I. Compton should get the extension Rule 26(b)(1) permits.

Petitioners offer a limited opposition to this motion. Compton’s answering brief is presently due December 13. Rule 26(b)(1)(B) permits Compton to “request by telephone a single 14-day extension of time for performing any act except the filing of a notice of appeal.” In practice this extension is routinely granted. Petitioners do not oppose granting Compton the 14 day extension Rule 26(b)(1)(B) provides.

Petitioners oppose a further extension. The petition was filed on October 8 and raises narrow issues that Compton previously briefed to the district court. On November 15 the order directing an answer was filed. Although Compton asserts his counsel are preparing for two trials, so is Petitioners' lawyer. Further, in the context of docketing statements "[c]ounsel's caseload generally will not provide grounds for an extension."¹ This logic should apply in other contexts too.
