ROUTING STATEMENT

Pursuant to NRAP 17(b)(5), this case is presumptively assigned to the Court of Appeals as the proceedings and order occurred during post-divorce proceedings in a family law case. However, Petitioner asserts that, pursuant to NRAP 17(a)(13) & (14), the matter should be assigned to the Nevada Supreme Court as the central issue appears to be an issue of first impression and implicates a significant public policy issue that is of statewide importance.
Specifically, the district court granted an evidentiary hearing on a motion

Specifically, the district court granted an evidentiary hearing on a motion to set aside and denied the opposition as to untimeliness of the motion. The Real Party in Interest moved the district court to set aside a Decree of Divorce that was filed in 2004. Petitioner opposed the motion stating in part that the motion was untimely on numerous bases. The district court found that timeframes did not apply as the injured party was the State of Nevada and the State had no notice of the potential procedural defect in the divorce case. The district court raised this sua sponte. There is no known law as to Nevada being an injured party.

PROCEDURAL POSTURE / BACKGROUND

On August 27, 2004, Petitioner (Jaswinder Singh, the Plaintiff in the district court) and Real Party in Interest (Rajwant Kaur, the Defendant in the district court), filed a Joint Petition for Summary Decree of Divorce. (PA at 1). Petitioner and Real Party in Interest attested under oath that Petitioner was at the time a bona fide resident of Nevada for more than six weeks preceding the filing of the Joint Petition. (PA at 1-5). A resident witness (Balbinder Singh Pabla) attested that Petitioner was a bona fide resident of Nevada for at least six weeks prior to the filing of the Joint Petition. (PA at 6-7). On September 8, 2004, a Decree of Divorce was entered. (PA at 8). The Decree of Divorce (signed by both Petitioner and Real Party in Interest) waived notice of entry of the Decree of Divorce. (PA at 9, 10).

Real Party in Interest had knowledge of the Decree of Divorce, as evidenced by her subsequent marriage to another person, which later also ended in divorce. (PA at 15). Real Party in Interest never asserts she did not know of the Decree of Divorce being entered. (See generally PA at 11-20, 92-102, 156-170).

Fourteen years later in 2018, Real Party in Interest files for divorce from Petitioner in California. (PA at 14). All the while, Real Party in Interest knew she was divorced from Respondent in Nevada in 2004.

Almost 14 ½ years later, Real Party in Interest filed a motion to set aside the Decree of Divorce based on it being purportedly void and due to fraud. (PA at 11-20). Specifically, Real Party in Interest claimed that neither party lived in Nevada as attested to under oath in the Joint Petition and that she (Real Party in Interest) was forced by Petitioner to sign the divorce paperwork. (PA at 11-20).

Among other bases, Petitioner opposed the motion as untimely. (PA at 62). Nevada law is crystal clear that filing a motion to set aside two years after acquiring knowledge of an order / judgment / decree that is that is purportedly void is too long and is unreasonable. See NRCP 60(b); see also Deal v. Baines, 110 Nev. 509, 512, 874 P.2d 775, 777-78 (1994). As for the fraud claim, that is barred by the six month limitation. See NRCP 60(b).

The district court's response to the untimeliness argument was that the time period had not yet begun to run as Nevada was the injured party, not Real Party in Interest. (PA at 159:22 – 161:8; 172:8-14). The district court gave no authority for this position. This position was not briefed by Real Party in Interest—even after Petitioner raised the issue in his Opposition. (PA at 11-20, 92-102).

The district court set an evidentiary hearing on the merits of the request to set aside. (PA at 172). This was later continued. (PA at 179).

Petitioner files this Petition and requests a stay of entry of judgment in the district court pending the outcome of this Petition.

Whether the case law created two-year limitation for a set aside of a decree of divorce due to it purportedly being void applies to when the district court was unaware of the issue that the decree might be void.

The district court declined to follow well-settled precedent, stating that Nevada was the injured party, not Defendant.

B. RELIEF SOUGHT

Petitioner is requesting a writ of mandamus / prohibition directing the district court to deny the motion to set aside.

STATEMENT OF IMPORTANCE OF SUBJECT MATTER

If the motion to set aside is granted, a divorce that is nearly 14 ½ years old will disappear, the parties will be retroactively re-married, and both parties will become retroactive bigamists.

POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

DISCUSSION

Standard of Review

Errors of law are reviewed de novo. See Mosley v. Dist. Ct., 124 Nev. 654, 188 P.3d 1136 (2008); see also Settlemeyer & Sons v. Smith & Harmer, 124 Nev. 1206, 197 P.3d 1051 (2008). Questions of construction of a statute / rule are also reviewed de novo. See Irving v. Irving, 122 Nev. 494, 134 P.3d 718 (2006); see also Carson City District Attorney v. Ryder, 116 Nev. 502, 998 P.2d 1186 (2000). Upon review, no deference is given to a trial court's reading of the rule / statute, but instead considers the question de novo. Id.

