ARGUMENT

I. David's Brief Attempts to Create a Basis for Affirmation Which Does Not Exist.

A. Negotiations Regarding the SBP

In addressing the Memorandum of Understanding ("MOU"), David has made representations which are simply not based on the facts in evidence. Sarah is not going to address each and every erroneous fact, as she has set forth the facts within her Opening Brief. Sarah is only going to address those facts which are specifically necessary for this Reply.

David claims that the entire reason the Survivor Benefit ("SBP") was left out of the MOU was because the parties had agreed he would keep it, his logic leaves much to be desired. Respondent's Answering Brief, page 4. First, both David and Ms. McConnell testified that while he said "no" to providing the SBP to Sarah, she never explicitly waived her interest. APPX IX: 1746, 1777-1781. Further Sarah testified it was her understanding that the SBP was part and parcel in the other PERS benefits that she was receiving. APPX VII: 1219. Additionally, David claimed that the MOU contained only those items which he was "giving up." APPX IX: 1778-1779. When challenged, however, he

1 acknowledged that other items were included in the MOU which were not things
2 that he was "giving up," but rather, what was included was what the parties
3 discussed. APPX IX: 1779-1781. He also acknowledged that many of the other
4 necessary terms which had not been in the MOU were also not discussed. APPX
5 IX: 1788-1792. But, as David also pointed out, none of the other additions
6 impacted him financially, in a way that made him unhappy. APPX IX:1793-
7 1795.

11 David contends that there were no discussions of the SBP prior to 12 the Decree being finalized. Answering Brief, page 5. And while it is true that 13 there were no verbal discussions, Ms. McConnell (whom the Court found 14 credible despite the pending malpractice action against her APPX VIII:1526;
15 APPX IX: 1730-1731) acknowledged that she was standing next to the Decree
16 while Ms. Cooley was drafting the same and that they discussed the terms as Ms.
17 Cooley drafted. APPX IX:1740-1741. Especially in light of the fact that Ms.
18 McConnell and Ms. Cooley were revising the draft together, it was plainly
19 apparent that there were additional negotiations and that the Decree itself
20 reflected a counteroffer pursuant the Restatement (second) of Contracts § 59
21 (1978). See also, Pravorne v. McLeod, 79 Nev. 341, 345-346, 383 P.2d 855, 857

1 (1963); Heffern v. Vernarecci, 92 Nev. 68, 544 P.2d 1197 (1976). Despite
2 David's claim that Sarah and Ms. Cooley had contradictory testimony regarding
3 additional negotiations, the reality is that Sarah has a lay person's understanding
4 of negotiations, and Ms. Cooley is familiar with the laws surrounding contracts,
5 and the many nuances of what negotiations constitute. The testimony is not ipso
6 facto contradictory, rather Sarah's testimony is simply based on a narrower
7 definition of "negotiation."
8

11 At that point, when the Decree was given to the parties and their counsel
12 to review, signing the same became acceptance of the counteroffer. Campanelli
13 v. Conservas Altamira, S.A., 86 Nev. 838, 841, 477 P.2d 870, 872 (1970).<sup>1</sup>
14

16 B. There Was No Oral Agreement and No Breach

17 David then claims that there was an "Oral Agreement" that the Decree
18 would not be filed, but rather that Ms. McConnell would take the same for 19 "further review." Answering Brief, page 5. David's claim does match the district
20 court's decision. APPX VIII:1519. However, the district court's decision was not 21 based on the evidence that was before it. David's testimony was not that there 22
24

25 <sup>1</sup> Campanelli also notes that "when a party to a written contract accepts it is a contract he 26 is bound by the stipulations and conditions expressed in it, whether he reads them or not." Id., emphasis added.

