CLERK OF SUPREME COURT

DEPUTY CLERK

DEPARTMENT OF TAXATION,
Respondents.

VOLUNTARY RECUSAL

On May 20, 2020, I filed a notice disclosing my personal relationship with Tisha Black, Esq. and her family. Unaware of any involvement by the Black family in the pending litigation, I requested the parties to advise the court of any potential conflict or impact, or file a motion to disqualify me from participating in this case based on my disclosure.

In response to my disclosure, respondents represent the following. The law firm Black & LoBello, of which Tisha Black is a founding partner, represents defendant in intervention, Clear River LLC, in a consolidated district court matter from which this appeal originates. This appeal concerns an appeal from a district court order granting a preliminary injunction in which appellants, in part, seek to have the preliminary injunction reversed or set aside. Clear River LLC, would benefit if the district court's order granting preliminary injunction were reversed, set aside, or limited.

I have no personal bias or prejudice concerning any of the parties to these proceedings, nor do I possess any personal knowledge of the facts that are in dispute in these proceedings. See NCJC 2.11(A)(1). However, I believe my impartiality might reasonably be questioned because of the above-described circumstances. NCJC 2.11(A). Accordingly, I have decided to recuse myself voluntarily.
