JURISDICTIONAL STATEMENT

Palace agrees with the Jurisdictional Statement contained in Appellant's Opening Brief ("AOB") filed by Appellant, Danny Ceballos.

ROUTING STATEMENT

Palace agrees with Ceballos that the case involves a matter of first impression and statewide public importance that should be decided by the Supreme Court.

STANDARD OF REVIEW

Palace agrees that an order granting a NRCP 12(b)(5) motion to dismiss is reviewed de novo.<sup>1</sup>

STATEMENT OF ISSUES PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

1. Whether the District Court correctly determined that federal law should be considered to determine if the use of a product is "lawful" for purposes of NRS 613.333.

2. Whether the District Court correctly found that the Complaint failed to allege a violation of Nevada public policy on which to premise a claim for tortious discharge.

<sup>1</sup> Buzz Stew, LLC v. City of North Las Vegas, 124 Nev. 224, 228, 181 P.3d 670, 672 (2008) (citation omitted).

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Ceballos' rendition of the procedural history is accurate.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

While some of the allegations of the Complaint are over the top – e.g., that Ceballos was interrogated and placed in a holding cell,<sup>2</sup> the essence of his Statement of Facts section is correct – following an on-the-job fall, Ceballos tested positive for marijuana and was fired. The allegations of the Complaint that Ceballos had not used marijuana in the previous 24 hours and was not under the influence or impaired during his shift must be accepted as true for purposes of a motion to dismiss.<sup>3</sup>

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

With exceptions irrelevant to this appeal, NRS 613.333 makes it an unlawful employment practice to discharge an employee who “engages in the lawful use in this state of any product outside the premises of the employer during the employee’s nonworking hours.” The outcome of this appeal hinges on the meaning of the phrase “lawful use.”

“Lawful” is not defined in the statute. Its generally understood plain meaning is something in accordance with or not forbidden by law.

1 To determine if something is “lawful,” all applicable laws should be
2 considered. Nevada has adopted various laws relating to the medical and 3 recreational use of marijuana, but it remains, as Ceballos concedes, an
4 unlawful Schedule I drug under the Controlled Substances Act (“CSA”).<sup>4</sup>

6 Ceballos claims the words “in this state” in NRS 613.333 mean that 7 only Nevada state law is to be considered in deciding whether the use of a
8 product is lawful. As discussed below, his efforts to equate “in this state”
9 with “lawful use under Nevada state law,” “lawful use under the laws of 10 this state” or a similar phrase are unavailing. Since “lawful” is not 11 properly defined for NRS 613.333 purposes to include only state law, the 12 District Court correctly held that Ceballos’ statutory claim should be 13 dismissed because he did not engage in the lawful use of a product.

17 AOB takes some inexplicable detours. For example, considerable 18 time is devoted to reaching the conclusion that NRS 678A-D, which is not
19 a basis for any claim, is not preempted by the CSA even though 20 preemption was not an issue raised in the lower court and not a subject of 21 the Order Granting Motion to Dismiss.<sup>5</sup> The lack of CSA preemption has 22 no bearing on whether only state law is to be considered to determine 23

27 <sup>5</sup> JA000052-54 (hereafter the “Order”).

1 lawful use under NRS 613.333. Ceballos also raises as an appellate issue
2 that NRS 613.333 is not superseded by NRS 678D.510, which is strange
3 since the District Court never made such a determination.

5 Finally, the District Court properly dismissed Ceballos' claim for 6 tortious discharge in violation of public policy. This claim requires more
7 than a mere public policy violation and has been recognized only on a rare
8 and exceptional basis. Given that this Court has declined to recognize 9 such a claim in the context of age discrimination and racial discrimination 10 by a small employer, it is dubious that it would be cognizable if an 11 employee is terminated for testing positive after alleged off-duty
12 marijuana use. Moreover, if Ceballos' NRS 613.333 claim is deemed 13 viable (which it should not be) the tortious discharge claim cannot be 14 asserted because Ceballos has a comprehensive remedy under that statute.

