Case No. 39864

Appeal from Judgment of Conviction
Eighth Judicial District Court, Clark County

1. Whether the court committed reversible error in failing sua sponte to prohibit the State from introducing evidence of witness intimidation.
2. Whether the court committed reversible error in failing to hold a Petrocelli hearing and giving a limiting instruction sua sponte regarding witness intimidation.
3. Whether the court committed reversible error in limiting hearsay testimony from Lakiesha Reed and Reginald Fobbs.
4. Whether the court committed reversible error in limiting the cross-examination of Pamela Neal.
5. Whether the court committed reversible error in instructing the jury with respect to malice.
6. Whether Defendant's conviction should be reversed for cumulative error.

- 1 7. Whether the Defendant's conviction should be reversed for the State's 2 failure to provide defense counsel with a copy of Gantt's pre-sentence
3 report and plea canvass.

5 STATEMENT OF THE CASE

6 On March 3, 2001, Joseph Williams (aka Doughboy) was shot and killed by 7 several individuals, including (among others) Ashley Bennett (aka Face) (hereinafter 8 the Defendant) and Anthony Gantt. Gantt subsequently entered a guilty plea and 9 agreed to testify against the Defendant.

10 At trial, the Defendant claimed an alibi defense, which the jury rejected, 11 returning a verdict of guilty of First Degree Murder with Use of a Deadly Weapon on 12 February 4, 2002.

13 Thereafter, Defendant filed his first Motion for New Trial on February 11, 2002
14 which was denied on February 21, 2002 and a second Motion for New Trial around 15 June 6, 2002 which was denied on June 18, 2002.

16 Defendant was subsequently sentenced to life without the possibility of parole
17 in the Nevada Department of Corrections plus an equal and consecutive term of life
18 without the possibility of parole for the use of a deadly weapon on June 18, 2002.

19 On June 20, 2002, a Judgment of Conviction (Jury Trial) was filed. This appeal 20 followed.

21 STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

22 At trial, Anthony Gantt testified that the Defendant was one of several persons 23 (including himself) who shot and killed Doughboy (aka Joseph Williams), who was 24 unarmed at the time. (Appellant's Appendix, hereinafter AA, 546-551).

25 The deputy medical examiner, Dr. Gary Telgenhoff, testified that the victim sustained 26 14 gunshot entrance wounds (AA, 699). Another eyewitness, Pamela Neal, also 27 testified that the Defendant shot the victim. (AA, 237). At trial, the defense called 28 several witnesses to support an alibi defense, all of whom had a pre-existing

1 relationship with the Defendant. The Defendant chose not to testify. During closing
2 argument, defense counsel attacked the credibility of witness Gantt and Neal (AA, 3 962-974) stating quite bluntly, "We have two conflicted and inconsistent liars with 4 motives to lie." (AA, 974).

5 The jury had ample opportunity to evaluate the credibility of the various 6 witnesses. Based on their guilty verdict, it's apparent the jury did not share the same
7 opinion of witness Gantt and Neal asserted by defense counsel.

8 9 ARGUMENT

10 I

11 THE COURT DID NOT COMMIT 12 REVERSIBLE ERROR IN FAILING SUA 13 SPONTE TO PROHIBIT THE STATE FROM INTRODUCING EVIDENCE OF WITNESS INTIMIDATION

14 First, contrary to Defendant's contention (Opening Brief, page 18, line 13)
15 there is no indication in the record that the State made "repeated and unfounded 16 references to witness intimidation and threats." Factually, the matter was referenced 17 briefly when (to explain the witness' earlier refusal in front of the jury to testify (AA, 18 528) and his prior inconsistent statements) the witness was asked on redirect
19 examination (AA, 634):

20 Q: "And in fact, Mr. Gantt, wasn't there a point at which this defendant 21 basically threatened you with your own family?"

22 A: Yes.

23 Q: Didn't he basically tell you, I'm going to bring your family in here to watch 24 you testify?"

25 Thereafter, a defense objection as to "leading" was overruled and the witness 26 answered "Yes," then further testified that his father was an "original gangster" in the 27 Gerson Park Kings gang to which the Defendant belonged.

1 As this Court noted in Rodriguez v. State, 117 Nev. 800, 32 P.3d 773, 780
2 (2001), it is the Defendant's "responsibility to provide this court with cogent
3 argument supported by legal authority and reference to relevant parts of the record."
4 [emphasis added].

5 Second, there is no indication in the record that Defendant made a timely 6 objection to the introduction of this witness intimidation evidence on the proper 7 grounds (the "leading" objection was overruled and not the correct objection to 8 preclude intimidation evidence) (AA, 634-635). In a hearing outside the presence of 9 the jury (regarding the State's request to expel spectators), after witness Gantt initially 10 indicated that he didn't wish to testify, the prosecutor mentioned that not only was a 11 codefendant in the audience, and one of the witnesses' cousins, but that there were 12 letters from the Defendant [emphasis added] conveying threats to the witness. (AA, 13 530).