1 was an "agreement," but merely that Ms. McConnell told him that he should sign
2 now and she would review it later (which may be a malpractice issue but is not
3 an "agreement"). APPX IX: 1791-1792. However, Ms. McConnell testified that 4 she reviewed the Decree that day, and only when pushed did she then "concede"
5 that she had not reviewed it very closely. APPX IX: 1721-1722. Further, neither
6 Ms. McConnell nor Ms. Cooley testified of an agreement to hold the Decree. In 7 fact, Ms. McConnell's preliminary testimony was that she was flipping back
8 through the Decree a few days later, before submitting it, and that is when she 9 "noticed" the provision. APPX IX: 1722-1723. Ms. McConnell's consistent 10 testimony was that she called Ms. Cooley after to discuss the inclusion of the 11 SBP. APPX IX: 1723-1724. Ms. McConnell even testified that she would not 12 have signed the document, if she did not believe that David had reviewed the 13 same, that she did not specifically recall anyone being rushed, and that she 14 herself had cleared her entire day to participate in the mediation. APPX IX:
15 1720-1721. The testimony was that the Decree was drafted around 2:30 or 3:00
16 p.m. APPX IX: 1720. That left the parties and their counsel at least two hours
17 to review the Decree. It does not make sense, and at no time did Ms. McConnell
18 testify, that she needed more time to review the Decree. Further, there would be

1 no purpose in tendering a copy of the fully executed Decree to Ms. Cooley if it
2 was not truly "final." If David's claim: that only Ms. McConnell intended to 3 engage in a further review were true; there was no reason to provide an executed
4 copy to Ms. Cooley.
5

7 David's allegation was that he signed only so he didn't have to go back to 8 Ms. McConnell's office. APPX IX: 1783-1784. Therefore, there was no reason
9 for Ms. McConnell to have signed it, prior to reviewing it, and certainly no
10 reason to provide a copy to Ms. Cooley, if David's signature didn't yet "count."
11

13 The district court's finding of an oral agreement is not supported by the 14 testimony and evidence offered, nor is it supported by plain logic. As such there
15 can be no "breach," of a non-existent agreement. However, even if there were 16 such an agreement the testimony does not support a "breach."
17

19 Continued negotiations after an agreement or a judgment, especially where 20 a party is on notice that the other party intends to uphold to original agreement
21 do not prevent a party from relying on a signed contract. Heard v. Fisher's &
22 Cobb Sales & Distributors, Inc., 88 Nev. 566, 502 P.2d 104 (1972); Restatement
23 (second) of Contracts § 59, § 61 (1978); Pravorne, supra; C.f. Heffern, supra;
24
25 Testimony supported that there were conversations between Ms. McConnell and 26

1 Ms. Cooley that set up that exact expectation. Both Ms. Cooley and Ms.
2 McConnell testified that Ms. Cooley stated that it was malpractice not to address
3 the SBP. APPX IX:1724. The testimony makes it clear that Ms. Cooley did not
4 intend to simply waive the SBP. Further, Ms. Cooley testified that she attempted
5 to have further discussions with Ms. McConnell and even gave her a deadline to 6 respond, after which she would submit the Decree. APPX X: 1873. Ms.
7 McConnell could not recall if she had received such correspondence. APPX
8 X:1897- 1898.

10 It should be noted that David's statement to this Court: that there were 11 emails shown/presented as exhibits at trial, is flatly false. APPX VII: 1180;
12 APPX IX: 1700. Emails were discussed, but none were admitted. Additionally, 13 although David's Answering Brief, page 39, claims that Ms. Cooley filed the 14 Decree "surreptitiously," within the same brief, he admits that Ms. Cooley
15 informed Ms. McConnell of her intention to do so.

16
17 David's admission, that Ms. Cooley informed Ms. McConnell that they
18 would either need to renegotiate or she would file the Decree is almost identical
19 to Heard, supra. Just as there, it was proper for Ms. Cooley to file the Decree.
20 There was a signed agreement that was being withheld. Ms. Cooley notified Ms.
21

1 McConnell that without some good faith attempts to discuss the issue, she would
2 be submitting the Decree. Ms. McConnell did not respond. Therefore, under 3 Nevada law, Sarah was well within reason to rely on the signed agreement for 4 which she had negotiated, and well within reason to have the same entered by the 5 Court.
6

7 C. Contract Law

8
9 Although the linchpins of this case are David's signature and the merger
10 of the MOU, David continues to focus on contract formation principles. However 11 he does so through a narrow lens that simply does not encompass the reality of 12 contract law.
13

