1 STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

3 1. NRS 116.31166 provides that recitals in a deed made pursuant to NRS
4 116.31164 of "Default, the mailing of the notice of delinquent assessment, and the 5 recording of the notice of default and election to sell" are "conclusive proof of the 6 matters recited" as against "the unit's former owner, his or her heirs and assigns,
7 and all other persons." Did this conclusive evidentiary presumption warrant
8 upholding the subject foreclosure sale?

11 2. Did the lower court err in completely neglecting to make any findings
12 of fact or provide any other legal basis for its conclusion that Gogo Way Trust was 13 not a bona fide purchaser?
14

15 3. NRS 116.3116 provides a statutory lien in favor of home owners
16 associations for delinquent common area assessments. Does this statutory lien
17 include the fees and costs the association incurs in collecting delinquent 18 assessments?

21 4. Under NRS 116.3116(2), a portion of the delinquent assessment lien
22 takes "super priority" in favor of homeowners associations in the event of a 23 foreclosure by the holder of a first security interest on a common interest unit. Is 24 the statutory "super priority" lien numerically limited to so-called "nine times 25 monthly assessments" and no more?
26
27
28

1 5. The CC&Rs for Shadow Wood Homeowners Association provides a
2 contractual lien against a condominium unit in favor of the association that
3 expressly includes collection fees and costs. Is this lien a valid lien?

5 6. Did the lower court err when it ruled that New York Community
6 Bank's tender of $6,783.16 on or about January 31, 2012 rendered the subject
7 foreclosure sale invalid because the entirety of the Association's assessment lien
8 was necessarily limited at all times to an amount equal to nine times the monthly
9 assessment, or $1,519.29?

12 STANDARDS FOR REVIEW

13 When a district court's decision to grant declaratory relief depends on a pure

22 STATEMENT OF THE CASE

23 This action involved a dispute between Appellants Shadow Wood
24 Homeowners Association ("Shadow Wood" or the "Association") and Gogo Way
25 Trust and Respondent New York Community Bancorp, Inc. ("NYCB") over the 26 validity of a foreclosure sale conducted by the law firm of Alessi & Koenig, LLC
27
28

1 (“A&K”) on behalf of Shadow Wood, where Gogo Way Trust purchased the 2 subject real property, a condominium unit within Shadow Wood. NYCB, who was
3 owner of the subject property when Shadow Wood processed the subject
4 foreclosure of the property, commenced the lower court action, seeking to quiet
5 title in its favor and to obtain declaratory relief setting aside the subject foreclosure
6 sale. In its Amended Complaint, NYCB sought to have the sale set aside, alleging
7 that the price Gogo Way Trust paid, $11,018.39, was “commercially
8 unreasonable,” and alleging that Shadow Wood failed to provide all statutorily 9 required foreclosure notices.
10
12

13 On summary judgment, the lower court concluded as a matter of law that the 14 subject foreclosure sale was invalid. The Court held that NYCB’s payment
15 tendered to Shadow Wood’s agent, A&K, of $6,783.16 on or about January 31,
16 2012, satisfied the Association’s assessment lien and rendered the subsequent 17 foreclosure sale invalid as a matter of law. The Court held that Gogo Way Trust
18 was not a bona fide purchaser, although its opinion provided no analysis made no
19 findings of fact to explain how it reached that conclusion. In sum, to reach the 20 conclusion that NYCB’s tender of $6,783.16 necessarily satisfied the Association’s 21 assessment lien, the Court interpreted NRS 116.3116 et seq as providing a lien for 22 delinquent assessments that is capped – in total – at an amount equal to nine 23 months of assessments. This interpretation of NRS 116.3116 et seq is unique, as
25
26
27
28

1 the issue that has been the source of much litigation is whether the “super priority”
2 portion of an assessment lien is capped at an amount equal to nine months of 3 assessments, not whether the total assessment lien is capped at that amount. In 4 interpreting NRS 116.3116 as capping the entire assessment lien at an amount 5 equal to nine months of assessments, the Court simply failed to understand the 6 plain statutory language.