14 "The general rule is that failure to object to asserted errors at trial will bar 15 review of an issue on appeal." McCullough v. State, 99 Nev. 72, 74, 657 P.2d 1157, 16 1158 (1983); See also State v. Taylor, 114 Nev. 1071, 1077, 968 P.2d 315, 320
17 (1998); Emmons v. State, 107 Nev. 53, 61, 807 P.2d 718, 723 (1991). "When an 18 appellant fails to specifically object to questions asked or testimony elicited during 19 trial, but complains about them, in retrospect upon appeal, we [this Court] do not 20 consider his contention a proper assignment of error." Greene v. State, 113 Nev. 157, 21 175-176, 931 P.2d 54, 65-66 (1997) (reversed on other grounds) (quoting Wilson v.
22 State, 86 Nev. 320, 326, 468 P.2d 346, 350 (1970).

23 Third, as this Court stated in Cosey v. State, 93 Nev. 352, 355, 566 P.2d 83, 24 85 (1977), "Appellant contends the court erred by permitting the State to ask one of its 25 witnesses whether she had received any threats regarding her testimony. This 26 contention arose after her credibility was placed in issue because of a prior 27 inconsistent statement she had given to law enforcement officials. Although she 28 testified otherwise, she told the court outside the presence of the jury that threats had

1 indeed been made. 'The credibility of a witness may be attacked by any party, 2 including the party calling him.' NRS 50.075. Here, the prosecutor's examination was 3 a proper inquiry into matters relevant to the witness's credibility and reasons why she 4 was recanting her prior statement. See Thompson v. State, 541 P.2d 1328
5 (Okl.Cr.App.1975); People v. Pruitt, 155 Cal.App.2d 585, 318 P.2d 552 (1957); Luker
6 v. State, 23 Ala.App. 379, 125 So. 788 (1930)." Cosey is almost directly on point 7 with the facts of this case.

8 The credibility of a witness who testifies in an action is always relevant.
9 Accordingly, questions directed toward revealing any motive, interest or bias the 10 witness may harbor toward a party are equally relevant. Davis v. Alaska, 415 U.S.
11 308, 94 S.Ct. 1105 (1974); Ransey v. State, 100 Nev. 277, 680 P.2d 596 (1984);
12 Collman v. State, 116 Nev. 687, 709, 7 P.3d 426, 440 (2000).

13 The relevancy of witness intimidation evidence was explored in depth in a 14 California case, People v. Olguin, 31 Cal.App.4th 1355 (1995) and the rationale
15 remains equally persuasive for witnesses here in Nevada. In Olguin, the court stated:

16 "Evidence a witness is afraid to testify is relevant to the credibility of that 17 witness and is therefore admissible (citations omitted). Testimony a witness is 18 fearful of retaliation similarly relates to that witness's credibility and is also 19 admissible (citations omitted). It is not necessary to show threats against the witness were made by the defendant personally, or the witness's fear of retaliation is directly linked to the defendant for the evidence to be admissible (citations omitted)..."

20 A witness who testifies despite fear of recrimination of any kind by anyone is more credible because of his or her personal stake in the testimony.
21 Just as the fact a witness expects to receive something in exchange for 22 testimony may be considered in evaluating his or her credibility (citations 23 omitted), the fact a witness is testifying despite fear of recrimination is 24 important to fully evaluating his or her credibility. For this purpose, it matters
25 not the source of the threat. It could come from a friend of the defendant, or it 26 could come from a stranger who merely approves of the defendant's conduct or disapproves of the victim. It could come from a person who perceives a social or political agenda to have been advanced by the defendant's actions. It could come from a member of the witness' profession, religion, or subculture, who disapproves of the witness' involvement for some reason. It could come from a zealot of any stripe, large groups of whom seem ready to rally to virtually any cause these days.

27 Regardless of its source, the jury would be entitled to evaluate the 28 witness' testimony knowing it was given under such circumstances. And they would be entitled to know not just that the witness was afraid, but also, within limits...those facts which would enable them to evaluate the witness' fear. A

1 witness who expresses fear of testifying because he is afraid of being shunned
2 by a rich uncle who disapproves of lawyers would have to be evaluated quite 3 differently than one whose fear of testifying is based upon bullets having been 4 fired into her house the night before the trial.”

5 In a case such as this, where witness credibility was contested, evidence that the 6 15 year old witness (AA, 945) is presently fearful, or was previously fearful and 7 consequently gave inconsistent statements, is relevant and probative, particularly if 8 the threats come directly from the Defendant. See AA, 634-635. See also United 9 State v. Lane, 692 F.2d 900 (7th Cir, 1983) [gang membership admissible to explain 10 prior inconsistent statements].

