RELIEF REQUESTED BY PETITIONERS

An Order directing District Court Judge Ronald J. Israel to rule that the Thomas vs. Nevada Yellow Cab Corporation, 130 Nev., Adv. Op. 52 (2014) decision rendered on June 26, 2014 by this Honorable Court only applies prospectively.

III.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. On January 6, 2015, Petitioners filed the Motion to Dismiss. See Petitioners' Appendix PA001-041.
2. On January 23, 2015, Real Parties in Interest filed their Opposition to the Motion to Dismiss. See Petitioners' Appendix PA042-056.

23 STATEMENT OF REASONING FOR THE ISSUANCE OF A WRIT

24 A Writ of Mandamus is available “to compel the performance of an act that 25 the law requires as a duty resulting from an ‘office, trust or station’ or to control an 26 arbitrary or capricious exercise of discretion.” Int'l Game Tech., Inc. v. Second 27
28

1 Judicial Dist. Court, 124 Nev. 193, 197, 179P.3d 556, 558 (2008); NRS 34.160.

2 There is no adequate and speedy remedy at law available. This writ poses an 3 important issue of law requiring clarification. ANSE, Inc. v. Eighth Judicial Dist.
4 Court, 124 Nev. 862, 867, 192 P.3d 738, 742 (2008). This is an important issue of 5 law with statewide impact requiring clarification and because an appeal from the 6 final judgment would not constitute an adequate and speedy legal remedy, given 7 the urgent need for resolution, Petitioners respectfully request that this Honorable
8 Court entertain the merits of the Petition.
10
11

12 One of the central tenants in common law, is that individuals and entities be 13 made aware and provided with clear and unambiguous notices of laws so they can 14 comport their conduct to those existing laws. When two (2) conflicting laws 15 regarding the same subject matter are in existence at the same time, it creates 16 uncertainty and ambiguity for individuals and entities regarding which law to follow.
17 This major problem is compounded when an enforcement agency, such as the Office 18 of Nevada Labor Commissioner, itself is operating under the same uncertainty and 19 ambiguity as employers. Hence, on June 26, 2014 this Honorable Court for the first 20 time clarified the law with respect to the Minimum Wage Amendment in Nevada. It 21 is Petitioners' strong contention that the Thomas decision was intended to only apply
22 prospectively. There are currently numerous similar cases involving allegations of 23 violation of the 2006 Constitutional Minimum Wage Amendment prior to the 24
25
26
27
28

1 Thomas decision on June 26, 2014. Those cases including the instant matter will 2 encounter long, arduous and protracted likely class action litigation which will 3 undoubtedly and unnecessarily consume tremendous judicial resources and costs. In 4 the instant matter, Real Parties in Interest are seeking class action certification. See
5 Petitioners' Appendix PA166-167. Therefore this matter requires this Honorable 6 Court to definitively rule that the Thomas decision only applies prospectively from 7 June 26, 2014.

10 11 A. Real Parties in Interest Have No Claim For Minimum Wage Since The 12 Application of The Thomas Decision is Prospective, Not Retroactive

13 In this case, on June 26, 2014, this Honorable Court decided the 14 Thomas case and recognized in its decision, that at the time, there were two (2)
15 conflicting laws regarding the same subject matter, namely NRS 608.250(2) and 16 the 2006 Constitutional Minimum Wage Amendment. The Court also recognized 17 that employers were put in the most impossible and unenviable position in 18 choosing between which legal provision to follow, on the same exact subject
19 matter. Following passage of the Nevada Minimum Wage Amendment in 2006, 20 the statutory exemption for taxicab and limousine drivers remained. There was no 21 express or implied repeal at that time and in the years following. In addition, the 22 Nevada Labor Commissioner comported with NRS 608.250(2). Up until June 26, 23 2014, NRS 608.250(2) was the law that employers were following and it was 24 reasonable to do so. Therefore, this Honorable Court decided, that from June 26, 25
26
27
28

1 2014 it would make clear to employers and employees in the State of Nevada what 2 the current law on Minimum Wage would be moving forward. The decision is 3 clear and speaks for itself.