19 ARGUMENT

20 THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY FOUND THAT 21 FEDERAL LAW SHOULD BE CONSIDERED FOR 22 PURPOSES OF DETERMINING A "LAWFUL" ACTIVITY UNDER NRS 613.333

23 Relevant Rules of Statutory Interpretation

24 "The leading rule of statutory construction is to ascertain the intent
25 of the legislature in enacting the statute," with "the statute's plain 26
27
28

1 meaning” being the best indicator of such intent.<sup>6</sup> “If the statute’s
2 language is clear and unambiguous, we enforce the statute as written.”<sup>7</sup>
4 “Only when the statute is ambiguous . . . [i.e.] subject to more than one
5 reasonable interpretation, do we look beyond the language [of the statute]
6 to consider its meaning in light of its spirit, subject matter and public
7 policy.”<sup>8</sup>

9 NRS 613.333 Unambiguously Considers Federal Law in 10 Determining Whether a Product is Lawfully Used in Nevada

11 NRS 613.333 generally prohibits discharging an employee who 12 “engages in the lawful use in this state of any product outside the premises
13 of the employer during the employee’s nonworking hours.” The Order 14 correctly found that not just state law should be considered for purposes of 15 determining whether the use of a product is lawful under NRS 613.333.
16

18 Ceballos dissents. While he concedes marijuana use is still illegal
19 under the CSA,<sup>9</sup> Ceballos claims the use of the words “in this state” makes 20 it “clear that the Nevada Legislature intended to limit any analysis under 21 [NRS 613.333] to consider the legality of a product under Nevada state

24 <sup>6</sup> Dezzani v. Kern & Associates, Ltd., 134 Nev. 61, 64, 412 P.3d 56, 59
25 (2018) (citations omitted).

26 <sup>7</sup> Hobbs v. State, 127 Nev. 234, 237, 251 P.3d 177, 179 (2011) (citation 27 omitted).

28 <sup>8</sup> Id., at 179 (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

<sup>9</sup> AOB at 5.

1 law only [and] does not leave open the possibility that federal law be
2 considered.”<sup>10</sup> Therefore, he posits, since “NRS 678D.200 unambiguously
3 allows, without threat of legal punishment, the recreational use of 4 marijuana by adults 21 years of age or older in the state (sic) of Nevada,
5 pursuant to the parameters found in NRS 678A-D,” his termination
6 violated NRS 613.333 (accepting as true the allegations of the 7 Complaint).<sup>11</sup>

10 Ceballos is wrong. First, NRS 678D.200(1) “exempt[s] from state
11 prosecution” certain activities relating to marijuana by persons 21 years or 12 older; i.e., certain acts have been decriminalized.<sup>12</sup> Query if these activities
13 are “lawful” under Nevada law.
14

16 Regardless of the outcome of that question, Ceballos misinterprets
17 NRS 613.333. The statute does not say “lawful use under Nevada state 18 law,” “lawful use under the laws of this state” or a similar phrase that 19 suggests only Nevada state law should be considered for purposes of 20 determining legality. In the phrase “in this state,” the word “in” is a 21 preposition that is used to indicate inclusion within a place – the “state” of 22

24
25 <sup>10</sup> AOB at 8 (emphasis in original).

26 <sup>11</sup> AOB at 7-8.

27 <sup>12</sup> United States v. Malik, 963 F.3d 1014, 1016 (9th Cir. 2020).

1 Nevada.<sup>13</sup> Thus, the relevant consideration is whether the product can be
2 used in a “lawful” manner within the confines of the State of Nevada, not
3 whether the use of marijuana is allowed if only state law is considered.