15 David claims that there was no affirmative agreement to an offer, no
16 acceptance, no meeting of the minds, and no consideration. But "affirmative 17 agreement" is only one means of acceptance. A party can also accept by 18 performance, or by signing an agreement. Restatement (second) of Contracts §
19 50 (1978). An "acceptance" can become a counter offer by modifying the terms
20 of the original offer, even when the original offeree signs the modified offer prior 21 to sending it back. Restatement (second) of Contracts § 59. The MOU was 3
22 pages. APPX I: 86-88. The Decree was 39. APPX I: 32-70 Using merely one's 23
25
26

1 own five senses, it is abundantly clear that the original "offer," had been
2 modified. Therefore, signing the same was in fact "affirmative acceptance" of the 3 counteroffer. Sarah has already discussed the "meeting of the minds" in her
4 Opening brief. As for consideration, as this court noted in Grisham v. Grisham, 5 128 Nev. 679, footnote 3, 289 P.3d 230 (2012), "although Mack [v. Estate of 6 Mack, 125 Nev. 80, 206 P.3d 98 (2009)] in a contract such as this, it is 7 appropriate consideration for an agreement that the same will terminate the 8 marriage. See also, NRS 123.080. In fact, during David's examination of Sarah 9 in his case-in-chief, that was exactly what she testified. APPX VII:1237-1238.

14 It is also important to note that David's allegations, that part of why Sarah's
15 NRCP 52(c) motion was denied to wit: that "invoking summary judgment prior 16 to the court's decision on the merits of the parties' intent would not comply with 17 the law of the case," is a point of clear legal error. As this Court has stated, a 18 District Court cannot make a decision which becomes the "law of the case." Only 19 the appellate court can make decisions which bind the lower courts under that 20 doctrine. Recontrust Co., v. Zhang, 130 Nev. 1, 7-8, 317 P.3d 814, 818-819
21 (2014). Further, David's statement that "there was no trial upon which an NRCP
22 52(c) motion may be properly ruled upon," is egregiously false. There was a trial.

1 APPX V: 864. David rested his case in chief that day. APPX VI:1005.

2 Therefore, the Motion was appropriate.

3
4 D. The SBP Is Community Property

5 Contrary to David's assertions, there is no clear precedent, either
6 from this Court, or the legislature, which establishes in black and white, the 7 status of survivor benefits in a retirement account. While Henson declined to find 8 survivor benefits as part of the pension, unless the decree specifically provides 9 for a survivor beneficiary interest, that is not an unequivocal denial of the 10 community nature of the survivor beneficiary interest - rather it is merely a 11 statement that the term "pension" does not include what the court found to be an 12 optional benefit. Henson v. Henson, 130 Nev.814, 820, 334 P.3d 933, 937.
13 Notably, the Henson case did not consider the possibility of a survivor
14 beneficiary interest being an "omitted asset," if not addressed in the divorce.
15 Henson merely states that the survivor beneficiary interest is not part-and-parcel
16 of the pension itself.

18 In Peterson v. Peterson, Docket No. 77478, 463 P.3d 467 (Order of 19 Reversal and Remand May 22, 2022), while based upon the admission of the 20
22
23
24
25
26

1 community nature of the SBP, this Court did in fact find that the same was
2 therefore an omitted asset.
3

4 That said, Sarah would also note, the holding in Henson is based on the 5 premise that if the employee picks an option other than the unmodified option
6 with no survivor benefit, that the value of the benefit would be charged only to 7 them. That however is inaccurate, and the alternate payee can end up paying one 8 half of that cost, because PERS' default is to take the same off the top of the 9 pension, before calculating the division.
10

13 As for David's argument that there is no contradiction between Henson and 14 later cases, because of the statements in Henson that the only pension benefit 15 which a spouse is entitled to is their community property interest in the 16 unmodified allowance - that analysis disregards the fact that the Court in Henson
17 never stated that there were no other community interests at play. What the Court
18 in Henson found was that the SBP is not a pension benefit. The Court in Henson
19 did not opine on the community nature of SBP, but rather as to whether the same 20 was specifically a pension benefit.
21
23
24
25
26

1 Sarah acknowledges the court's recent unpublished decision in Holguin v.
2 Holguin, but believes the same is in error and was not based on a complete
3
4 analysis of the laws at issue.