9 This appeal followed. Subsequently, on September 30, 2103, the Court
10 granted NYCB’s motion for attorney’s fees, issuing judgment against Appellants in 11 the amount of $41,130.00.
12

13 STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

14

15 A. The Foreclosure Sale And NYCB’s Tender Of $6,445.54

16 The subject real property (the “Property”) is located at 3923 Gogo Way
17 #109, Las Vegas, Nevada 89103. (APP. Pgs. 201-202) It is located within the 18 Shadow Wood Homeowners Association (“Shadow Wood”). (APP. Pgs. 201-202)
19 NYCB acquired title to the Property at a foreclosure sale it conducted on May 9,
20 2011. (APP. Pg. 202)

22 After acquiring title to the Property, NYCB failed to make assessment
23 payments. (APP. Pgs. 215, 248-257) In response, Shadow Wood, via its 24 attorneys, Alessi & Koenig, LLC (“A&K”), commenced the non-judicial 25 foreclosure process of NRS 116.3116 et seq. (APP. Pgs. 211-213)
26
27
28

1 On November 15, 2011, in response to a request from NYCB, A&K sent a
2 breakdown of Shadow Wood's assessment lien, along with a copy of a ledger
3 showing the history of the assessment account, to a representative of NYCB.
4 (APP. Pg. 684) The breakdown totaled $9,017.39, and, in accordance with A&K's
5 interpretation of the governing law, contained: (1) collection charges incurred
6 against the Property's prior owner; (2) collection charges incurred against NYCB;
7 (3) nine months of assessments incurred against the prior owner; and (4) all
8 assessments incurred against NYCB. (APP. Pgs. 241-242) The assessment ledger
9 showed a total amount of $6,445.54, an amount which did not reflect that a portion
10 of the assessment delinquency had been wiped out through NYCB's foreclosure
11 sale. (APP. Pgs. 248-257) On or around January 31, 2012, NYCB sent A&K a 12 check for $6,783.16, an amount based upon the amount shown in the assessment
13 ledger (with additional months of assessments that had come due added in) rather 14 than the amount showed on the breakdown of the assessment lien. (APP. Pgs. 241-
15 242, 248-257, 265) A&K rejected the payment and, in an email dated February 8, 16 2012, informed NYCB of the correct amount. (APP. Pg. 684)

18
19
20
21
22
23 Further correspondence was had between NYCB and A&K, although it
24 appears A&K erroneously addressed an email that did not deliver to NYCB. (APP.
25 Pg. 716) A&K conducted a foreclosure sale on February 22, 2012, where Gogo
26 Way Trust purchased the Property for $11,018.39. (APP. Pgs. 212, 238)
27
28

1 The Court made no findings of fact regarding (1) the propriety of the 2 collection charges arising out of the prior owner's failure to pay assessments, (2)
3 the propriety of the collection charges arising from NYCB's failure to pay
4 assessments, or (3) the total amount of delinquent assessments and late charges
5 owed. (APP. Pgs. 917-925) Instead, the Court's ruling bypassed all these issues,
6 holding simply that the payment of $6,783.16 exceeded an amount equal to nine
7 months of assessments, and that the foreclosure sale was therefore invalid. (APP.
8 Pg. 924) The Court made no findings of fact regarding whether the Gogo Way
9 Trust was entitled to bona fide purchaser protection. (APP. Pgs. 917-925)

13 B. Statutory "Super-Priority" Liens Under NRS 116.3116.

14 Nevada law allows homeowners associations to impose assessments against 15 their unit owners.¹ In the event of a default by a unit owner, the association may 16 impose fees and charges to collect those unpaid assessments.² Such fees must be 17 reasonable, and may be collected by the association directly, or by a third-party,
18 such as a property manager or a collection agency.³ To prevent excessive fees
19 against unit owners, collection fees are capped by regulation.⁴ Nevada law also

26 ² NRS 116.3102(k); NRS 116.310313(1).

