1 before the District Court on July 30, 2012 and, by an order signed on August 30,

5 STATEMENT OF FACTS

6 1. Appellants are taxicab drivers who allege they were entitled to an 7 hourly minimum wage under Nevada state law for every hour that they worked and 8 that they were often not paid such required minimum wages. (Appellants' 9 Complaint paragraph 14).

10 2. Appellants brought their First Claim for relief pursuant to Article 15, 11 Section 16, of the Nevada Constitution, which did not eliminate the current and 12 long-standing exceptions to the minimum wage and overtime laws for various 13 categories of workers in Nevada, more specifically, taxicab and limousine drivers.
14 (Appellants' Complaint paragraphs 13 and 14).

16 STATEMENT OF THE STANDARD OF REVIEW

17 Appellants' constitutional claims are not founded upon rights and obligations 18 that are independent of those set forth in the Nevada Wage and Hour Law 19 ("NWHL"), but must be examined in light of the Nevada Revised Statute 20 608.250(2)(e), NWHL exceptions.

21 A motion to dismiss under NRCP 12(b)(5) is subject to a rigorous standard 22 of review on appeal. "All factual allegations in the complaint are [viewed] as true, 23 and all inferences are drawn in favor of the non-moving party." Further, "[a] 24 complaint should only be dismissed if it appears beyond a reasonable doubt that 25 the plaintiff could prove no set of facts, which, if true, would entitle him to relief.
26 Dismissal is proper where the allegations are insufficient to establish the elements 27 of a claim for relief." The district court's conclusions of law are subject to de novo 28 review.

1 A complaint should be dismissed if it appears beyond a doubt that the 2 plaintiff could prove no set of facts, which, if true, would entitle the plaintiff to 3 relief. NRCP 12(b)(5); Buzz Stew, LLC v. City of N. Las Vegas, 124 Nev. 224, 228, 4 181 P.3d 670, 672 (2008). Pursuant to NRCP 12(b)(5), a court may dismiss a 5 plaintiff's complaint for "failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted."
6 A properly pled complaint must provide "a short and plain statement of the claim 7 showing that the pleader is entitled to relief." Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550
8 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). Specifically, it demands "more than labels and conclusions"
9 or a "formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action." Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 10 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (citing Papasan v. Allain, 478 U.S. 265, 286 (1986)).
11 "Factual allegations must be enough to rise above the speculative level." Twombly, 12 550 U.S. at 555. Thus, to survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain 13 sufficient factual matter to "state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face."
14 Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1949 (internal citation omitted).

15 In Iqbal, the Supreme Court recently clarified the two-step approach district 16 courts are to apply when considering motions to dismiss. First, the Court must 17 accept as true all well-pled factual allegations in the complaint; however, legal 18 conclusions are not entitled to the assumption of truth. Id. at 1950. Mere recitals of 19 the elements of a cause of action, supported only by conclusory statements, do not 20 suffice. Id. at 1949. Second, the Court must consider whether the factual 21 allegations in the complaint allege a plausible claim for relief. Id. at 1950. When 22 the claims in a complaint have not crossed the line from conceivable to plausible, 23 plaintiff's complaint must be dismissed. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570.

24 ARGUMENT

25 A. Appellants' constitutional claims are not founded upon rights and 26 obligations that are independent of those set forth in the Nevada 27 Wage and Hour Law ("NWHL"). 28

1 NRS 608.250 states:

2 Establishment by Labor Commissioner; exceptions; penalty.

- 3 1. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the Labor 4 Commissioner shall, in accordance with federal law, establish 5 by regulation the minimum wage which may be paid to 6 employees in private employment within the State. The Labor 7 Commissioner shall prescribe increases in the minimum wage 8 in accordance with those prescribed by federal law, unless the 9 Labor Commissioner determines that those increases are 10 contrary to the public interest.
- 11 2. The provisions of subsection 1 do not apply to:
- 12 (a) Casual babysitters.
  - 13 (b) Domestic service employees who reside in the household 14 where they work.
  - 15 (c) Outside salespersons whose earnings are based on 16 commissions.
  - 17 (d) Employees engaged in an agricultural pursuit for an 18 employer who did not use more than 500 days of 19 agricultural labor in any calendar quarter of the preceding 20 calendar year.
  - 21 (e) Taxicab and limousine drivers.
  - 22 (f) Persons with severe disabilities whose disabilities have 23 diminished their productive capacity in a specific job and 24 who are specified in certificates issued by the 25 Rehabilitation Division of the Department of 26 Employment, Training and Rehabilitation.