5 David would like to contend that there was no agreement that the SBP was 6
7 community property and by doing so, attempts to distinguish Peterson by 8
9 claiming that the case stands for the premise that when there is an agreement to 10 consider an asset community property, it can be treated as an omitted asset.

11 There are many things wrong with this premise. First, it is the Courts and 12
13 the legislature who determine legal conclusions - not parties. Parties cannot 14
15 contract to turn a separate property asset into a community asset - at least not 16 without a separate unmerged agreement - any more than they can make alimony
17
18 non-modifiable without an unmerged agreement (NRS 125.150(8)), rewrite the 19 law surrounding child custody (Rivero v. Rivero, 125 Nev. 410, 429, 216 P.3d
20 213, 226-227 (2009), overruled on other grounds by Romano v. Romano, 138
21 Nev. Ad. Op. 1, 501 P.3d 980 (2022)) or contract around child support law
22
23 (Fernandez v. Fernandez, 126 Nev. 28, 222 P.3d 1031 (2010)).<sup>2</sup> It is for that 24

25
26 <sup>2</sup> Parties can designate terms, which if left unchallenged in Court will be allowed.
Rivero, supra. And generally where a stipulation is entered, the Court does not "double check," the legal terms of art parties assign to different assets or debts, but that does not change their actual character under the law.

1 reason that unmerged agreements exist. However, as the case law also makes
2 clear -- the Court is not required (even if the parties agree) to maintain a
3 settlement agreement as unmerged. In fact, the Court can direct merger without
4 the parties' approval. Day v. Day, 80 Nev. 386, 389-390, 395 P.2d 321, 323
5 (1964). This Court did. The Decree, and the MOU were in front of the Court
6 together as a single document. The Court read the document, which included the 7 preamble David is relying upon, and chose to enter the merged Decree rather 8 than annotating the Decree to be unmerged. This Court, and all counsel involved,
9 are aware of the law. Further, Day is hardly new law. The Court, and counsel
10 who drafted the Decree while standing together, must be presumed to be aware 11 of how to maintain an unmerged Decree and settlement agreement. There were 12 at least three people trained in the law who reviewed this document, and none of 13 them argued that the merger was improper.

14
16 At the point at which the Decree was taken before the Court therefore, the 17 legal terms of art are given their meaning under Nevada Law. Rivero, supra. The 18 Petersons (Peterson, supra.) could not stipulate as to the nature of the SBP in the 19 district court - and the Appellate Court's decision simply acknowledged that there 20 was no issue in controversy with relation to that fact.

1       That said, if this Court were to determine that the Petersons were able to
2 stipulate, once again that case is on point with the facts herein. David did
3 stipulate when he signed the Decree. He made the choice to be bound by a
4 contract he did not read. Therefore, as to whether the SBP was community
5 property in this case, Peterson provides the appropriate answer.
6

8       While Carlson addressed the naming of a beneficiary in a divorce which 9 occurred after retirement, the principle at issue, that the surviving spouse annuity
10 was a benefit to which the wife was entitled after divorce, is relevant.
11

13       Both the district court's and David's rationale on the legislative history of 14 NRS 125.155 is illogical. The argument that the legislature would have added
15 language regarding the community property nature of SBP if they had intended 16 the same is confusing at best. The reality is that the legislature did add that 17 language. The plain reading of the statute, as well as the progress of the bill
18 drafts makes that clear.
19
21

22       With respect to Marshal Willick's testimony and primer, while the Court 23 found his testimony to be "inappropriate," and "did not utilize" the same it is still 24 in the record and can be considered by this court, despite David's success in 25 repetitious filings until he got his way. More importantly. the primer cited by 26

