To whom it may concern:

I vehemently oppose mediation as mandatory prior to eviction. In this case, didn't the tenant already have 7 months to negotiate with tenants? This will give them an extra month of free rent waiting for their court date IF it's only a one month delay.

Isn't that what the judge is for? If the landlord is a bad and refuses to work with a tenant isn't he/she there to be fair and impartial?

What about the landlord who depends on the rent to live on and is asset rich but cash pool? Who's fighting for him/her?