27 In this case, prior to the addition of Section 16 to Article 15 of the 28 Constitution in 2006, minimum wage obligations in Nevada were governed solely by the NWHL. The NWHL then provided, and still provides, that the state's labor commissioner "shall, in accordance with federal law, establish by regulation the minimum wage which may be paid to employees[,]" and "shall prescribe increases to the minimum wage in accordance with those prescribed by federal law." The NWHL further contained, and still contains, exceptions for certain categories of employees, including limousine and taxicab drivers, from the minimum wage

1 protection prescribed by the Labor Commissioner. These exceptions were justified 2 as a matter of policy by the unique nature of those occupations and industries.

3 Article 15, Section 16 was added to the State's Constitution as the result of a 4 ballot initiative passed by the state's citizenry in 2006. The intent behind the 5 initiative was to provide for a minimum wage greater than what then was 6 prescribed under the NWHL; i.e., greater than the then existing federal minimum 7 wage. Hence, at the time of the ballot initiative, the federal minimum wage was 8 $5.15 per hour. The Constitutional Amendment increased the minimum wage to 9 $6.15 per hour for employers who did not provide health benefits to their 10 employees, and provided for an annual automatic increase equal to the greater of 11 an increase in the federal minimum wage or the cost of living as measured by the 12 Consumer Price Index.<sup>2</sup>

13 Neither the ballot initiative nor the resulting Constitutional Amendment 14 made any express reference to the NWHL. The intent clearly was to revise the 15 minimum wage portions of the NWHL, not, as Appellants suggest, supplant the 16 entire minimum wage statutory scheme and corresponding exceptions.
17 Consequently, all other minimum wage provisions contained in the NWHL survive 18 the Constitutional Amendment, at least to the extent that those provisions are not in 19 conflict and otherwise can be harmonized with the Constitutional Amendment.

20 Notably, the Constitutional Amendment does not speak to removing the 21 minimum wage exceptions provided under NRS 680.250(2)(e), including the 22 exceptions for limousine and taxicab drivers. As the federal district court 23 (Honorable Robert Clive Jones) observed in Lucas v. Bell Trans, 2009 U.S.
24 District LEXIS 72549 (D. Nev. 2009) this omission is significant because it

25
26 <sup>2</sup> On January 16, 2013, Judge Douglas Herndon of Clark County also agreed with the District 27 Court's ruling in this case and held in Barbara Gilmore vs. Desert Cab, Inc., Case No. A-12-28 668502-C, that the constitutional amendment did not change what NRS 608.250 stands for, concluded that this same issue was raised previously in other cases and granted Desert Cab's Motion to Dismiss on identical facts. (See, Respondents' Appendix RA001.)

1 weakens any argument by Appellants that the Constitutional Amendment conflicts 2 with, and therefore voids, the continued application of the statutory exceptions
3 provided under the NWHL. See Lucas, at *20 (attached as Respondents' 4 Appendix RA008) "...the Amendment's definition of "employee" is not necessarily 5 in conflict with NRS 608.250. The NRS 608.250 exceptions and the Amendment's 6 definition of "employee" can happily co-exist."

8 B. Attorney General Opinions Are Not Binding Legal Authority

9 It is well established that the "opinions of the attorney general do not 10 constitute binding legal authority or precedent." Goldman v. Bryan, 106 Nev. 30, 11 42 (1990) "The opinion of the state attorney general is advisory and not a binding 12 interpretation of state law." Nevada Highway Patrol Ass'n v. State, F.2d 1549, 13 1554, n.6 (1990). See also Tahoe Regional Planning Agency v. McKay, 769 F.2d 14 534, 539 (9th Cir. 1985) Weston v. County of Lincoln, 98 Nev. 183 (1982) and 15 Cannon v. Taylor, 88 Nev. 89 (1972)

16 In this case, Appellants rely on their Appendix AA14-24, Attorney General 17 Opinion 2005-04 as the source to support their position, including the assertion that 18 this opinion "...is well supported by precedent". Attorney General opinions are not 19 binding legal authority and have no precedential value. Appellants' argument 20 therefore lacks any credible, binding legal authority to support it.