1 Sarah in her Opening brief is persuasive authority which can be considered by 2 this court.
3

4 E. Merger of the Decree.

5 "Generally, failure to raise an argument in the district court
6 proceedings precludes a party from presenting the argument on appeal." Mason
7 v. Cuisenaire, 122 Nev. 43, 48, 128 P.3d 446, 449 (2006). In Mason, the Court
8 noted that the District Court made no findings related to the issues Ms.
9 Cuisenaire had raised on appeal. Id at 48. The necessity of having issues to be 10 addressed on appeal raised before the District Court is to ensure that "the trier of 11 fact ha[s an] opportunity to consider" the argument. Petrilla v. Castillo, Docket
12 No. 67566 (Order of Affirmance, February 12, 2016).
13

14 David never raised the propriety of the merger language in the District
15 Court - therefore the idea that the same was improper is not an appropriate
16 argument to make before this Court. Prior to his Answering Brief, David did not 17 argue the merger language was improper - rather he simply disregarded Day
18 throughout the district court case. But, even if David had made the argument, the 19 same still fails. First, it fails for the same reasons his arguments as to the 20 impropriety of the inclusion of the SBP fail.
21
22
23
24
25
26

1        Additionally, as addressed already, the Court is not bound to accept a
2 parties' agreement as to whether to merge a settlement agreement. The Court's
3 Order merged the MOU and Decree, and that is the reality in which this appeal
4 operates, regardless of David's preferences. David's reliance on Ballin v. Ballin,
5 78 Nev. 224, 371 P.2d 32 (1962), fundamentally fails. Ballin holds that an
6 agreement and a Decree which both direct survival result in a separate 7 agreement. It is important to note - that the Ballin court also stated, "[h]ad the 8 decree before us not directed survival of the agreement, we would be required to 9 determine what effect should be accorded the provision of the approved
10 agreement that modification could occur only by further written agreement." Id.
11 at 231. It was that question which Day answered when it extended and clarified
12 the Ballin holding to specifically state: "We now take a further step and hold that 13 the survival provision of an agreement is ineffective unless the court decree
14 specifically directs survival." 80 Nev. 389. The facts of Day are directly on point
15 -- there the agreement directed survival but the Decree the Court ordered did not.
16 The wife moved to enforce the Decree, and the husband moved to dismiss the 17 proceeding for enforcement, arguing that the wife must move forward under the 18 agreement. The Supreme Court held that the agreement had merged, and perhaps,

1 most importantly stated that "[a]bsent such a clear and direct expression [of 2 survival] in the decree we shall presume that the court rejected the contract
3 provision for survival." Id at 389-390.
4

5 In other words, at the time the Court entered the Decree - inclusive of the 6 merger language, it made a decision to reject the survival language of the MOU
7 and what the parties intended or expected was no longer the question. This Court
8 presumes that the district court makes at least a facile review of the files before
9 it. Vaile v. Eighth Judicial Dist. Ct., 118 Nev. 262, 271-273, 44 P.3d 506, 512-
10 514 (2002). Therefore, this Court, without any evidence in the record to the 11 contrary before it, must assume that the district court rejected the language of 12 non-merger when it entered the Decree.
13
15

17 Whether the parties "negotiated" for the "merger" language is not relevant,
18 and is an issue not properly before the Court. That said, as with the SBP itself,
19 and as Sarah has addressed ad naseum, David's failure to read the Decree also 20 prevents relief.
21
22

23 A judgment of the court must be based on substantial evidence. Devries
24 v. Gallio, 128 Nev. 706, 709, 290 P.3d 260, 263 (2012). See also, Kroger
25
26

1 Properties & Develop. Inc., v. Silver State Title Co., 102 Nev. 112, 114-115, 715
2 P.2d 1328, 1330 (1986). Where there is no evidence the finding cannot stand.
3

4 Further, the Court's finding that David's notice to Sarah that he did not
5 agree to the SBP operated as an effective rescission of the Decree. Assuming,
6 arguendo, that this court finds it is appropriate to apply contract principles, there
7 is no basis in law for the rescission.
8

10 Rescission of a contract, however does not necessarily 11 fail because the party seeking the rescission was 12 unreasonable in relying upon the misrepresentation
13 made by the other party. Even negligence on the part
14 of the party seeking rescission will not bar equitable
15 relief when the misrepresentation was made
16 intentionally by the other party. A party who has 17 made a false representation knowingly and with the 18 intention that the other party be deceived by it should
19 not be allowed to profit from the credulity or negligence
20 of the party upon whom it had its intended effect.