5 There is nothing in the Thomas decision either directly or indirectly, that 6 supports the proposition that a taxicab or limousine driver can now go back in time
7 and pursue minimum wage claims against individual employers prior to June 26, 8 2014. Substantive statutes are presumed to only operate prospectively, unless it is 9 clear that the drafters intended the statute to be applied retroactively. Landgraf v.
10 USI Film Prods., 511 U.S. 244, 273 (1994); PEBP, 124 Nev. at 154, 179 P.3d at 11 553; Cnty. of Clark v. Roosevelt Title Ins. Co., 80 Nev. 530, 535, 396 P.2d 844, 12 846 (1964). (Cited in Sandpointe Apartments, LLC v. Eighth Judicial District 13 Court, 129 Nev. Adv. Op. 87 Nov. 14, 2013). The presumption against 14 retroactivity is typically explained by reference to fairness. Landgraf, 511 U.S. at 15 270.
16
17
18
19
20

21 As stated in Sandpointe Apartments, LLC Id. at page 18:

22 The United States Supreme Court has explained that "the 23 presumption against retroactive legislation is deeply rooted in our 24 jurisprudence, and embodies a legal doctrine centuries older than our 25 Republic." Landgraf, 511 U.S. at 265. And, from this court's 26 inception, it has viewed retroactive statutes with disdain, noting that 27 such laws are "odious and tyrannical" and "have been almost 28 uniformly discountenanced by the courts of Great Britain and the United States." Milliken v. Sloat, 1 Nev. 573, 577 (1865). Not surprisingly, once it is triggered, the presumption against retroactivity is given considerable force. See U.S. Fid. & Guar. Co. v. United

1 States ex rel. Struthers Wells Co., 209 U.S. 306, 314 (1908) ("The 2 presumption is very strong that a statute was not meant to act
3 retrospectively, and it ought never to receive such a construction if it
4 is susceptible of any other."). Thus, as we have observed, a statute
5 will not be applied retroactively unless [(1)] the Legislature clearly 6 manifests an intent to apply the statute retroactively, or [(2)] "it 7 clearly, strongly, and imperatively appears from the act itself' that the 8 Legislature's intent cannot be implemented in any other fashion. PEBP, 9 124 Nev. at 154, 179 P.3d at 553 (quoting In re Estate of Thomas, 116 Nev.
10 492, 495-96, 998 P.2d 560, 562 (2000)).

11 In this case, there was no intent or indication in the opinion by this 12 Honorable Court to apply the Thomas decision retroactively. The implications of a 13 retroactive legal effect are enormous and profound, especially considering the list 14 of exemptions under NRS 608.250(2) that were completely eliminated by the 15 Thomas decision which includes casual babysitters, domestic service employees, 16 outside salespersons, agricultural employees, persons with severe disabilities and 17 limousine and taxicab drivers.

18 Statutes are presumptively prospective only, see McKellar v. McKellar, 110 19 Nev. 200, 871 P.2d 296, 298 (1994) ("[t]here is a general presumption in favor of 20 prospective application of statutes unless the legislature clearly manifests a 21 contrary intent or unless the intent of the legislature cannot otherwise be 22 satisfied").

23 In this case, the Thomas decision provides affirmative support that Real 24 Parties in Interest will not be able to go back in time and pursue minimum wage 25 claims against Petitioners prior to June 26, 2014. This Honorable Court ruled, "The 26

1 text of the Minimum Wage Amendment, by enumerating specific exceptions that 2 do not include taxicab drivers, supersedes and supplants the taxicab driver
3 exception set out in NRS 608.250(2).” (Page 9 of Thomas decision) From the use
4 of the present tense, the decision never intended for Real Parties in Interest to go
5 back in time; otherwise, the majority of this Honorable Court would have clearly 6 stated “superseded and supplanted,” the past tense, which would have entirely 7 different implications. Real Parties in Interest became aware of the specific use of 8 the present tense use of “supersedes” and “supplants” and filed a motion with this 9 Honorable Court to “correct” its opinion, which this Honorable Court denied and 10 ruled that the opinion shall stand as issued, providing further support that this 11 Honorable Court never intended its decision to be used to pursue actions against 12 Petitioners retroactively prior to June 26, 2014.

13
15
16
17
18 B. There Were Two (2) Conflicting Laws Regarding The Same Subject
19 Matter

20 As stated in Sandpointe Apartments, LLC Id. at pages 8-9:

21 The presumption against retroactivity is typically explained by 22 reference to fairness. Landgraf, 511 U.S. at 270. As the Supreme 23 Court has instructed, “[e]lementary considerations of fairness dictate 24 that individuals should have an opportunity to know what the law is 25 and to conform their conduct accordingly; settled expectations should 26 not be lightly disrupted.” Id. at 265. Moreover, “[in a free, dynamic 27 society, creativity in both commercial and artistic endeavors is 28 fostered by a rule of law that gives people confidence about the legal consequences of their actions.” Id. at 265-66.

