MOTION TO EXCEED PAGE LIMIT FOR PETITIONERS' OPPOSITION TO FAR WEST INDUSTRIES'
EMERGENCY MOTION FOR RELIEF UNDER NRAP 27(e)

Petitioners, Rhonda Helene Mona and Michael J. Mona, Jr. (collectively “the Monas”), by and through their attorneys of record, Marquis Aurbach Coffing and Lemons Grundy & Eisenberg, hereby move this Court pursuant to NRAP 32(a)(7) to exceed the page limit for their opposition to Far West Industries’ emergency motion for relief under NRAP 27(e), which is submitted along with this motion. NRAP 27(d)(2) limits an opposition to 10 pages. However, NRAP 32(a)(7) allows a party to exceed the page limit by permission of the Court.

The Monas’ opposition contains 17 pages of text, which is 7 pages more than that allowed by NRAP 27(d)(2). Good cause exists to allow the Monas to exceed the page limit by 7 pages for the following reasons:

On August 14, 2015 Real Party in Interest, Far West Industries (“Far West”), submitted its emergency motion for relief under NRAP 27(e) with 130 pages of exhibits. The Monas needed the additional space in order to adequately respond to Far West’s motion and present a clear understanding of the issues to this Court. Even though the Court has not yet ordered briefing on the Monas’ writ petition, Far West’s motion was designed to address the substance of the writ petition. Far West’s motion could have been filed as a countermotion with its opposition to the Monas’ emergency motion for stay. As such, some of the arguments in Far West’s motion relate to similar or identical arguments in its prior opposition. Thus, to respond to the numerous issues, the Monas needed the additional space in their opposition.

Therefore, for diligence and good cause shown, and according to NRAP 32(a)(7), this Court should allow the Monas to file their opposition to Far West's "emergency" motion for relief under NRAP 27(e) consisting of 17 pages.