5 NRS 613.333 does not define “lawful.” When interpreting statutory 6 terms, the court is to give words their plain meaning.<sup>14</sup> Interpreting 7 Colorado’s “lawful activities” statute,<sup>15</sup> the Colorado Supreme Court held 8 that the “generally understood meaning” of “lawful” is “in accordance with 9 the law or legitimate.”<sup>16</sup> Coats noted cases from other jurisdictions had 10 reached a similar conclusion.<sup>17</sup>
11

12
13
14 <sup>13</sup> Merriam-Webster.com (defining “in” as a “function word to indicate 15 inclusion, location, or position within limits”). This interpretation of “in 16 this state” should alleviate Ceballos’ concern (e.g. at AOB, p. 8) that no
17 words in a statute should be rendered superfluous. Hobbs, 251 P.3d at 18 179.

19 <sup>14</sup> In re: Estate of Murray, 131 Nev. 64, 67, 344 P.3d 419, 421 (2015)
20 (citation omitted).

21 <sup>15</sup> C.R.S. 24-34-402.5

22 <sup>16</sup> Coats v. Dish Network, LLC., 350 P.3d 849, 852 (Colo. 2015) (citation 23 omitted). Ceballos claims Coats is distinguishable because the words “in 24 this state” are not included in the language of Colorado’s lawful activities
25 statute. AOB at 8 n. 2. That is true, but Coats’ significance is not that it
26 interprets a lawful activities statute with language identical to NRS
27 613.333. Rather, the significance lies in its interpretation of the meaning 28 of “lawful” and its proper refusal to limit the meaning to state law only.

<sup>17</sup> Id., at 852, citing, In re: Adoption of B.C.H., 22 N.E.3d 580, 585 (Ind.
2014) (citation omitted); (“lawful” means “not contrary to law”); Hougum
v. Valley Memorial Homes, 574 N.W.2d 812, 821 (N.D. 1998) (citation omitted) (interpreting “lawful” in North Dakota’s lawful activity statute as meaning “authorized by law and not contrary to, nor forbidden by law”).
These holdings are all consistent with Ceballos’ position that “lawful”

1 It is axiomatic that there are a variety of laws that apply to persons
2 residing in Nevada – federal, state and local. All these laws need to be
3 considered to determine if an employee is engaging in a “lawful” use of a 4 product under NRS 613.333. This is demonstrated by Riddle v.
5 Washington, which involved a claim that an employee’s “use of cigarettes
6 outside the premises of the [employer] was a factor in having his 7 employment terminated.”<sup>18</sup> The City of Las Vegas went beyond the 8 “Nevada State Law prohibit[ing] the smoking of tobacco in public
9 buildings”<sup>19</sup> and “enforce[d] a stricter policy by prohibiting tobacco . . . in 10 city vehicles.” The court found “the City may legitimately prohibit its 11 employees from smoking in city vehicles without running afoul of § 12 613.333.”<sup>20</sup> It did not just consider whether smoking in city vehicles was 13 prohibited by “state” law and then cease its analysis.<sup>21</sup>

14 In summary, it is unambiguous that the phrase “in this state” refers 15 to the State of Nevada as a location, and not as synonymous with “under 16

18
19
20
21
22 should be defined as “being in harmony with the law.” AOB at 7, citing,
23 Merriam-Webster.com.

24 <sup>18</sup> Id., 2012 WL 3135381 at *5 (D. Nev. 2012).

25 <sup>19</sup> The law is not specified by citation in the opinion. Presumably, it is 26 NRS 202.2483(1)(d).

27 <sup>20</sup> Id., at *5.

28 <sup>21</sup> As a matter of candid disclosure, NRS 202.2483(8) provides that localities can have more restrictive laws than the state law. However, there is no indication this was the basis for the Riddle decision.

1 Nevada law” or a similar phrase. Unless defined otherwise, the word
2 “lawful” encompasses things that are not contrary to law, and the laws of
3 all jurisdictions need to be considered. The District Court correctly
4 determined that Ceballos did not engage in the lawful use of a product in 5 this state for purposes of NRS 613.333 based on marijuana’s continuing 6 illegality under federal law.