21 Pacific Maxon, Inc., v. Wilson, 96 Nev. 867, 870, 619 P.2d 816, 817-818 (1980), 22 emphasis added, internal citations omitted.
23

24 Sarah's Opening brief addresses the issues of fraud and misrepresentation.
25 Sarah did not commit either as a matter of law.
26

1 Therefore, the Court's findings of an "oral agreement," simply cannot
2 stand. Further, the Court's findings that merger was inappropriate, and that 3 David's signature was voided by his notification that he "did not agree" to the 4 SBP provision are errors of law.
5

7 F. Parol Evidence
8

9 David's contention, that parol evidence is appropriate is nonsensical
10 in light of the law, and directly contradicted by the law he is specifically citing.
11 First, David cites to Kaldi v. Farmers Ins. Exchange, 117 Nev. 273, 283, 21 P.3d
12 16, 22 (2001), for the premise that where an agreement is silent, parol evidence 13 is appropriate to prove a separate oral agreement which is not inconsistent with 14 its terms. David's testimony, regarding a supposedly preceding oral agreement,
15 is not appropriate where the Decree is not silent.
16
18

19 Then David cites to Silver Dollar Club v. Cosgriff Neon Co., 80 Nev. 108,
20 110, 389 P.2d 923, (1964). Silver Dollar discusses subsequent oral agreements.
21
22 Therefore, under this case evidence of negotiations which resulted in the MOU
23 are still not appropriate.
24

25 David attempts to distinguish Yee v. Weiss, 110 Nev. 657, 877 P.2d 510
26 (1194), by implying that because the decree was 39 pages, his failure to read the

1 same was understandable. Answering Brief, page 28. However, what David
2 misses is that in Yee, there was a change in ownership which effectuated a new
3 lease. In other words, not only was the pertinent document one page, but Weiss
4 was signing a new agreement, not one which was based upon a prior agreement.
5 The very fact that the MOU was 3 pages and the Decree was 39 alerted David
6 that there were obviously changes to the MOU and therefore, his failure to 7 review was not reasonable. Further, 39 pages is hardly lengthy in terms of a
8 settlement agreement/Decree of Divorce.
9

10 Sarah has already addressed that no evidence supports the finding of an 11 agreement to hold the decree, nor of a finding that Ms. McConnell was 12 conclusively not informed of Ms. Cooley's intention to submit the decree.
13

14 The use of parol evidence to determine whether there was an oral 15 agreement on the SBP, and the findings related to the decree being improper are 16 in error.
17

18 G. Meeting of the Minds

19 Sarah has already provided substantial proof that David's recitation of 20 facts, such as that the SBP were intentionally omitted because he did not consent
21 to naming Sarah the beneficiary, are not reflected by the evidence itself. Nor are 22

1 David's contentions regarding merger, consideration and negotiations, addressed
2 herein. The reality is that the evidence and law which Sarah has provided in her
3 Opening Brief and herein make it clear that the Decree is the only appropriate 4 agreement.
5

7 H. NRCP 60(b)

8 Sarah has briefed the law surrounding mistake and excusable neglect.
9 David provides no contravening authority, but merely conclusions which Sarah
10 has already shown to be in error.
11

12 David's Answering Brief also cites to NRCP 60(b)(6), however NRCP
13 60(b)(6) is mutually exclusive of sections (1)-(5). Vargas v. J Morales, Inc., 138
14 Nev. Ad. Op. 38, 510 P.3d 777, 782 (2022), Byrd v. Byrd, 137 Nev. Ad. Op. 60,
15 501 P.3d 458, 463 (2021). David has no basis to claim relief under NRCP
16 60(b)(6).