21
22 C. The Article 15, Section 16 Amendment did not "impliedly repeal" 23 the NWHL exceptions.

24 Among the cases which Appellants cite as support for their position that the 25 Article 15, Section 16 Constitutional Amendment constitutes an "implied repeal" 26 of the statutory exception for limousine and taxicab drivers, is Board of 27 Retirement v. Superior Court, 101 Cal.App.4th 1062 (2002). Appellants' reliance 28 on that case is curious because the court in that case rejected the very arguments

1 for "implied repeal" that Appellants make in the instant case; in fact, the arguments 2 presented in that case, as with the instant case, were made in the context of a 3 constitutional provision that purported to override or supersede a statute upon 4 which the real party in interest relied in its defense.

5 In Board of Retirement, a retired county employee ("retiree") was receiving 6 a monthly disability allowance under California's public employees' retirement 7 benefits system established and maintained by statute. The statute expressly 8 exempted "from execution or other court process the benefits under county 9 retirement systems established [thereunder]." 101 Cal.App.4th at 1067. The 10 retiree was convicted of a misdemeanor and was ordered by the trial court to pay 11 restitution to the victim out of her monthly disability allowance. The trial court's 12 order was issued pursuant to a "victims' bill of rights" provision in the California 13 constitution, and to an "income garnishment" statute that was established to 14 enforce the "victims' bill of rights" provision. The appeals court set aside the trial 15 court's order. In doing so, it found that neither the "victims' bill of rights" 16 constitutional provision - which had been passed by initiative by the California 17 citizenry -- nor the "income garnishment" statute that was passed to enforce that 18 provision "repealed by implication", the statute that exempted retirement benefits 19 from "execution or other court process."

20 In this case, these very same legal principles were applied by the Nevada 21 federal district court in Lucas v. Bell Trans, supra. Lucas is one of two (2) federal 22 decisions in Nevada that have ruled that the passage of the Constitutional 23 Amendment to Article 15, Section 16 did not "impliedly repeal" Nevada's statutory 24 wage and hour exceptions for limousine and taxicab drivers contained in 25 NRS.608.250(2)(e).

26 The federal district court's decision in Lucas set forth a comprehensive and 27 well-reasoned analysis for why no such implied repeal occurred in that case.
28 (Lucas is attached as Respondents' Appendix RA002 – 012). Judge Jones said,

1 “The Amendment made no reference to NRS 608.250. There is no
2 indication that when Nevada voters went to the polls, they were informed 3 that their vote would be repealing or amending NRS 608.250 and its 4 multiple exceptions.”

5 The 2006 Ballot Question No. 6 asked specifically, "Shall the Nevada 6 Constitution be amended to raise the minimum wage paid to employees?" (See 7 Respondent's Appendix RA013 - RA019.) In the explanation section of the ballot, 8 it stated, "The proposed amendment, if passed, would create a new section to 9 Article 15 of the Nevada Constitution." (See RA001). There was no mention in 10 either the explanation or argument sections about repealing NRS 608.250.
11 Secondly, the focus of the Constitutional Amendment was the actual minimum 12 wage amount and was intended to supplement not supplant existing NWHL.
13 Therefore, the only reasonable construction of the Constitutional Amendment is 14 that it did not repeal the provisions of NRS 608.250 or its exceptions, because the 15 NWHL expressly states that it does not apply to taxicab and limousine drivers.
16 The Constitutional Amendment did not change any of those provisions of NRS 17 608.250 and hence Appellants cannot sue for a violation of the unpaid minimum 18 wages under Nevada law.

19 The second decision in federal district court in Nevada that has considered 20 and upheld the precise holding presented in this case, is Robert A. Greene vs.
21 Executive Coach & Carriage, Case No. 2:09-cv-00466-RCJ-RJJ. (See 22 Respondent's Appendix RA020 - RA031.)

23 D. The Decision of District Judge Kenneth Cory in the case of 24 Murray v. A Cab Taxi Service Was Flawed

25 Appellants cite to Murray v. A Cab Taxi Service, Case No. A-12-669926-C 26 in the Order filed February 11, 2013 and cited in their "Notice of Supplemental 27 Authority" which was filed in the instant case on February 21, 2013.