9 Nothing in The Language of NRS 678A-D
10 or NRS 613.132 Warrants Reversal

11 Ceballos suggests that “[e]ven if this Court finds that the plain
12 language does not support the classification of marijuana use as lawful
13 under NRS 613.333, the legislative history clearly does.”<sup>22</sup>
14

15 Palace agrees that if a statute is ambiguous – and it submits NRS
16 613.333 is not – legislative history can be relevant to the Legislature’s
17 intent. Interestingly, however, in this section of AOB, Ceballos does not 18 reference the legislative history of NRS 613.333; instead he talks about the 19 history of NRS 678A-D (and also mentions NRS 608.132).
20

22 Discussing NRS 678A-D, Ceballos states: “It is apparent that the 23 Nevada Legislature wanted all cannabis industry related issues to exclude 24 federal involvement and rely on state regulation. As such, considering the 25
26

---

27 <sup>22</sup> AOB at 10.
28

1 federal legality of marijuana use when interpreting a Nevada statute clearly
2 goes against the Legislature’s intent in protecting employees who engage
3 in adult cannabis use that is legal under state law.”<sup>23</sup>

5 The primary question posed in this appeal is whether NRS 613.333
6 considers only state law to determine if a product is being used lawfully.
8 Nothing in the legislative history of NRS 678A-D sheds light on the 9 thinking of the Legislature decades earlier when NRS 613.333 was enacted.
10 Ceballos cites nothing from the legislative history of the latter statute
11 which suggests federal law can be ignored in deciding whether the use of a 12 product is “lawful.”
13

14 Ceballos finds it significant that when NRS 678A-D was enacted,
15 unlike certain other statutes, no steps were undertaken to amend NRS
16 613.333 “to exclude activities legalized under NRS 678A-D.”<sup>24</sup> Ceballos
17 believes that if the Legislature had wanted “marijuana’s illegality under 18 federal law . . . to play a role in determining a person’s rights under . . .
19 NRS 613.333, it would have specified as much.”<sup>25</sup>
20
21

22 This should be viewed differently. Since marijuana cannot be 23 lawfully used under NRS 613.333 (properly interpreted) because of the
25

26 <sup>23</sup> AOB at 10.

27 <sup>24</sup> AOB at 18.

28 <sup>25</sup> AOB at 18-19.

1 CSA, there would have been no need to amend the statute. If the
2 Legislature had wanted to make sure that employees, once hired, were not
3 later terminated for using marijuana on their own time away from work in 4 a manner that did not impact their employment, it could have amended
5 NRS 613.333, or some other statute, to so provide. That it did not do so is 6 what is significant.

9 Finally, Ceballos mentions NRS 613.132 as “an obvious example of 10 the Legislature’s intent to protect Nevada workers from adverse 11 employment actions related to legal cannabis use outside of the 12 workplace.”<sup>26</sup> All this statute does is ensure that certain employees<sup>27</sup> are 13 not eliminated from being hired because they have a positive pre-
14 employment drug test for marijuana. It does not prevent employees, like 15 Ceballos, from being terminated for positive tests occurring later in their 16 employment. (Also, as discussed more fully below, NRS 678D.510(1)(a) 17 allows employers to maintain and enforce drug policies pertaining to 18 marijuana).
19

20
21
22 The Lack of CSA Preemption Has No Bearing on This Case
23

24 Almost a quarter of AOB is spent discussing whether the CSA
25

26
27 <sup>26</sup> AOB at 9.

28 <sup>27</sup> Those that do not fall within the scope of NRS 613.132(2)(a)-(d).

1 preempts state law, concluding that no preemption exists. This entire 2 exercise is curious because Palace did not make a preemption argument in 3 seeking the dismissal of this action and the Order makes no reference to 4 preemption.

6 Equally curious is that Ceballos does not analyze whether the CSA
7 preempts NRS 613.333 – the statutory basis for his purported claim.
8 Instead, the analysis centers on whether the CSA preempts NRS 678A-D.<sup>28</sup>
9 According to Ceballos, since “the CSA has no impact on the issues at 10 hand, [t]he District Court’s determination that marijuana use does not 11 qualify as the ‘lawful use in this state of any product’ because it is 12 federally illegal is therefore incorrect.”<sup>29</sup>
13
14
15

16 Palace agrees CSA preemption is irrelevant to this case.<sup>30</sup> However,
17 such a conclusion does nothing to resolve the question of whether only 18 state law should be considered in deciding if marijuana use is “lawful”
19
20

---

21 <sup>28</sup> AOB at 13 (“NRS 678A-D and the CSA are clearly not in positive
22 conflict with one another . . . [T]he CSA does not expressly preempt
23 Nevada’s state marijuana laws. NRS 678A-D are not impliedly preempted 24 by federal law either”).

