THE FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT OF THE STATE OF NEVADA
IN AND FOR CARSON CITY

MAYRA E. ARREGUIN,

Case No.: 12 DR1 00391 1B

Plaintiff,

Dept. No.: I

vs.

ORDER AFTER APRIL 4, 2022 HEARING

JAVIER RAMIREZ RIVAS,

Defendant.

This Matter comes before the Court following the Nevada Court of Appeal's Order of Reversal and Remand issued on January 24, 2022, after this Court Denied Defendant, JAVIER RAMIREZ RIVAS's Motion to Modify Child Custody, Visitation, and/or Child Support (the "Motion"). Wherefore, this Court, having carefully reviewed the papers and pleadings on file, the Order issued by the Nevada Court of Appeals, and the testimony of the Parties, hereby finds and orders as follows:

1           I.       RELEVANT FACTS AND PROCEDURAL HISTORY

2           This custody dispute is one of many, stemming from the Parties' initial dissolution of 3 marriage proceedings. Eventually, Plaintiff, MAYRA E. ARREGUIN ("Arreguin" or "Mother")
4 was awarded primary physical custody of the Minor Children, EDUARDO JAVIER RAMIREZ
5 ARREGUIN (DOB: 04/13/2006) ("Eduardo") and CARLOS ADRIAN RAMIREZ ARREGUIN
6 (DOB: 10/09/2007) ("Carlos") (collectively referred to as the "Children"). On December 17,
7 2020, Defendant, JAVIER RAMIREZ RIVAS ("Ramirez" or "Father") filed a Motion for Order
8 to Modify Child Custody, Visitation, and/or Child Support (the "Motion"). The Court held a 9 hearing on January 7, 2021, in which Ramirez and Arreguin both appeared in 10 pro se, along with Melanie McCormick, Court Appointed Special Advocate ("CASA"), who had 11 previously been appointed in this case. After the hearing, this Court issued an Order After January
12 7, 2021 Hearing ("Order After Hearing"), denying Ramirez's Motion, concluding that a 13 modification of custody was not in the best interests of the Children.
14

15
16
17           Ramirez immediately filed Notice of Appeal on February 18, 2021. On January 24, 2022,
18 the Nevada Court of Appeals issued its Order of Reversal and Remand, providing that this Court
19 abused its discretion when it failed to clearly address whether there had had been a substantial
20 change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the Children. Specifically, the Nevada Court of 21 Appeals relied on NRS 125C.0035(4) and Davis v. Ewalefo, finding that this Court "failed to 22 include specific findings concerning why the existing custodial arrangement was in the children's 23 best interest, nor did th[is] [C]ourt make any findings tying the circumstances of this case to the
25
26
27
28

1 best interest factors.”<sup>1</sup> Accordingly, on April 4, 2022, this Court held a hearing on remand to
2 revisit the issue, in which Ramirez, Arreguin, Ms. McCormick, and the Children appeared.<sup>2</sup>

4 The Parties were asked to leave the courtroom so that the Judge could speak with the 5 Children in private on the record. The Children clearly indicated their desire to live with their 6 mother and expressed concern as to their father’s behavior. The Children were then excused, and
7 the Parties were invited back into the courtroom. Subsequently, Ms. McCormick provided
8 detailed testimony as to the facts and circumstances surrounding the Children, describing their 9 relationship with Ramirez. Specifically, Ms. McCormick expressed fear and worry for the 10 Children, as they seem sad and anxious by Ramirez’s behavior. Ms. McCormick affirmed her
11 difficulties in working with Ramirez in the past few years. Ultimately, Ms. McCormick concluded
12 that it is in the best interests of the Children for custody to remain as-is. Additionally, Arreguin
13 reiterated that she should remain primary physical custodian, as she is doing her best to provide
14 adequate care for the Children.
15

17 II. DISCUSSION

18 Ramirez argues that he should be entitled to joint physical custody of the Children.
19 Specifically, Ramirez makes several contentions, including: (i) Arreguin refuses to allow and/or 20 facilitate visitation; (ii) Arreguin has allowed both Children to suffer academically; and (iii) the 21 Children actually desire to live with their father, despite assertions made by Arreguin and Ms.
22 McCormick.<sup>3</sup> Conversely, Arreguin maintains that the Children do not want to reside with their
24
25
26

27 <sup>1</sup> See Davis v. Ewalefo, 131 Nev. 445, 352 P.3d 1139 (2015)

28 <sup>2</sup> All Parties concede that the Children should participate in counseling and/or therapeutic services.

<sup>3</sup> Ramirez contends that Ms. McCormick’s assertions are unfounded and lack support. He suggests that Ms. McCormick’s involvement has made the situation worse by speaking with the Children and investigating the circumstances surrounding their well-being.