27 ³ NRS 116.310313(1,2).

28 ⁴ NAC 116.470.

1 provides a statutory lien to the association upon the amounts that are owed to the
2 associations.⁵

4 In the event of a foreclosure conducted by the association, the association
5 recovers all of its unpaid lien, plus its collection fees and costs, before any other
6 lien is satisfied.⁶ A slightly different result occurs, however, when a first security
7 interest forecloses on the unit before the association. In that instance, NRS
8 116.3116(2) controls. The rule provides that the association lien is senior to that of 9 the first security interest holder “to the extent of assessments for common expenses
10 . . . which would have become due in the absence of acceleration during the 9
11 months immediately preceding institution of an action to foreclose the lien. . . .”⁷

14 This is where litigants sometimes part company. Some maintain the 15 foregoing phrase means the association can recover a numeric maximum of “nine 16 times monthly assessments” and no more, regardless of what amounts the 17 association might have incurred in its own attempts to collect prior to foreclosure
18 by the first security interest holder.
19
21

23
24 ⁵ NRS 116.3116(1);

25 ⁶ NRS 116.31164(3)(c) (providing recovery of all reasonable expenses of sale, 26 reasonable expenses of securing possession before sale, attorney’s fees and 27 other legal expenses incurred by the association).

28 ⁷ NRS 116.3116(2).

1 By contrast, others, such as Shadow Wood, maintain that such a simple
2 numeric equation—which could have easily been written into the statute—simply 3 is not present in NRS 116.3116(2). Rather, the rule is a “look back” provision for 4 the nine months leading up to foreclosure. In other words, NRS 116.3116(2) is 5 designed to make the association whole for the nine month period prior to 6 foreclosure, as if there had been no default by the unit owner. The purpose is to 7 place the association in the same position it would have been financially (“to the 8 extent of”) but for the default (“which would have become due in the absence of 9 acceleration”) for the nine months prior to foreclosure. While this amount includes 10 recovery of all unpaid assessments arising during the nine months prior to 11 foreclosure, it also necessarily includes the collection fees and costs that were 12 actually incurred by the association during that same period. Otherwise, the 13 association is not made whole during that key period, and it is not compensated “to 14 the extent of” the amounts it would have received “in the absence of acceleration.”

15 C. The Nevada Real Estate Division’s Advisory Opinion And The Lower 16 Court’s Unique Interpretation Of NRS 116.3116.

17 In this case, in reaching its ruling, the Court considered an advisory opinion
18 the Nevada Real Estate Division issued on December 12, 2012. (APP. Pg. 923)
19 The advisory opinion departs from both of the two conflicting interpretations of 20 NRS 116.3116 discussed above. It finds an alternative answer to the question of 21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 whether the super priority portion of an assessment lien may include collection
2 fees and costs such that the super priority lien exceeds an amount equal to nine
3 months of assessments. In sum, the opinion concludes that collection fees and 4 costs are not part of the super priority portion of the assessment lien because 5 assessment liens never include collection fees and costs in the first place. (APP.
6 Pgs. 625-641)

9 To reach this conclusion, the opinion draws attention to language from NRS
10 116.3115, which provides that an association's lien includes "charges for late 11 payment of assessments." The opinion argues that "costs of collection," a term 12 defined in NRS 116.310313, does not fit within the purview of "charges for late
13 payment of assessments." (APP. Pg. 626)
14
15

16 In purporting to adopt the advisory opinion's reasoning, this Court granted
17 Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment, ruling as follows:
18

19 Although not precedential, the State of Nevada Department of 20 Business and Industry, Real Estate Division ("Real Estate Division")
21 published an Advisory Opinion on December 12, 2012, setting forth
22 that costs of collection cannot properly be included in an HOA's 23 super-priority lien, and stating that "liens for fines and penalties may not be foreclosed unless they satisfy the requirements of NRS
116.31162(4)."

24 [...]

