 27 expected to testify and the substance of his testimony;

28           (b) A copy of the curriculum vitae of the expert witness; and

          (c) A copy of all reports made by or at

1 the direction of the expert witness. (Emphasis 2 added).

3 The statute says nothing of witnesses who the defense 4 intends to call on rebuttal or at the penalty hearing, instead 5 making a very specific and limited reference to "case-in-chief"
6 witnesses. Nevertheless, the trial court disregarded and completely 7 contravened the statutory language, with its improper order. The 8 trial judge's intent is readily apparent in the following quote from 9 the district court proceedings on March 9, 2000:

10 THE COURT: Okay. By the 18th of April, 11 you write these people, say you want at least a 12 report giving everything that they have.
13 That's about six weeks from now, that you're 14 going to have to turn it over to the State.
15 I'm going to order at that time if you have any 16 intention at all of putting this person on or 17 any other persons having to do with his mental 18 status at either the case-in-chief or the 19 rebuttal, I'm going to, probably, at that time, 20 order an independent psychiatric.

21 If you want to address - either one of you 22 - through further authorities before that date 23 by at least two days so I can read it, the 24 proposition of whether I have authority to do 25 it, I'll be glad to read it.

26 MR. BROWN: You had indicated "case-in-27 chief," or "rebuttal." Were you meaning 28 penalty?

THE COURT: Right.

MR. BROWN: Okay.

THE COURT: Okay, so we'll see you on April the?

THE CLERK: 18th.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. KOOT: Is the Court ordering them to produce everything?

THE COURT: Yes. (ROA, vol. 4, p. 821).

24 The court's written Order of June 15, 2000 specifically 25 mandated that, "Dr. Schmidt shall have a written report completed on 26 or before Thursday, June 15, 2000, a copy of which shall be 27 provided, before the close of business on June 15, 2000, to District
28 Attorney Stewart L. Bell and/or Chief Deputy District Attorney

1 William Koot, along with all back up and testing materials." (ROA, 2 vol. 4, pp. 873-74). Although the above-quoted hearing was 3 conducted on March 9, 2000, prior to the time of Dr. Schmidt's 4 endorsement, the court's ruling did reference the originally noticed 5 defense expert witnesses, and established the law of the case as to 6 reciprocal discovery to be given the State relevant to any defense 7 mental status witness, including the subsequently endorsed Dr.
8 Schmidt.

9           The court's order not only violated the reciprocal 10 discovery statute, but also improperly infringed upon the attorney-11 client privilege. The work product doctrine shelters the mental 12 processes of the attorney, providing a privileged area within which 13 he can analyze and prepare his client's case. Lisle v. State, 113 14 Nev. 679, 941 P.2d 459 (1997).

15           In this case, if the defense had never endorsed Dr.
16 Schmidt, then the defense would not have been required to turn over 17 his tests. If the defense were not going to use a particular 18 witness, the State is not entitled to have any information obtained 19 by that witness. Thus, when the defense unendorsed Dr. Schmidt, it 20 should have been as if he never existed at all, hence, creating a 21 logical impossibility to obtain a test which theoretically did not 22 exist.

23           The State made the argument, "Well, we already have the 24 tests results so we get to use them". However, due process requires 25 information to be obtained legally; and that parties follow the 26 rules of discovery. When information is obtained outside the 27 parameters set up by statute or constitution, such information is 28 inadmissible. Just because the State acquired the tests results of 1 Dr. Schmidt when the defense thought he was going to be used as a 2 witness, does not entitle them to use that information once he 3 became an unendorsed defense witness. The State is required to 4 treat that information as if it never existed.

5 The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals addressed a similar issue in 6 Smith v. McCormick, 914 F.2d 1153 (9th Cir. 1990). In agreeing with 7 the above line of reasoning, the 9th Circuit cited United States v.
8 Kovel, 296 F.2d 918 (2d Cir. 1961), stating, "disclosures made to 9 the attorney's expert should be equally unavailable, at least until 10 he is placed on the witness stand. The attorney must be free to make 11 an informed judgment with respect to the best course for the defense 12 without the inhibition of creating a potential government witness".
13 Smith v. McCormick, 914 F.2d at 1159.

15 We agree with the Third Circuit that 16 a defendant's communication with her 17 psychiatrist is protected up to the point of testimonial use of that communication.