11 Fourth, the case cited by Defendant, Lay v. State, 110 Nev. 1189, 886 P.2d 448 12 (1994) actually supports the proposition that this witness intimidation evidence was 13 admissible since it constituted “substantial credible evidence that the defendant was 14 the source of the intimidation.” Witness Gantt expressly indicated that the Defendant 15 was the source of the threats. (AA, 651). The failure of either side to prove this 16 collateral matter by a handwriting analysis of the letter is inconsequential.

17 Fifth, Defendant miscites the record. While his contention that “there was 18 absolutely no evidence of any kind of threats to Mr. Gantt’s family” (Opening Brief, 19 page 21, lines 21-22) is correct, it misses the point. The evidence was that the threats 20 came from the witness’ family, not to them. (AA, 646-647). The witness’ father and 21 uncle were members of the Gerson gang (AA, 554) which was the same gang the 22 Defendant belonged to (AA, 541). The witness’ father and uncle did not want him to 23 take the deal and testify (AA, 646) and the witness actually wrote to the Defendant 24 because he was afraid the Defendant would tell his (Gantt’s) uncle (AA, 647) and his 25 initial refusal to testify occurred when his cousins and others entered the courtroom
26 (on redirect, AA, 646). More importantly, Defendant ignores the record the district 27 court made about intimidating gestures from spectators in the courtroom. (AA, 675-28 677)

In Evans v. State, 117 Nev. 609, 28 P.3d 498 (2001), this Court found that the testimony of a witness that she was reluctant to cooperate with the prosecutors

1 because the defendant had threatened her twice and she feared him was substantial
2 credible evidence, directly relevant to the question of the defendant's guilt and NRS
3 48.045(2) was inapposite. This Court also held that the testimony of four other 4 witnesses regarding their fears was irrelevant because the state offered no authority, 5 no reference to the record, and no analysis to support the contention that their 6 testimony was relevant to explain subsequent conduct and inconsistencies in their 7 testimony. Those shortcomings are not present in this case.

8 Any witness who fears, regardless of whether those fears are real or imagined, or 9 imminent or not, and regardless of the source, that there may be repercussions from 10 their testimony, either before or after they testify, has a motive, interest and bias in the 11 outcome of the proceeding. Their credibility may or may not be enhanced by their 12 fears. In any event, the trier of fact is entitled to hear such fear evidence in order to 13 evaluate the witness's credibility. The jury did so in this case and soundly rejected the 14 Defendant's alibi defense.

15 Sixth, the cases cited by Defendant (Opening Brief, page 18) aren't relevant to 16 this case because in those cases (unlike the facts of this case) there was no evidence of 17 witness intimidation or threats. United States v. Rios, 611 F.2d 1335 (10th Cir.
18 1979)[no evidence whatsoever]; United States v. Peak, 498 F.2d 1337 (6th Cir.
19 1974)[threats "totally unsupported in the record"]; United States v. Hayward, 420
20 F.2d 142 (B.C. Cir. 1969)[“not a scintilla of evidence”]. Moreover, in United States
21 v. Muscarella, 585 F.2d 242 (7th Cir. 1978), the court affirmed the conviction

22 Seventh, Defendant neglects to mention that the issue of witness intimidation
23 arose during the State's redirect examination after the Defendant "opened the door"
24 to this issue on cross-examination. (AA, 675-677) The Court noted on the record that 25 Defendant had opened the door and that a witness in the courtroom was making 26 intimidating gestures while Gantt testified (AA, 675-677).

THE COURT DID NOT COMMIT
REVERSIBLE ERROR IN FAILING TO HOLD A PETROCELLI HEARING AND FAILING TO GIVE A LIMITING INSTRUCTION SUA
SPONTE REGARDING WITNESS
INTIMIDATION

Defendant claims that the trial court committed reversible error for failing to hold a pretrial hearing on the issue of witness intimidation, citing Tinch v. State, 113 Nev. 1170, 946 P.2d 1061 (1997) and Petrocelli v. State, 101 Nev. 46, 692 P.2d 503 (1985).

First, those cases do not stand for that proposition. The passing reference to witness intimidation made during the State's redirect examination after the defense opened the door was relevant to the credibility of witness Gantt, not as "proof of motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, or absence of mistake or accident" pursuant to NRS 48.045(2) of anything the Defendant did. There was absolutely no requirement to hold a Petrocelli hearing. Furthermore, the matter of witness intimidation and possible exclusion of spectators was in fact discussed outside the presence of the jury (AA, 528-534).