25 NYCB's payment of $6,783.16 more than satisfied the nine (9)
26 months of assessments ($1,519.29) on which Shadow Wood could 27 have legitimately based a super-priority lien, and would have netted 28 Shadow Wood more than it ultimately collected. The Court believes, based upon the papers and pleadings submitted, as well as oral

1 argument at the hearing of this matter, that Shadow Wood and/or its 2 agents were attempting to profit off the subject HOA foreclosure by 3 including exorbitant fees and costs that could not be used as the basis for an HOA foreclosure sale in this matter.

4 (APP. Pg. 923) In sum, the Court ruled that NYCB's entire obligation to the 5 Association totaled an amount equal to nine months of assessments (i.e. the nine 6 months of assessments that came due prior to NYCB's taking ownership of the 7 property), despite the fact that when NYCB tendered payment of $6,783.16, 8 NYCB had been owner of the Property for approximately nine months without 9 paying any assessments to the Association during which time the Association
10 incurred additional collection charges in attempting to collect those unpaid
11 assessments from NYCB.
12
14

15 Moreover, the Court issued the ruling despite the fact that the Association's 16 CC&Rs provide as follows:
17

18 The annual and special assessments, together with interest, 19 costs and reasonable attorney's fees, shall be a charge on the 20 Condominium Unit and shall be a continuing lien upon the 21 Condominium Unit against which each such assessment is 22 made.

23 (APP. Pg. 914) Of course, the CC&Rs create a contractual lien that is separate and 24 distinct from the statutory lien created by NRS 116.3116. In this case, the CC&Rs
25 specifically provided that the Association's assessment lien includes costs and 26 attorney's fees.
27
28

ARGUMENT

A. NRS 116.31166 Protects Home Owners Associations With A Conclusive Evidentiary Presumption That A Foreclosure Was Processed Correctly

NRS 116.31162 et seq defines the process through which home owners associations may foreclose on assessment liens after the issuance of three documents: a notice of delinquent assessment; a notice of default; and a notice of sale.

Recitals in a Trustee's Deed Upon Sale executed pursuant to NRS 116.31164 constitute "conclusive proof" that the non-judicial foreclosure notices were properly issued. Specifically, NRS 116.31166 provides:

1. The recitals in a deed made pursuant to NRS 116.31164 of:
 - (a) Default, the mailing of the notice of delinquent assessment, and the recording of the notice of default and election to sell;
 - (b) The elapsing of the 90 days; and
 - (c) The giving of notice of sale,↪ are conclusive proof of the matters recited.
2. Such a deed containing those recitals is conclusive against the unit's former owner, his or her heirs and assigns, and all other persons. [...]
3. The sale of a unit pursuant to NRS 116.31162, 116.31163 and 116.31164 vests in the purchaser the title of the unit's owner without equity or right of redemption.

In comparison to the rule governing mortgage foreclosure sales in Nevada found in NRS 107.080, the "conclusive evidence" rule stated in NRS 116.31166

1 offers substantially greater protection for home owners associations that conduct
2 foreclosure sales. Namely, the rule stated in NRS 107.080(5) requires that a
3 trustee must show "substantial compliance" with the foreclosure requirements. To
5 wit:

6 5. Every sale made under the provisions of this section and other
7 sections of this chapter vests in the purchaser the title of the grantor
8 and any successors in interest without equity or right of redemption. A 9 sale made pursuant to this section must be declared void by any court 10 of competent jurisdiction in the county where the sale took place if:

11 (a) The trustee or other person authorized to make the sale does not 12 substantially comply with the provisions of this section or any 13 applicable provision of NRS 107.086 and 107.087;

14 [...]

15 (Emphasis added)

16 Here, the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale provides as follows:

17 Trustee states that: This conveyance is made pursuant to the powers
18 conferred upon Trustee by NRS 116 et seq., and that certain Notice of 19 Delinquent Assessment Lien, described herein, Default occurred as set
20 forth in a Notice of Default and Election to Sell which was recorded
21 in the office of the recorder of said county. All requirements of law 22 regarding the mailing of copies of notices and the posting and 23 publication of the copies of the Notice of Sale have been complied
24 with. Said property was sold by said Trustee at public auction on 25 February 22, 2012 at the place indicated on the Notice of Trustee's
26 Sale.