18 See also, United States v. Nobles, 422 U.S. 225, 240 n.15 19 (1975) (order to disclose defense investigator's report "resulted 20 from [defendant's] voluntary election to make testimonial use of 21 [the] report"); United States v. Talley, 790 F.2d 1468, 1470-71 (9th
22 Cir. 1986) (recognizing "attorney-psychologist-client privilege" 23 based in common law). Confidentiality must apply not only to 24 psychiatric assistance at trial, but also to such assistance for 25 sentencing in capital cases, as cited in Smith v. McCormick, 914 26 F.2d at 1160.

27 The case law makes it abundantly clear that the use of Dr.
28 Schmidt's report by the State's witness in giving rebuttal testimony

1 at penalty phase was a violation of the due process rights of the 2 Defendant, and constituted an improper application of Nevada's
3 reciprocal discovery statute. Based upon the trial court's 4 erroneous orders, the judgment of conviction must be reversed and 5 the case remanded for conducting of a new penalty hearing.

6 V.

8 IN DENYING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO SUPPRESS 9 DEFENDANT'S STATEMENTS.

10 In the case at bar, it is abundantly clear that the 11 Defendant was not free to leave after being disarmed, taken into 12 custody and placed in the police vehicle. Therefore, prior to 13 questioning Defendant Floyd, Officer Catanese should have read the 14 Defendant his Miranda warnings. Miranda v. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436
15 (1966). For this reason, any statements made prior to a Miranda 16 warning being read, must be suppressed.

17 The remainder of the Defendant's statement's must be 18 suppressed as well because the Defendant did not make a knowing, 19 intelligent and voluntary waiver of his right to remain silent. The 20 State possesses the burden of proving, by a preponderance of the 21 evidence, that a confession was given freely and voluntarily. Lego 22 v. Twomey, 404 U.S. 477, 489 (1972); Scott v. State, 92 Nev. 552, 23 554, 554 P.2d 735, 736-37 (1976). In determining whether the State 24 has established voluntariness, the Court must look at the totality 25 of the circumstances. Boulden v. Holman, 394 U.S. 478, 480 (1969); 26 Franklin v. State, 96 Nev. 417, 421, 610 P.2d 732, 734-35 (1980).

27 The Supreme Court of the United States has held that "[a] 28 voluntary confession is inadmissible if the accused lacks the mental capacity to make a knowing and intelligent waiver of the right to 1 remain silent and the right to counsel during police interrogation."

2 Moran v. Burbine, 475 U.S. 412, 421 (1986). According to the 3 Supreme Court, in order for a waiver to be valid, it ". . . must 4 have been made with full awareness of both the nature of the right 5 being abandoned and the consequences of the decision to abandon it."
6 Id. In the case at bar, the video tape of the Defendant in the 7 parking lot, and the statements themselves, clearly indicate that 8 the Defendant was not in a normal emotional state, i.e. one which 9 would suggest a knowing, voluntary waiver. Once in custody, the 10 Defendant was immediately taken to a police vehicle where 11 questioning began. Although the Defendant answers "Yeah" to Officer 12 Catanese's question about understanding his rights, the Court must 13 look to the totality of circumstances to determine whether his 14 emotional state allowed a valid waiver. A reading of the many 15 nonresponsive statements made by the Defendant, reveals that the 16 Defendant's mind was racing all over the place. Evidence on point 17 is Officer Catanese testimony that during their interview, he had to 18 repeatedly tell Zane to "relax" because he would be hyperventilating, 19 was excitable, and had been subjected to an extreme adrenalin rush.
20 The officer felt the need to calm him down because "I didn't want 21 him to hurt himself or go into a seizure or heart attack." (ROA, 22 vol. 10, p. 1968). And yet, in spite of these concerns, the 23 interview continued. Such evidence tends to show that the 24 Defendant's waiver was not knowingly, intelligently and voluntarily 25 made.

26 Defendant maintains that the Court, in looking at the 27 totality of the circumstances, must also look to the fact that the 28 Defendant was intoxicated at the time the statements were made.

1 Police criminalist Minoru Aoki placed his blood alcohol level at 2 0.14 at the time of the shootings (ROA, vol. 8, pp. 1538 & 1540)
3 "Whether intoxication exists and is of a degree sufficient to 4 vitiate the voluntariness of the confession are questions of fact.
5 The admissibility of a confession is in the first instance a 6 question for the trial judge." State v. Rankin, 357 So.2d 803 (La 7 1978). While statements made under the influence of alcohol are not 8 per se involuntary, at some point in time, the degree of 9 intoxication could prohibit a defendant from acting voluntarily.
10 Blackburn v. Alabama, 361 U.S. 199, 211 (1960). The Court must 11 therefore look at the evidence and make a determination as to 12 whether the Defendant was intoxicated, and, if so, whether the 13 intoxication indicates that ". . . the confession most probably was 14 not the product of any meaningful act of volition." Id.