Writ Petition Standard

A writ of mandamus is to compel performance of an act which the law requires or to control an arbitrary or capricious abuse of discretion. See NRS 34.160; see also Borger v. Dist. Ct., 120 Nev. 1021, 1025, 102 P.3d 600, 603 (2004). A writ of prohibition is available when proceedings are without or in excess of the jurisdiction of the tribunal. See NRS 34.320; see also State v. Dist. Ct., 118 Nev. 140, 146-47, 42 P.3d 233, 237 (2002).

A district court's failure to apply or adhere to controlling legal authority "is a classic example of a manifest abuse of discretion that may be controlled through a writ of mandamus." See Gonzalez v. Dist. Ct., 129 Nev. 215, 217-18, 298 P.3d 448, 450 (2013). A manifest abuse of discretion can consist of "a clearly erroneous interpretation of the law or a clearly erroneous application of a law or rule" for which mandamus relief is appropriate. Id.

Writ relief is proper only when there is no plain, adequate, and speedy legal remedy. See NRS 34.170; see also Pan v. Dist. Ct., 120 Nev. 222, 224, 88 P.3d 840, 841 (2004). Ability to appeal generally precludes writ relief. See Pan, 120 Nev. at 225, 88 P.3d at 841. Petitioner bears the burden that extraordinary writ relief is warranted. Id., 120 Nev. at 228, 88 P.3d at 844.

Petitioner asserts that the district court clearly erred in its interpretation of Rule 60(b) in saying that the district court was the injured party and, thus, the limitations period had not yet begun to run. (PA at 159:22 – 161:8; 172:8-14). Clear Nevada law provides that two years is too long a period to wait after knowledge of an order to request a set aside due to it being purportedly void. See Deal, 110 Nev. at 512, 874 P.2d at 777-78. The district court ignored this well-settled law, created a fiction that Nevada was the injured party, and stated that the time limitations had not yet begun to run. (PA at 159:22 – 161:8; 172:8-14). Thus, the motion to set aside a decree entered almost 14 ½ years prior was set for an evidentiary hearing. (PA at 172).

This is exactly the kind of manifest abuse of discretion that is properly addressed in writ relief. See Gonzalez, 129 Nev. at 217-18, 298 P.3d at 450. The district court failed to apply controlling authority with the relevant facts not being in dispute.

As for availability of appeal, granting of an evidentiary hearing and even granting a motion to set aside is not appealable—let alone denial of an opposition to the same. See NRAP 3A(8). Further, the denial was not a final judgment that disposed of all issues presented in the case. See e.g. Brown v. MHC Stagecoach, 129 Nev. 343, 301 P.3d 850 (2013). Moreover, if final judgment is entered the parties would be made retroactive bigamists.¹ This would create a whirlwind of issues until the set aside would be resolved by an appeal. As such, there is no adequate alternative remedy, and an appeal will not be sufficient.

The Court Should Issue the Writ

As stated herein, the Court should issue a writ directing the district court to deny the motion to set aside. The district court ignored well-settled law as to the timeliness of a motion to set aside due to an order being purportedly void. Real Party in Interest filed a motion to set aside the decree as to it being purportedly void nearly 14 ½ years after she knew it was entered. Nevada law clearly says waiting two years to file to set aside due to an order being purportedly void is unreasonable, this precluding relief under Rule 60(b). See Deal, 110 Nev. at 512, 874 P.2d at 777-78. In the present case, Real Party in Interest took seven (7) times longer than the unreasonable time in Deal, yet the district court ignored this, stating that Nevada was the injured party—thus the time limits had not yet begun to run.² Oddly, Nevada is not a party to the underlying action.

The district court's argument that Nevada is the injured party and had no notice does not follow related Nevada law / custom. In writ petitions, it is Petitioner v. Respondent (District Court), yet the Real Party in Interest generally responds for the Respondent, though the Respondent is permitted to be ordered to respond. See NRAP 21(b)(1). Clearly, the request for relief is against the district court in such writ petitions, yet the real party in interest defends the district court respondent—not the district court itself.

With clear Nevada law and clear, undisputed facts, the district court manifestly abused its discretion in denying the opposition to the motion to set aside (as to the motion being untimely). The Court should issue a writ directing the district court to deny the motion to set aside as untimely.

Petitioner could find no law supporting the district court's position that Nevada was the injured party and that the time limitations do not begin to run until the State receives notice of the deficiency.

1	CONCLUSION
2	Based on the foregoing, the Court should issue a writ directing the district