25 <sup>29</sup> AOB at 15.

26 <sup>30</sup> NRS 613.333 prohibits the discharge of an employee for the “lawful”
27 use of a product on his or her own time. The CSA makes certain things
28 illegal relating to marijuana but does not address employee discharge.
Since “lawful” is properly interpreted as encompassing federal law, the two statutes are perfectly compatible.

1 under NRS 613.333. This entire section of AOB is nugatory.

2 THE DISTRICT COURT DID NOT FIND THAT
3 NRS 613.333 IS SUPERSEDED BY NRS 678D.510

4 The second issue presented by Ceballos for review is “Whether the 5 District Court erred in interpreting NRS 678D.510 to supersede Ceballos’s
6 rights under NRS 613.333.”<sup>31</sup> The District Court did not make such a 7 ruling.

9 The Order makes only two references to NRS 678D.510. The first is 10 the accurate statement that “NRS 678D.510(1)(a) provides that Nevada’s
11 laws pertaining to the adult use of cannabis do not prevent an employer 12 from having and enforcing policies relating to the use of marijuana by 13 employees.”<sup>32</sup> The second reference is to NRS 678D.510 being a basis for 14 finding that “the Complaint does not allege a violation of public policy . . .
15 upon which to assert a tortious discharge in violation of public policy
16 claim.”<sup>33</sup> The Order never states that NRS 678D.510 supersedes NRS
17 613.333.
18

19 NRS 678D.200(3)(c) exempts from prosecution a person age 21 or 20 older who “[e]ngages in the adult use of cannabis in accordance with the 21
22
23
24

1 provisions of this title.” However, NRS 678D.510(1)(a) states that “[t]he
2 provisions of this chapter do not prohibit . . . [a] private employer from 3 maintaining, enacting and enforcing a workplace policy prohibiting or 4 restricting actions or conduct otherwise permitted under this chapter”
5 (emphasis added).

8 Thus, while adult recreational marijuana use is generally non-9 prosecutable as a matter of Nevada state law, NRS 678D.510 leaves an 10 employer free to adopt policies that impose restrictions on that right, which 11 would include the right to terminate an employee who tests positive for 12 marijuana use. In other words, an employee is free to use marijuana on his 13 or her own time, but there can still be employment consequences for doing 14 so.

17 Ceballos contends “[t]he Legislature did not intend for an 18 employer’s workplace policy against marijuana use to limit an employee’s 19 ability to engage in the legal adult use of cannabis outside of working 20 hours.”<sup>34</sup> There is no basis for this conclusion. Nothing in the plain 21 language of NRS 678.510(1)(a) limits employer drug policies regarding 22 marijuana to things that occur in the workplace during work hours.<sup>35</sup> If the 23

25

27 <sup>35</sup> In the AOB, Ceballos highlights the words “workplace policy” in NRS
28 678D.510(1)(a) to suggest the statute is only intended to regulate things

1 Legislature had intended to limit in such a manner the policies that
2 employers could maintain, enact or enforce in such a manner, presumably
3 it would have added such language to do so.