15 Accordingly, Defendant's statements to the Las Vegas 16 Metropolitan Police Department should have been suppressed. In 17 light of the trial court's constitutional error in failing to grant 18 Defendant's suppression motion, the judgment of conviction must be 19 vacated and the case remanded to district court for conducting of a 20 new trial.

21 VI.

22 PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT DURING CLOSING ARGUMENT 23 REQUIRES THAT A NEW TRIAL BE CONDUCTED.

24 The United States Constitution provides that accused 25 individuals in criminal prosecutions ". . . shall enjoy the right to 26 a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury . . . .". U.S.
27 Const. Amend VI. The Nevada Constitution grants the accused this 28 right to a jury trial as well. Nev. Const. Art. I, §3. The right

1 to an impartial jury means a jury free from prejudice in favor of or 2 against either party. Rains v. State, 83 Nev. 58, 422 P.2d 541
3 (1967); State v. McClear, 11 Nev. 39 (1876). If the trial court 4 finds, as a matter of law, that a defendant's trial was not free
5 from such prejudice, NRS 176.515 gives the trial judge the authority 6 to order a new trial.

7           On February 2, 2000, the Defendant Zane Michael Floyd, by 8 and through his counsel of record, respectfully requested, pursuant 9 to the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments to the 10 United States Constitution, and Article 1, of the Nevada 11 Constitution, an order prohibiting prosecutorial misconduct in 12 argument. The Court denied the motion indicating that such an 13 order is not necessary. Throughout the course of the trial, 14 however, the State engaged in conduct, resulting in multiple 15 violations of the due process rights of the Defendant.

16           The trial court has a duty to ensure that an accused 17 receives a fair trial, and to this end the Court must exercise its 18 discretionary power to control obvious prosecutorial misconduct sua 19 sponte. In reviewing a prosecutor's comments, the relevant inquiry 20 is whether the comments were so unfair that they deprived the 21 Defendant of due process of law. Witter v. State, 112 Nev. 908, 22 921 P.2d 886 (1996).

23           The Nevada Supreme Court has emphasized that a 24 prosecutor's primary duty is to see that justice is done, not simply 25 to convict a Defendant. Williams v. State, 103 Nev. 106, 734 P.2d 26 700 (1987); "The prosecutor represents the State and has a duty to 27 see that justice is done in a criminal prosecution." Jimenez v.
28 State, 112 Nev. 610, 918 P.2d 687, 692 (1996).

1 Misconduct by a prosecutor in closing argument may be 2 grounds for reversing a conviction. Berger v. United States, 295
3 U.S. 78, 55 S.Ct. 629 (1935). Prosecutorial misconduct requires 4 reversal when it denies a Defendant the right to a fair trial.
5 Jones v. State, 101 Nev. 573, 707 P.2d 1128 (1985).

6 In the case at bar, the prosecutor intentionally told the 7 jury during guilt phase closing arguments, that this was the "worst 8 massacre in the history of Las Vegas". (ROA, vol. 10, p. 1912).
9 The Court ruled that this statement was improper, giving the defense 10 the option of having the jury told to disregard that statement when 11 brought back into Court. The defense necessarily declined the 12 Court's offer in order to avoid having any attention brought to an 13 already prejudicial and inflammatory statement. (ROA, vol. 10, pp.
14 1915-16).

15 The most flagrant and outrageous case of prosecutorial 16 misconduct, in which the Defendant's due process rights were 17 unconstitutionally violated, occurred during the State's penalty 18 phase closing argument. In one remark, the District Attorney 19 stated, "If not this case, then when ever..." implying there would 20 never be an appropriate time for a juror to impose the death penalty 21 if they did not do it in this case. The State was deliberately 22 trying to dilute and down play the responsibility of the jury.

23 The State also made reference to how the Defendant would 24 be treated in prison if a death sentence was not imposed. The 25 specific remark was as follows: "They mention a 10 by 15 cell block.
26 Give me a break. He wants to be on the yard, he wants to play ball, 27 he wants to watch television, have three meals a day -" (ROA, vol.
28 14, p. 2667). This information was not in evidence and was

1 clearly meant to improperly manipulate the jury and deprive the 2 Defendant of his right to due process. Defense counsel objected , 3 and the trial court sustained the objection, instructing the jury 4 not to speculate about what conditions in prison would be. However, 5 the prejudice of the prosecutor's inflammatory remark goes beyond 6 that which could be corrected by a mere jury admonition.