27 (App. Pg. 238) As a result of the recitals in the trustee's deed, the Association has 28 the protection of a conclusive evidentiary presumption that the foreclosure requirements were satisfied. This includes a conclusive presumption arising from the recitals regarding default. Here, the recitals state that default occurred as set

1 forth in the Notice of Default. In this case, the Notice of Default provides that the 2 amount due under the Association's assessment lien was $6,608.34 as of August
3 28, 2011. (APP. Pg. 225) This fact alone directly contradicts the Court's ruling
4 that the Association's assessment lien totaled only $1,519.29 approximately five
5 (5) months later on January 31, 2012, as NYCB did not make any payments
6 between August 28, 2011 and January 31, 2012 while new monthly assessments
7 continued to accrue and additional attorney's fees were generated. (APP. Pgs. 215,
8 248-257)

12 Since the Court simply ignored the plain statutory language of NRS
13 116.31166, and since this statute has a material impact on this case, the Court's 14 ruling granting summary judgment in favor of NCYB was erroneous and should be 15 overturned.

17 B. There Are Two Liens—One Contractual and One Statutory.

19 Without addressing the matter of whether the NRED has struck upon the 20 correct interpretation of NRS 116.3116 (which would mean that all prior courts in 21 this state and other states interpreting identical statutory language originating from 22 the Uniform Common Interest Community Act have all gotten it wrong), one 23 glaring defect of the NRED's advisory opinion, and the Court's opinion, is the 24 failure to address the issue that an association may have CC&Rs that expressly 25 provide that the assessment lien includes collection fees and costs. Certainly the 26
27
28

1 vast majority of CCRs for Nevada home owners associations expressly provide
2 that the association assessment lien includes fees and costs of collection. Shadow
3 Wood's CC&Rs, for example, expressly provide that "The annual and special
4 assessments, together with interest, costs and reasonable attorney's fees, shall be a 5 charge on the Condominium Unit and shall be a continuing lien upon the 6 Condominium Unit against which each such assessment is made." (APP. Pg. 914)

9 Here, under the CC&Rs, the Association unquestionably had a lien against 10 the Property that included: (1) all assessments that came due while NYCB was 11 owner of the Property and (2) all reasonable costs and attorney's fees that the 12 Association incurred in response to NYCB's failure to pay monthly assessments.
13 However, the Court made no findings of fact regarding the amount of assessments
14 that came due while NYCB owned the Property without paying, or the amount of 15 attorney's fees and costs the Association reasonably incurred in attempting to 16 collect on those unpaid assessments. Rather, the Court merely ruled that NYCB's
17 tender of payment of $6,783.16 on or around January 31, 2012 necessarily satisfied
18 the Association's lien because it exceeded an amount equal to nine months of 19 assessments, which, according to the Court, was all NYCB owed.
20
22
23
24

25 It is convenient to regard the Association's assessment lien, as it existed on 26 January 31, 2012, as comprising of four distinguishable components. Those 27 components are: (1) nine months of delinquent assessments that came due prior to 28

1 NYCB's acquiring title to the Property at its foreclosure sale of May 9, 2011; (2)
2 the attorney's fees and costs the Association incurred in attempting to collect on 3 the prior owner's delinquency; (3) the unpaid assessments that came due from the 4 date NYCB acquired title to the Property to the date NYCB tendered payment (i.e.
5 from May 9, 2011 to January 31, 2012); and (4) the attorney's fees and costs the 6 Association incurred in attempting to collect against NYCB for its failure to pay
7 assessments while it owned the Property.

