I.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

A. NRS 617.440 IS INAPPLICABLE.

Claimant argues that if he cannot meet the qualifications for the presumptions outlined in NRS 617.453, then he is still entitled to file a claim pursuant to NRS 617.440. Claimant is incorrect that there is no ambiguity in the statute, and in fact his citations to the legislative history do nothing to support his position.

As pointed out by Claimant, the legislative digest accompanying Assembly Bill 496 recognizes that:

for some specific diseases, such as certain cancers, lung diseases, heart diseases, there is a legal presumption that those disease are compensable under the workers' compensation system when contracted under specific circumstances, such as when contracted by firefighters, police officers and emergency medical attendants.

Thus, the listed diseases are compensable under the workers' compensation system only when the specified circumstances are satisfied. Claimants cannot simply decide to file their claims under an entirely different statute if they cannot satisfy those circumstances.

Despite what Claimant argues, not only are the statutes open to interpretation, but his preferred interpretation is baseless when reviewing the legislative history.

B. THE APPEALS OFFICER APPLIED A PRESUMPTION TO CONCLUDE THIS CLAIM IS COMPENSABLE.

Claimant argues that he never attempted to file his claim under NRS 617.453, and that he intended instead to meet the burden of proof outlined in NRS 617.440. As noted above, NRS 617.440 is not applicable here. However, even if the statute could be considered applicable to this case, it is clear that the Appeals Officer did not require Claimant to meet the NRS 617.440 burden. Rather, despite the Appeals Officer's conclusion that Claimant was not entitled to a presumption, she actual needed to apply the presumption in order to reach the conclusion that she reached.

Dr. Melius essentially admitted that his opinion regarding causation was based solely on Claimant's occupation. According to Dr. Melius, the combination of chemicals to which firefighters are generally exposed "might be" the cause of Claimant's cancer. In other words, if Dr.

1 Melius had not been advised of Claimant's specific occupation, he would not be able to establish an
2 affirmative causal connection.

3           The same problems are inherent in Dr. Michael's opinion. Dr. Michael expressly
4 stated that brain cancer was connected to Claimant's employment considering "the presumptions
5 established by the Nevada statutes." See Appellant's Appendix p. 90. Dr. Michael believed the 6 presumptions to be applicable, and based his opinion on them without realizing that they were actually
7 not applicable in Claimant's case.

8           Perhaps it is because causation cannot possibly be established between cancer and
9 firefighters that a presumptive statute was created in the first place, provided claimants can meet listed
10 requirements. After all, both physicians agree that brain cancer has an unknown cause. In any event,
11 Claimant cannot rely on presumptions which are inapplicable. Claimant was required to provide
12 physician opinions that specifically link his own brain cancer to his own work, rather than opinions
13 which link all instances of brain cancer to the occupation of firefighting as a whole.

14           Claimant argues that the City "offered no evidence of its own" and therefore this claim
15 must be considered compensable under Dr. Melius' and Dr. Michael's opinions. Again, it is 16 Claimant's obligation under the statutes to demonstrate an affirmative causal link. The legislature
17 designed the workers' compensation statutes such that there would be no bias in favor of claimants,
18 and the legislature placed the burden of proof expressly on claimants. It was not up to the City to 19 rebut physician opinions which were based on an admittedly inapplicable presumptive statute. To put 20 it simply, Claimant did not put forth any evidence which showed a causal link between his cancer and 21 his workplace.

2 CONCLUSION

3 The Appellant respectfully requests that this Court reverse the District Court's Order
4 Denying Petition for Judicial Review and find that the Appeals Officer's Decision and Order was 5 contrary to the law, and was not supported by substantial evidence.