7           This line of improper argument was furthered by the State 8 forcing the jury to compare the murders that took place in this 9 case, to death penalty decisions and murders being considered in 10 other cases. The prosecutor argued:

11                   When I speak about proportionality of 12 sentence, surely a quadruple murderer deserves 13 a greater punishment than those who have 14 murdered only once, than those who have murdered only twice, or three times, or those who have not murdered at all or raped at all.
(ROA, vol. 14, p. 2668).

15           Defense counsel objected: "This goes beyond the idea of 16 individualized sentencing by clumping all murderers into a group 17 together. It's clearly against the mandates of the Supreme Court 18 and the instruction that the jury has." (ROA, vol. 14, p. 2668).
19 The prosecutor did not even attempt to defend his grossly 20 inappropriate comment, conceding: "I'll move on, your Honor.". The 21 court sustained Defendant's objection.

22           This improper argument was particularly egregious in light 23 of the fact that the State was prosecuting a number of other death 24 penalty cases close in time to the case at bar, i.e. Hernandez and 25 Johnson. Note must be taken that the Floyd jury came back with its 26 death penalty verdict after the death penalty verdict in the 27 Hernandez trial was announced, wherein only one victim was killed.
28 . . . .

1           NRS 175.522(3) governs the admissibility of evidence in 2 the penalty phase of a capital trial. In pertinent part, that 3 statute provides:

4           In the hearing, evidence may be presented 5 concerning aggravating and mitigating 6 circumstances relative to the offense,
7 defendant or victim and on any other matter
8 which the court deems relevant to sentence, 9 whether or not the evidence is ordinarily 10 admissible.(emphasis added)

11           Defendant filed a motion to limit the extent of the victim 12 impact testimony to "one victim, one speaker," excluding testimony 13 from individuals who were not directly related to the deceased.
14 (ROA, vol. 5, 942-949). Although the defense argued that all 15 additional testimony (such as that from those hiding in the coolers 16 who were not hurt or injured in any way) would be cumulative and 17 overly prejudicial, the motion was denied.

18           The State allowed a witness to testify beyond the scope of 19 what is statutorily allowed during victim impact. The improper 20 comments came during the testimony of Mona Nall, which was objected 21 to by the defense, with the objection ultimately being 22 sustained.(ROA, vol. 11, p. 2087). Ms. Nall was encouraged to 23 describe prior acts of violence which were inflicted upon her son 24 and her family, completely unrelated to the incident involved in the 25 present trial. The State's witness testified as follows:

26           Tommy [Darnell] was coming home from work 27 at the bus stop and two thugs came up to him at 28 gun and knife point. They took his wallet.
Started off as a robbery, I was told, and they saw he had a local address, and they had cars, so they took and - they were transient people.
And they drove to our house arriving at about one o'clock in the morning. I was up and waiting for Tommy. And I saw him get out of the car, and I saw this one person holding onto

1 Tommy and Tommy was limping. He looked like he 2 was hurt. They came to the door and I let them in naturally - (ROA, vol. 11, p. 2087).

3 At this point, defense counsel objected to the relevance 4 of the testimony, and the court sustained the objection.
5 Nevertheless, the prosecutor continued eliciting details of this 6 totally unrelated incident. It came out that the family was held 7 hostage for some seven hours, and that the sixteen year old daughter 8 was repeatedly sexually assaulted. The court admonished the 9 prosecutor to get to something relevant. However, the State's 10 attorney went right back to this incident, bringing out that Tommy 11 had been held hostage by the kidnappers for over thirty days and was 12 finally released in the Utah desert. The witness included that the 13 abductors had tried to cut off his ears, and that the unrelated 14 incident had changed not only Tommy, but the entire family (ROA, 15 vol. 11, pp. 2087-89).

16 This testimony likely had an enormously prejudicial effect 17 on the jury, and only encouraged them to find someone to hold 18 responsible for prior suffering endured by this family.

19 Viewed individually, and cumulatively, with all the other 20 instances of prosecutorial misconduct during the penalty hearing, 21 the judgment of conviction must be vacated, and the case remanded to 22 district court for conducting of a new penalty hearing.

23 CONCLUSION

24 Based on constitutional errors of the trial court in 25 denying Defendant's motions to sever counts, to change venue, and to 26 suppress Defendant's statements; as well as prosecutorial misconduct 27 during closing arguments, the judgment of conviction must be 28 reversed and the case remanded for conducting of a new trial. In

1 the alternative, based up improprieties in the State's penalty phase 2 closing arguments, on the introduction of improper victim-impact 3 testimony, and the failure to establish probable cause for the 4 finding of aggravating circumstances in justice court, a new penalty 5 hearing must be conducted.