10 Here, under the plain language of the Association's CC&Rs, components
11 "3" (i.e. NYCB's delinquent assessments) and "4" (attorney's fees and costs 12 arising out of NYCB's failure to pay assessments) were unquestionably part of the 13 Association's assessment lien. However, despite this fact, the Court ruled that,
14 since NYCB's payment exceeded the amount of component "1," the payment
15 necessarily satisfied the Association's lien. The Court made no findings of fact 16 regarding what components "3" and "4" amount to.
17

19 Clearly, the Court's granting of summary judgment was erroneous. Even 20 though payment of $6,783.16 exceeded an amount equal to nine months of 21 assessments, it did not necessarily exceed the amount of the Association's 22 assessment lien, as, by contract, the assessment lien plainly included delinquent
23 assessments that came due after NYCB acquired title to the Property and 24 reasonable attorney's fees. As such, additional fact finding was necessary and the 25
26
27
28

1 basis for the Court's opinion (i.e. that only nine months of assessments were owed)
2 was fundamentally flawed.

9 NRS 116.3116 defines an association's statutory lien as follows:

10
11 The association has a lien on a unit for any construction penalty that is 12 imposed against the unit's owner pursuant to NRS 116.310305, any 13 assessment levied against that unit or any fines imposed against the 14 unit's owner from the time the construction penalty, assessment or 15 fine becomes due. Unless the declaration otherwise provides, any 16 penalties, fees, charges, late charges, fines and interest charged
17 pursuant to paragraphs (j) to (n), inclusive, of subsection 1 of NRS 18 116.3102 are enforceable as assessments under this section. If an assessment is payable in installments, the full amount of the assessment is a lien from the time the first installment thereof becomes due.

19 Subsection "1" of NRS 116.3102 provides, in part:

20
21 Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, and subject to the 22 provisions of the declaration, the association:

23 [...]

24 (k) May impose charges for late payment of assessments pursuant to 25 NRS 116.3115.

26 ///

27 ///

1 Amongst other things, NRS 116.3115 does the following:

- 2 (1) Authorizes an association to issue assessments for the upkeep of common
3 areas based upon a budget adopted at least annually; (Subsection 1)
5 (2) Requires assessments to issue against all units according to an allocation
6 set forth in the CC&Rs; (Subsection 2(a))
8 (3) Requires the association to establish adequate reserve funds; (Subsection 9 2(b))
10
11 (4) Provides that delinquent assessments bear a specified rate of interest;
12 (Subsection 3)
13
14 (5) Authorizes the association to assess common expenses to a unit where 15 the common expenses result from the willful misconduct or gross
16 negligence of the unit's owner, tenant or invitee; (Subsection 6)
17

18 Where a home owner fails to pay assessments issued pursuant to NRS
19 116.3115, the home owners association is certainly justified in passing the 20 attorney's fees incurred to the home owner as a "charge for late payment of 21 assessments." Moreover, NRS 116.3115(6) expressly authorizes the association to 22 assess common expenses against a particular unit where the common expenses
23 (such as attorney's fees the association pays for with common funds) result from 24 an owner engaging in willful misconduct (for example, failing to pay monthly
25 assessments). Thus, attorney's fees an association incurs from an owner's 26
27
28

1 nonpayment of assessments certainly fit within the association's lien for "penalties,
2 fees, charges, late charges" contemplated in NRS 116.3116.

3 The advisory opinion the Court found persuasive reasons as follows:

5 "Costs of collecting" defined by NRS 16.310313 is too broad to fall
6 within the parameters of charges for late payment of assessments. By 7 definition, "costs of collecting" relate to the collection of past due
8 'obligations.' "Obligations" are defined as "any assessment, fine, 9 construction penalty, fee, charge or interest levied or imposed against 10 a unit's owner." In other words, costs of collecting includes more
11 than "charges for late payment of assessments." Therefore, the plain
12 language of NRS 116.3116(1) does not incorporate costs of collecting 13 into the association's lien.

14 (APP. Pg. 626) The advisory opinion errs in concluding that "charges for late 15 payment of assessments" do not fall within the broad terms used in NRS
16 116.3116(1) to define the Association's lien. Under NRS 116.3116, the lien
17 includes "penalties, fees, charges" and "late charges."