In this case, NRS 608.250(2) was the law that employers were following

1 until the Thomas decision. Following passage of the Nevada Minimum Wage
2 Amendment in 2006, the statutory exemption for taxicab and limousine drivers
3 remained on the books and effective (NRS 608.250(2)). There was no express or 4 implied repeal at that time and in the years following. In 2009, Federal Judge
5 Clive Jones was the first jurist to weigh in on the question of “implied repeal,”
6 interpreting Nevada law in the Lucas v. Bell Trans, 2009 WL 2424557 (D. Nev.
7 2009) case. His decision against “implied repeal,” although not binding on this 8 Honorable Court, was nonetheless the only statement of competent judicial 9 authority on the Nevada law question, and remained so until Thomas. All during 10 those years from 2006 until June 26, 2014, employers and employees followed the 11 law as interpreted by Judge Jones, and were reasonable in doing so, since this 12 Honorable Court had not spoken otherwise. In addition, the Nevada Labor 13 Commissioner comported with that state of affairs, and continued to recognize 14 NRS 608.250(2) by issuing “Rules to be Observed By Employers,” dated 15 November 13, 2012, where it specifically listed the exceptions to minimum wage, 16 including taxicab drivers. See Petitioners’ Appendix PA036. Therefore, 17 Petitioners were following the law as it existed at the time, which was being 18 enforced by the Office of Labor Commissioner and hence there were no violations 19 of existing laws. This Honorable Court recognized this fact when it stated, “The 20 Amendment’s broad definition of employee and very specific exemptions
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

1 necessarily and directly conflict with the legislative exception for taxicab drivers
2 established by NRS 608.250(2)(e). Therefore, the two are “irreconcilably 3 repugnant,”... such that “both cannot stand,”... and the statute is impliedly
4 repealed by the constitutional amendment.” (Page 6 of Thomas decision) The 5 majority did not state “the statute was impliedly repealed.” This means that up
6 until the Thomas decision, this Honorable Court believed there was a legitimate 7 confusion among the public and employers, in that there were two (2) conflicting 8 laws on the same subject matter requiring a conclusive decision that would 9 establish precedent moving forward that would only apply prospectively. Nothing 10 from the Thomas decision indicates that it granted Real Parties in Interest a right to 11 pursue claims against Petitioners retroactively after the Thomas decision. Since 12 there were no violations of existing laws, Real Parties in Interest have no claims 13 against Petitioners upon which relief can be granted prior to June 26, 2014.

16
17
18
19 The Thomas decision made it clear that the exemptions under NRS
20 608.250(2) no longer apply. NRS 608.250(2) contained exemptions in effect since 21 1965, which employers reasonably and legitimately relied upon. The intent of the 22 Thomas decision was not to punish Petitioners including other employers who 23 reasonably and legitimately relied upon NRS 608.250(2) and the notices from the 24 Office of Labor Commissioner. Rather, the intent of Thomas was to make one 25 conclusive opinion on minimum wage law and to clarify the law prospectively.
26
27
28

1 This Honorable Court recently took the opportunity to cite to the Thomas
2 decision, by specifically using the present tense language, which provides further
3 support that this Honorable Court’s decision had prospective effect.

5 In Terry v. Sapphire Gentlemen’s Club, 130 Nev., Advance Opinion 87 (2014), at 6 Page 6 this Honorable Court stated:

8 ... and though this court has recognized that the text of the Minimum
9 Wage Amendment supplants that of our statutory minimum wage
10 laws to some extent, see Thomas v. Nev. Yellow Cab Corp., 130 Nev.
11 ___, ___, 327 P.3d 518, 522 (2014) (holding that “[t]he text of the 12 Minimum Wage Amendment ... supersedes and supplants the 13 taxicab driver exception set out in NRS 608.250(2)”)

14 The Nevada Department of Business and Industry which oversees the Nevada 15 Office of Labor Commissioner, agrees that the application of Thomas is 16 prospective, not retroactive. In its recent publication, The Business Advocate, it
17 contained an article titled, “A Minimum Wage Guide for Nevada Employers,” 18 where it stated:

19
20 While the constitutional amendment did not directly conflict with the 21 exemptions outlined in NRS 608.250, its passage created some 22 uncertainty. It was this uncertainty that the Nevada Supreme Court
23 addressed this past summer in Thomas v. Nevada Yellow Cab, 130
24 Nev. Adv. Op. 52 (2014). In its opinion, the Nevada Supreme Court
25 found that exemptions outlined in the Nevada Constitution supersede 26 the exemptions previously provided for in NRS 608.250. The only 27 individuals who are exempt from the payment of minimum wage, 28 according to the Nevada Supreme Court, are those specifically outlined in the constitutional amendment.

1 What does this decision mean for Nevada’s employers? It means that 2 employers who have previously relied on the exemptions outlined
3 in NRS 608.250 will be mandated to pay minimum wage to 4 individuals not specifically exempted in the Nevada Constitution. See
5 Page 7 of “A Minimum Wage Guide for Nevada Employers,” Winter
6 2014 as Petitioners’ Appendix PA-038-039.

6 In the article, the department that oversees the Labor Commissioner clearly 7 admitted and publicly announced that employers reasonably and legitimately relied 8 on the exemptions under NRS 608.250(2) prior to the Thomas decision.

