Performed by high-throughput nucleic acid amplification at Northwest Laboratory using TaqPath™ COVID-19 Combo Kit assay, a FDA-cleared Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) assay (details available upon request). TaqPath™ COVID-19 Combo Kit assay was validated by ThermoFisher Scientific using nasopharyngeal swab, nasopharyngeal aspirate, and bronchoalveolar lavage samples. Saliva has also been validated at NWL as an acceptable sample type; other sample types have not been independently validated by Northwest Laboratory but information on preferred and acceptable collection sites and collection procedures may be obtained at the CDC website (<https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/lab/guidelines-clinical-specimens.html>). Room temperature stability of viral samples has been validated at NWL in all currently accepted media types for at least 8 days; the sensitivity of the assay with samples older than this has not been assessed and negative results should be interpreted with caution. False-positive and false-negative results can occur. Negative results do not preclude infection with SARS-CoV-2 virus and should not be the sole basis of a patient management decision. In some patients repeat testing at various time points or from various collection sites may be necessary for virus detection. False-negative results may arise from improper sample collection, degradation of viral RNA during shipping or storage, the presence of RT-PCR inhibitors, and/or mutation in the SARS-CoV-2 virus. Pooled testing may be used for some specimens. Pooled testing has been validated at NWL with oversight by WA state Department of Health, using no greater than four specimens per pool. Negative results from pools are reported directly while positive results are reflexed to neat (unpooled) testing of individual specimens. NWL validation studies demonstrated minimal effect on sensitivity with this level of pooling. The impact of vaccines, antiviral therapeutics, antibiotics, and chemotherapeutic or immunosuppressant drugs on assay performance has not been evaluated. Please see CDC website for updated testing algorithms and other information.