18 In the present case, by statute, the Association's lien included charges for 19 late payment of assessments. It also included the common expenses (i.e. attorney's 20 fees and other charges) the Association incurred in addressing the NYCB's willful
21 misconduct in failing to pay monthly assessments. As discussed above, the Court
22 made no findings of fact as to two components of the Association's lien: (1) the 23 amount of assessments that went unpaid while NYCB owned the Property and 24 before tendering a payment on January 31, 2012, and (2) the reasonable attorney's
25 fees the Association incurred in addressing NYCB's misconduct in failing to meet
26
27
28

1 its obligation to pay assessments. As a result, the Court erred in granting summary
2 judgment to NYCB.

8 i. Collection Fees And Costs Are Included Within The Super Priority
9 Portion Of An Assessment Lien Over And Above The Nine Month
10 Amount
11

12 An interpretation of NRS 116.3116(2) that limits the "super priority" portion 13 of an assessment lien to "nine times monthly assessments" is teasingly simple.
14 However, the words "nine times monthly assessments" are notably missing from 15 NRS 116.3116(2). The Legislature could easily have crafted such simple language
16 if a simple formula were its intent.
17

19 The language at issue is NRS 116.3116(2), which provides in pertinent part 20 as follows:
21

22 A lien under this section is prior to all other liens and encumbrances 23 on a unit except:

- 24 (a) Liens and encumbrances recorded before the recordation of the 25 declaration and, in a cooperative, liens and encumbrances
26 which the association creates, assumes or takes subject to;
27 (b) A first security interest on the unit recorded before the date on 28 which the assessment sought to be enforced became delinquent

1 or, in a cooperative, the first security interest encumbering only 2 the unit's owner's interest and perfected before the date on 3 which the assessment sought to be enforced became delinquent;
and

- 4 (c) Liens for real estate taxes and other governmental assessments
5 or charges against the unit or cooperative.

6 The lien is also prior to all security interests described in paragraph 7 (b) . . . to the extent of the assessments for common expenses based 8 on the periodic budget adopted by the association pursuant to NRS 9 116.3115 which would have become due in the absence of 10 acceleration during the 9 months immediately preceding institution of an action to enforce the lien. . . .⁸

11 NRS 116.3116(2) is a make-whole provision designed to place the 12 association in the same place as if there had been no default for the nine months
13 preceding foreclosure. When interpreting the plain language of a statute, Nevada 14 courts must consider a statute's provisions as a whole, reading them "in a way that 15 would not render words or phrases superfluous or make provisions nugatory." S.

8 The only state supreme court case deciding this issue is Hudson House
9 Condominium Ass’n, Inc. v. Brooks, 611 A.2d 862 (Conn. 1992). In Hudson
10 House, the Connecticut Supreme Court considered whether collection fees and 11 costs survived foreclosure as part of the super-priority lien in addition to “nine
12 months” worth of assessments. 611 A.2d at 613. The Connecticut Supreme Court
13 held that such fees and costs survived foreclosure as part of the super-priority lien,
14 even though assessments had already been capped at the so-called “nine times
15 monthly assessment” amount. The court stated:
16
18

19 In construing a statute, we assume that “the legislature intended 20 to accomplish a reasonable and rational result.” Section 47-
21 258(a) creates a statutory lien for delinquent common expense
22 assessments. Section 47-258(i) authorizes the foreclosure of 23 the lien thus created. Section 47-258(b) provides for a limited
24 priority over other secured interests for a portion of the 25 assessment accruing during the six month period preceding the 26 institution of the action. Section 47-258(g) specifically 27 authorizes the inclusion of the costs of collection as part of the 28 lien.