28 Unfortunately that decision did not consider one of the most important elements

1 when examining a Constitutional Amendment voted by the people, and that is the 2 voter's intent when he or she read and cast the ballot. This is important because 3 when voters went to cast their ballot in 2006 for the Amendment, they had no 4 reason to think they were voting to repeal exceptions to the previously existing law 5 since NRS 608.250 was not even mentioned, nor would they have any reason to 6 consider the impact of such change when casting their ballots as outlined in 7 Greene, supra. As the Court in Greene explained,

8 "One would expect that if one of the contemplated purposes of enactment 9 was to abolish the NWHL's exceptions that the arguments would include at 10 least a passing reference to how such a change would affect the state. In 11 sum, a Nevada voter who had cast her ballot in favor of the Amendment 12 based on careful consideration of these materials would likely be surprised if 13 someone told her that she had also voted to extend the minimum wage to 14 casual babysitters, live-in domestic workers, limousine drivers, and other 15 previously excluded occupations." (See Page 7 of 12 of the Order, lines 15-16 20 attached hereto as Respondents' Appendix RA026.)

16 Therefore, the decision in Murray to not even consider a voter's intent, when 17 he or she went to cast the ballot in 2006 in support of the Constitutional 18 Amendment, on an issue that was and is still governed by existing law with six (6) 19 exceptions, was flawed.

21 E. There Is a Presumption against Repeal by Implication

22 All presumptions are against repeal by implication. "Absent an express 23 declaration of legislative intent, we will find an implied repeal only when there is 24 no rational basis for harmonizing the two potentially conflicting statutes, and the 25 statutes are "irreconcilable, clearly repugnant, and so inconsistent that the two 26 cannot have concurrent operation." Board of Retirement v. Superior Court, 101 27 Cal.App.4th at 1067-1068. The same standards apply in determining whether a 28 Constitutional Amendment impliedly repealed a statutory provision.

2 "[S]o strong is the presumption against implied repeals that when a 3 new enactment conflicts with an existing provision, [i]n order for the second 4 law to repeal or supersede the first, the former must constitute a revision of 5 the entire subject, so that the court may say that it was intended to be a 6 substitute for the first." Board of Retirement v. Superior Court, 101 7 Cal.App.4th at 1067-1068.

8 The legal standards upon which the court relied in Board of Retirement are 9 the very same standards adopted by the Nevada courts to determining when 10 application of the "implied repeal" doctrine is appropriate. Hence, the Nevada 11 Supreme Court has stated that the implied repeal of a statute is "heavily 12 disfavored;" that it "will not consider a statute to be repealed by implication unless 13 there is no other reasonable construction of the two statutes[;]" and "the fact that a 14 statute is enacted after another statute, but is subsequently amended without 15 mention of the first statute, may weigh against a finding of legislative intent to 16 repeal by implication." Washington v. State, supra, 117 Nev. 735, 30 P.3d 1134, 17 1137.

18 In this case, the Constitutional Amendment did not either repeal or change 19 NRS 608.250 or its exceptions. The Constitutional Amendment never mentioned 20 NRS 608.250 or its exceptions, which by itself heavily weighs against a finding of 21 any intent of repeal by implication. Furthermore, the Constitutional Amendment's 22 general definition of "employee" is not in conflict with "exceptions" contained in 23 NRS 680.250, which included taxicab and limousine drivers.

24 The Constitutional Amendment only increased the minimum wage to $6.15 25 per hour for employers who did not provide health benefits to their employees, and 26 provided for an annual automatic increase equal to the greater of an increase in the 27 federal minimum wage or the cost of living as measured by the Consumer Price 28 Index. As stated in Greene, "Given the presumption against implied repeal, the extrinsic evidence available is insufficient to support the conclusion that Nevada

1 voters intended to abolish the NWHL's exceptions by enacting Article 15, §16.
2 Rather, the voters intended only to change the amount of the minimum wage and 3 provide for mandatory cost-of-living increases." (See page 8 of 12 of the Order 4 attached hereto as Respondents' Appendix RA027). It is clear, therefore, that the 5 Constitutional Amendment did not repeal NRS 680.250 or its exceptions. Because 6 the NWHL expressly states that it does not apply to taxicab and limousine drivers, 7 the Appellants cannot sue for a violation of the unpaid minimum wages under 8 Nevada law.

10 CONCLUSION

11 Based on the foregoing points and authorities, the Order and Judgment 12 appealed from should be affirmed and upheld in its entirety.