9 Petitioners were among those employers who reasonably and legitimately relied on 10 the exemptions prior to the Thomas decision and thus should not be punished by 11 having to defend alleged class action claims involving alleged conduct that 12 occurred prior to the Thomas decision. Petitioners have been in compliance with 13 the Thomas decision since June 26, 2014. See Affidavit of Gene Auffert, CEO and 14 CFO as Petitioners’ Appendix PA041.

15
16
17
18
19 C. A New Rule of Law Must Be Given Prospective Application

20 In Breithaupt v. USAA Property and Casualty Insurance Company, 110 Nev.
21 31, 867 P.2d 402 (1994), at page 405 this Honorable Court followed the three part
22 test in Chevron Oil Co. v. Huson, 404 U.S. 97, 106-07, 92 S.Ct. 349, 355, 30
23 L.Ed.2d 296 (1971) on whether a new rule of law should be limited to prospective 24 application. In determining whether a new rule of law should be limited to 25 prospective application, courts have considered three factors: (1) “the decision to 26 prospective application, courts have considered three factors: (1) “the decision to 27 prospective application, courts have considered three factors: (1) “the decision to 28 prospective application, courts have considered three factors: (1) “the decision to

1 be applied nonretroactively must establish a new principle of law, either by 2 overruling clear past precedent on which litigants may have relied, or by deciding 3 an issue of first impression whose resolution was not clearly foreshadowed,” (2) 4 the court must “weigh the merits and demerits in each case by looking to the prior 5 history of the rule in question, its purpose and effect, and whether retrospective 6 operation will further or retard its operation;” and (3) courts consider whether 7 retroactive application “could produce substantial inequitable results.”

10 In this case, the Thomas decision was a landmark decision which established
11 a new principle of law that NRS 608.250(2)(e), which was in existence since 1965, 12 was no longer to be followed. This issue was of first impression, which was not 13 clearly foreshadowed by similar cases prior to the Thomas decision. The Thomas 14 decision was not rendered to punish Petitioners including other employers who 15 reasonably and legitimately relied upon NRS 608.250(2). Retroactive application 16 would effectively punish Petitioners for alleged actions that occurred prior to the 17 decision, which will not further the substantive nature of the Thomas decision, 18 since the ruling is worded in present rather than in the past tense. This analysis 19 would be entirely different had the Thomas decision been specifically worded to 20 apply retroactively. However, the decision was worded in the present tense and 21 meant to be applied prospectively. Furthermore, there will be substantial 22 inequitable results of retroactively applying the Thomas decision in the numerous 23
24
25
26
27
28

1 referenced cases involving taxicab drivers, and by permitting casual babysitters,
2 domestic service employees, outside salespersons, agricultural employees, persons
3 with severe disabilities and limousine drivers to pursue likely class action litigation 4 against their current or former employers for alleged conduct that allegedly 5 occurred prior to the Thomas decision, when those employers had a reasonable and 6 legitimate basis for relying on NRS 608.250(2) and the notices from the Office of 7 Labor Commissioner.

10 11 D. This Honorable Court Denied Real Parties’ in Interest “Motion to 12 Correct” Its Opinion

13 Counsel for Real Parties in Interest has admitted that Thomas is not 14 retroactive by filing the “Motion to Correct” and seeking from this Honorable
15 Court to change its written opinion to include past tense terminology so that it 16 would be retroactive, and exclude key present tense words. See Petitioners’ 17 Appendix PA147-153. On October 17, 2014, Petitioners filed their Opposition to 18 “Motion to Correct,” and persuasively argued that the Thomas decision was meant 19 to only apply prospectively, not retroactively. See Petitioners’ Appendix PA154-
20 163. On October 27, 2014, this Honorable Court denied Real Parties’ in Interest
21 “Motion to Correct,” and ruled that the opinion “shall stand as issued.” See 22 Petitioners’ Appendix PA164-165. This provides further support that this 23 Honorable Court never intended its decision to be used to pursue actions against 24 Petitioners or similarly situated employers, retroactively prior to June 26, 2014.
25
26
27
28

1 This was a compelling decision to deny the “Motion to Correct,” and was a clear
2 pronouncement by this Honorable Court indicating, that its decision was to be only
3 applied prospectively. If this Honorable Court had intended its landmark decision
4 on minimum wage in Thomas to have a retroactive effect upon Petitioners, as 5 argued in the “Motion to Correct,” this Honorable Court would have certainly 6 granted the “Motion to Correct,” and changed the language from the current 7 present tense, to past tense as specifically requested. However, this Honorable 8 Court refused to change the wording of its opinion, which is profound and 9 compelling. This Honorable Court’s decision to deny the “Motion to Correct,” is a 10 clear and authoritative evidence that the Thomas decision only applies
11 prospectively and thus Real Parties in Interest have no claim upon which relief can 12 be granted.