Since the amount of monthly assessments are, in most instances, small, and since the statute limits the priority status

1 to only a six month period, and since in most instances, it is
2 going to be only the priority debt that in fact is collectible, it
3 seems highly unlikely that the legislature would have 4 authorized such foreclosure proceedings without including
5 the costs of collection in the sum entitled to a priority. To 6 conclude that the legislature intended otherwise would have 7 that body fashioning a bow without a string or arrows. We
8 conclude that § 47-258 authorizes the inclusion of attorney's
9 fees and costs in the sums entitled to a priority.

10 611 A.2d at 616-17 (emphasis added).⁹ Importantly, the Connecticut Supreme
11 Court rejected the overly simplistic “nine times monthly assessments” catchphrase
12 that is being peddled here.

13 Rather, the Connecticut Supreme Court viewed the purpose of the rule as a 14 whole—to provide meaningful compensation to associations when a lender
15 foreclosure occurs. As the court noted, the legislature must have permitted all 16 collection costs associated with enforcement of the super-priority lien to be 17 recoverable, even after a foreclosure. To read the statute otherwise would make no 18 practical sense at all, as it would fashion a proverbial “bow” with no “string” or 19 “arrows.” Similar to the rules of statutory interpretation in Connecticut, under 20 Nevada law, courts must “consider the policy and spirit of the law and will seek to 21
23

24 ⁹ Although the Connecticut Supreme Court noted that its legislature later 25 amended the statute to specifically include “the Association’s costs and 26 attorney’s fees in enforcing its lien,” the court specifically noted that this 27 merely “clarified that attorney's fees and costs are included in the priority 28 debt.” Hudson House, 611 A.2d at 617 n.4.

1 avoid an interpretation that leads to an absurd result.” Fierle v. Perez, -- Nev. --,
2 219 P.3d 906, 911 (2009) (quotation omitted).

4 Such an interpretation also makes practical sense. The intent and purpose of 5 the CC&Rs was to give Horizons not only a legal right to recover some of the 6 unpaid principal amounts as a result of a default, but the means to actually recover.
8 It was designed precisely to avoid crafting the “bow without a string or arrows”
9 that is referred to in Hudson House. Hudson House goes precisely to the spirit, 10 purpose, and intent of super-priority liens as a whole and the unreasonable and 11 absurd results created by the interpretation proffered by NYCB.
12

13 ii. The Attorney’s Fees And Costs Incurred In Collecting Against The 14 Property’s Prior Owner Were Properly Asserted Against NYCB As 15 Part Of The Association’s Assessment Lien
16

17
18 In this case, the Court found that, when NYCB tendered payment of 19 $6,783.16 on January 31, 2012, the Assessment lien amount totaled only the nine-
20 month “super priority” amount, or $1,519.29. In so finding, the Court excluded
21 from the assessment lien (1) fees and costs the association incurred in processing a 22 non-judicial foreclosure against the Property’s prior owner, (2) assessments that 23 came due during the approximately nine months that NYCB owned the Property 24 without making assessment payments, and (3) the attorney’s fees and costs the 25 Association incurred in addressing NYCB’s failure to make assessment payments
26
27
28

1 by processing a non-judicial foreclosure against NYCB. However, as discussed
2 above, the fees and costs incurred against the prior owner are properly included in 3 the Association's assessment lien. As a result, the Court's ruling is fundamentally 4 flawed and should be overruled.

6 CONCLUSION

8 The Court's granting summary judgment in favor of NYCB was based 9 entirely on a flawed premise. Namely, the Court reasoned that the Association's 10 assessment lien – in its entirety – was limited to the "super priority" amount equal 11 to nine months of assessments, and NYCB's tender of $6,783.16 on January 31, 12 2012 exceeded that amount. However, the Court erred by failing to consider that 13 the Association's assessment lien also included (1) the reasonable attorney's fees 14 incurred in addressing the prior owner's failure to pay assessments, (2) all the 15 assessments that came due while NYCB owned the property, and (3) all
16 reasonable attorney's fees the Association incurred in addressing NYCB's failure
17 to pay assessments. Further, the Court failed to take into account the conclusive 18 evidentiary presumption in the Association's favor under NRS 116.31166. As