5 Even if the District Court had addressed this issue and the two 6 statutes were truly irreconcilable, “the more specific statute will take
7 precedence, and is construed as an exception to the more general statute.”<sup>36</sup>
8 Here, to the extent there is a conflict between NRS 613.333 and NRS
9 678D.510(1)(a), the latter statute would take precedence – NRS 613.333
10 generally sets forth the rule on lawful use, and NRS 678D.510(1)(a)
11 creates an exception for employer policies relating to the use of marijuana.
12

14 THE DISTRICT COURT CORRECTLY FOUND THAT
15 THE COMPLAINT DOES NOT STATE A CLAIM
16 FOR RELIEF FOR TORTIOUS DISCHARGE
17 IN VIOLATION OF PUBLIC POLICY

18 In Nevada, all employees are presumed to be employed at-will,
19

21 that happen in the “workplace.” The presupposes that a “workplace 22 policy” can only pertain to conduct that occurs at the workplace or during 23 work hours. Employers typically have work policies that capture things 24 that occur outside of work hours and/or off the work premises, for 25 example, policies about off-duty conduct that reflects adversely on the 26 employer and the use of social media or technology away from the 27 workplace. Using Ceballos’ interpretation, it would not be a violation of a 28 “workplace policy” if an employee constantly harasses another employee with sexual comments and sexual advances after hours outside of work.

<sup>36</sup> Doe Dancer I v. La Fuente, Inc., 137 Nev. Adv. Op. No. 3, 481 P.3d 860, 871 (2021) (citation omitted).

1 meaning they can usually be terminated without notice at any time for any
2 or no reason without the employer incurring liability.<sup>37</sup> In rare and
3 exceptional cases, the Nevada Supreme Court has recognized exceptions
4 to the at-will doctrine when the employer's conduct violates strong and 5 compelling public policy.<sup>38</sup>

8 In his Complaint, Ceballos described the public policy implicated as 9 follows:

10 It is Plaintiff's statutory right, under NRS 678D,
11 to engage in adult cannabis consumption
12 pursuant to the chapter's guidelines . . .

13 Nevada has a strong public policy interest in 14 protecting the statutory rights of its citizens.
15 Even more so, Nevada has a strong public policy
16 interest in ensuring its citizens are not denied the 17 ability to support themselves and their families
18 due to engagement in statutorily protected and 19 completely lawful activities.<sup>39</sup>

20 Regarding Ceballos' claimed statutory right to use cannabis on his 21 own time without being fired, the mere existence of an alleged violation of 22 public policy is not enough for a tortious discharge claim.<sup>40</sup> In addition to though such discrimination is clearly against Nevada public policy).

1 age discrimination, this Court has also declined to recognize a tortious
2 discharge claim for race discrimination in businesses having less than 3 fifteen employees.<sup>41</sup> It is difficult to believe that the Court would reject a 4 public policy tort for something as repulsive as race discrimination (even 5 though an employee may have no statutory remedy for such racism against 6 a small employer), but would find a tortious discharge claim cognizable
7 for persons discharged for testing positive for marijuana.

10 In AOB, Ceballos also mentions that (1) “Nevada has a strong
11 public policy interest in maintaining a well-regulated cannabis industry
12 based on transparency and trust within the community;” and (2) “Nevada
13 also has a strong policy interest in maintaining its sovereignty and keeping 14 the federal government out of state proceedings and law making.”<sup>42</sup> These 15 alleged public policies are not even recited in the Complaint and should 16 not be considered.<sup>43</sup>
17
18

19
20 Finally, if the Court finds that the Complaint states a viable claim
21 for relief under NRS 613.333 (which it should not), then the tortious

28 even when the enforcement of gaming laws was implicated).

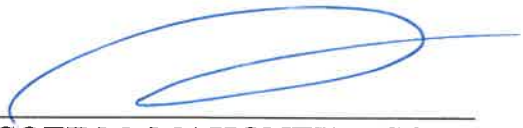

1 discharge claim must be dismissed because such claims are not recognized
2 when a sufficiently-comprehensive statutory remedy exists.<sup>44</sup> Shoen held
3 that the remedy under NRS 50.070(2)(c) was comprehensive enough to 4 preclude a tortious discharge claim.<sup>45</sup> The damages available under NRS
5 613.333(2) are virtually identical to those under NRS 50.070(2)(c), and 6 thus Plaintiff cannot assert a tortious discharge claim as a matter of law if 7 his NRS 613.333 claim is allowed to proceed.