1 father and both Children are content with their current living arrangements. Moreover, Arreguin
2 suggests that she provides adequate care for the Children and offers strong parenting.

3 In determining whether to modify custody, this Court looks to whether a substantial
4 change in circumstances justifies such a modification and whether modifying custody would be
5 in the best interests of the child. See Romano v. Romano, 138 Nev. Adv. Rep. 1 (2022)
6 (discussing the appropriate legal standard to determine whether a change in custody is justified).
7 In determining whether a parent should be awarded primary physical custody, the court considers
8 factors such as: (i) the wishes of the child; (ii) which parent is more likely to allow for the child
9 to “have frequent associations and a continuing relationship with the noncustodial parent;” (iii)
10 the mental and physical health of each parent; (iv) the nature of the relationship between the 11 child and each parent; and (v) the physical, mental, and emotional development of the child. See 12 NRS 125C.0035 (providing the relevant factors that the court should consider in determining the 13 child’s best interests). “Matters of custody, including visitation, rest in the district court’s sound
14 discretion.” Martin v. Martin, 120 Nev. 342, 344-45, 90 P.3d 981, 983 (2004).
15
16

18 Here, pursuant to Romano, there has not been a substantial change of circumstances so
19 as to justify a modification of custody and doing so would not be in the best interests of the 20 Children.<sup>4</sup> First, this Court considers the wishes of the Children, which are to continue to reside
21 with their mother. Next, while Ramirez maintains that Arreguin fails to facilitate and allow for 22 visitation, the record reflects otherwise. In fact, Arreguin contends that she wants for the 23 Children to visit with their father and allow the Children to maintain a meaningful relationship
26

27 <sup>4</sup> The Court of Appeals suggests that this Court should “tie the circumstances of this case to each of the best interest
28 factors in determining whether a custody modification was warranted.” Now, upon remand, the best interest factors are analyzed, in depth, to determine if the Parties’ circumstances actually led to a substantial change so as to justify an award joint physical custody.

1 with him. Instead, reading between the lines, it appears that sometimes the Children choose not
2 to visit with Ramirez and Arreguin simply refuses to compel the Children to do so. Thus,
3 Arreguin is a parent who is likely to allow for frequent associations and continuing relationships
4 with the noncustodial parent.

6 Further, looking to the nature of the relationships between the Children and each parent,
7 the Children appear to have a stronger bond with their mother, and ultimately seem happier.
8 Conversely, the record reflects that the relationship of the Children and their father has grown
9 weak, sparking anxiety, worry, and concern. Thus, the relationship between the Children and 10 Arreguin suggests that Arreguin should remain primary physical custodian. Also, in considering 11 the mental and physical health of both parents, it appears that Ramirez's mental well-being has 12 suffered, which is demonstrated through his hostility and lack of professionalism in the 13 courtroom. Moreover, Ramirez suggests that he suffered an injury to his head in the course of 14 employment and it has negatively impacted his physical health. Thus, Ramirez's mental and 15 physical health has suffered.

18 In considering the mental, physical, and emotional development of the Children, it
19 appears that circumstances have changed in relation to their mental health, physical well-being,
20 and academic performance. Specifically, the Children's mental health has been negatively
21 impacted over time, and the Parties concede that the Children should continue to participate in 22 counseling and/or therapeutic services. Moreover, the Children are suffering physically, and 23 currently take medication for their high-blood pressure. Finally, the Children are struggling
24 academically.<sup>5</sup> While the Court recognizes that the academic performance, as well as the mental
26
27

---

28 <sup>5</sup> Ms. McCormick mentions that this is not attributed to their quality of work or willingness to do the work. Instead, the Children often fail to submit their work.

1 and emotional well-being of the Children have deteriorated, this fact alone is not dispositive of
2 a substantial change of circumstances. In fact, although Arreguin acts as primary physical
3 custodian, the record suggests that this deterioration is instead attributed, in large part, to the 4 actions and behavior of Ramirez.

6 In sum, while circumstances have changed over time, such changes are not “substantial,”
7 and the circumstances likely have changed in a way that favors Arreguin to retain primary
8 physical custody. Moreover, in considering the best interest factors set forth NRS 125C.0035,
9 the best interests of the Children are properly served by affirming this Court’s denial of 10 Ramirez’s initial Motion and declining to modify custody and/or visitation. Thus, there has not
11 been a substantial change in circumstances so as to justify modification of primary physical 12 custody, and it would be in the best interests of the Children for custody to remain as-is.
13

14 NOW, THEREFORE, GOOD CAUSE APPEARING,
15

16 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that based on the specific findings of fact and conclusions
17 of law set forth herein, Ramirez’s Motion is DENIED and custody, visitation, and/or child
18 support shall remain unchanged.