18 Sarah's Opening brief discusses the Court's finding of fraud in great detail.
19 David's factual asserts have been addressed. The evidence David claims exists,
20 simply does not. There is simply insufficient evidence to support the Court's 21 finding of fraud, and the law does not support that finding.
22
24
25
26

1 As far as David's contention that Ms. Cooley and Sarah committed a fraud
2 on the court by presenting a signed Decree to the Court after knowing that David
3 had "objections," the law does not support that conclusion. As David pushes,
4 Sarah stated that signing a new Decree would cost him (there would need to 5 additional consideration) and Ms. Cooley stated that further negotiations would 6 be necessary if the signed Decree was not filed. In other words, the parties had 7 a valid contract; creating a new contract would mean negotiating for further
8 consideration, just as anticipated by this court in Zhang v. Eighth Judicial Dist.
9 Ct., 120 Nev. 1037 1041, 103 P.3d 20 23 (2004), abrogated on other grounds by 10 Buzz Stew, LLC v. City of North Las Vegas, 124 Nev. 225, 181 P.3d 670 (2008).
11

13 There was a signed agreement. It was appropriate for Sarah to provide the 14 same to the Court for entry. A party's "buyer's remorse" is insufficient to rescind 15 a valid agreement and allowing a party to simply rescind an agreement for the 16 same, or based on his own negligence, will open a slew of cases and prevent 17 parties from being able to rely on the benefit of the bargain made. Such a change 18 would violate public policy regarding parties ability to rely upon the same, and 19 the public policy allowing parties to rely on the finality of judgments.
20
22
23
24
25
26

1 David's attempt to turn Sarah's testimony, that she would have expected
2 additional provisions to be pointed out to her, that she did not direct the SBP to
3 be included in the MOU, and that she was not of the opinion that David wanted
4 to give her the SBP into an admission of wrongdoing, is belied by the 5 uncontroverted testimony. Sarah also testified that it was her understanding that 6 the SBP was part-and-parcel of the PERS; although Sarah's belief may not have 7 been correct, it shows that there was no intention to defraud or "surreptitiously"
8 insert a provision. APPX VII:1230-1231. Sarah also testified that her 9 expectation was that her attorney would be the one to point out any changes to 10 her. APPX VII:1220 . Clearly, there was no intention to "dupe" David. If there
11 is any misconduct, it would be malpractice by David's attorney, not misconduct
12 by Sarah or Ms. Cooley.

13 There was no fraud by Sarah, and no fraud or Breach of Candor by Ms.
14 Cooley. There is no basis under the law to set aside the Decree under NRCP
15 60(b).

25 David's attempts to distinguish between a nonjury trial and an 26 evidentiary hearing have no support, nor has he provided any citation for the

1 same. David's distinction appears to be grounded in the differences between a 2 pretrial evidentiary hearing and a jury trial. See Trump v. Eighth Judicial Dist.
3 Ct., 109 Nev. 687, 857 P.2d 740 (1993). In Family Court, the terms "evidentiary
4 hearing," and "trial" are used interchangeably, and operate under the same
5 definition. The reality is that regardless of what term any of the parties or the 6 Court used, all of the orders were clear: the proceeding was to take evidence on 7 1) the intent of the parties; 2) whether the SBP was community property; and 3)
8 how the same should be addressed. That is clearly more than a single issue, but 9 more importantly, David has rested his case-in-chief, and therefore, the Motion
10 was appropriate as David had been fully heard on the issues on which Sarah was 11 requesting judgment under the rule.
12

13 Part of the reason the 52(c) Motion was filed one year later was that there
14 were several attempts to hold the second day of the trial. Further, Sarah was not 15 required to file or orally request her Motion at the exact close of David's 16 evidence. She is able to make that Motion at any time after David rested and until 17 the time limit set forth in the rule, 28 days after service of the written judgment.

1 The original first day of trial occurred in front of Judge Moss. David rested
2 on that day. APPX VI:1005 . Therefore, Sarah had the right, after that time to 3
4 file a NRCP 52(c) Motion. The District Court had the authority to hear that 5
6 Motion. Ultimately, before the trial was concluded, but after the Motion was 7
8 filed, Judge Steel simply vacated and disregarded the first day of trial and 9
10 restarted. Sarah's Motion was appropriate and Judge Steel's decision, that she was 11
12 unable to decide the Motion on its merits and allowing David to "restart" after the 13
14 close of his evidence was in error.

13 CONCLUSION

14
15 Based on the foregoing, Sarah requests that the Court grant reversal 16
17 and remand on the issues appealed and set forth in Sarah's Opening Brief.