Second, there is nothing in the record to indicate that defense counsel requested any limiting instruction on this issue at any time. Defendant's failure to request such an instruction should bar appellate review.

Third, Defendant fails to cite any authority for the proposition that the court was required sua sponte to give a limiting instruction with respect to witness intimidation evidence. "Contentions unsupported by specific argument or authority should be summarily rejected on appeal." Mazzan v. Warden, 116 Nev. 48, 993 P.2d 25 (2000). Defendant's reliance on Tavares v. State, 117 Nev. 725, 30 P.2d 1128 (2001) is inapposite since there was no "bad act" evidence introduced to prove motive or anything else the Defendant did. The intimidation evidence was introduced in response to attacks on the credibility of witness Gantt.

III

THE TRIAL COURT DID NOT COMMIT
REVERSIBLE ERROR IN LIMITING
HEARSAY TESTIMONY FROM LAKIESHA
REED AND REGINALD FOBBS

Defendant's contention that defense witnesses Reed (AA, 904-906) and Fobbs (AA, 900-904) were limited in their testimony is not supported by any clear citation to the record, although there is passing reference to a sidebar conference (AA, 923). In any event, to the extent that their proposed testimony may have been discussed off the record, the district court clearly indicated that Reed's testimony was "double, possibly triple hearsay." (AA, 923). The matter was argued outside the presence of the jury after Reed and Fobbs testified (AA, 923-924) during which the Defendant himself spoke up and attempted to argue the court's ruling with the Judge (AA, 924-927).

The trial court properly excluded as hearsay any testimony from witness Reed regarding a phone conversation she had with the nontestifying Defendant concerning witness Neal. (AA, 905-906).

In discussing Reed's proposed testimony, something about a conversation Reed overheard between the Defendant and witness Neal regarding statements made by some individual called Tyro that the Defendant was involved in the death of Eric Bass (AA, 923-924), the court stated quite clearly on the record, "I'm not going to let that in, again as being hearsay, number one. Number two, under 48.035 the Court finds it is not relevant as to these proceedings." (AA, 924). The Court also had concerns "as to the truthfulness of this." (AA, 924).

The trial court also properly excluded as unreliable hearsay possible testimony from witness Fobbs, an incarcerated Gerson gang member (AA, 233, 901) about an alleged conversation his sister (witness Neal) may have overheard on some occasion from some unnamed homicide detectives about some matter that might have been relevant. (AA, 903).

1 The trial court did not abuse its discretion in keeping the trial on track and 2 prohibiting the introduction of evidence that was both irrelevant and based on multiple 3 layers of hearsay.

4 IV

5 THE TRIAL COURT DID NOT COMMIT
6 REVERSIBLE ERROR IN LIMITING THE
7 CROSS-EXAMINATION OF PAMELA NEAL

8 Defendant contends that he should have been able to cross-examine witness 9 Neal about the specifics of a prior bad act pursuant to Moore v. State, 96 Nev. 220, 10 607 P.2d 105 (1980).

11 In a hearing held outside the presence of the jury prior to the testimony of 12 witness Neal (AA, 169-174), defense counsel indicated that they wanted to get into 13 certain specifics of a case (which was previously dismissed) against witness Neal to 14 “show Ms. Neal’s violence” and that “if she or her family was threatened, she was 15 going to do what she had to do.” (AA, 171, lines 12-15). The Court properly 16 determined that some specifics might be admissible to show witness bias or credibility
17 but that “Again, the specific facts are not appropriate.” (AA, 172).

18 In a second hearing outside the presence of the jury after the direct examination
19 of witness Neal (AA, 243-250), defense counsel again argued to get into the specifics 20 of the dismissed case because Neal had testified that her case had been dismissed for 21 lack of evidence and defense counsel felt otherwise. (AA, 244). The State responded 22 at length that the case against Neal could not be proven (AA, 244-246 and 249-250)
23 and the Court ultimately stated that “The Court is not going to deviate from its prior 24 position in terms of going into the specific allegations, (a) because it’s not appropriate
25 and (b), because it’s a waste of time. This trial is not about that. However, as I 26 indicated previously, her credibility or bias is at issue and counsel, because of the 27 statement as to dismissal, can indicate what Mr. Koot told the Court, or more 28 specifically, that it was being dismissed and immunity was being offered, but again, we’re not gonna get into the specifics as to what happened, except what she was

1 originally charged with. And that is what the transcript [of the dismissal of her case]
2 says.” (AA, 248).

3 Defendant wanted to get into the specifics of the previously dismissed case in 4 order to portray the witness as a violent hot-head who would do anything to protect 5 her family. The specifics of the dismissed case had nothing to do with her credibility
6 or bias against the Defendant and the district court properly exercised its discretion in 7 controlling cross-examination.

8 As this Court has recognized, “The scope and extent of cross-examination is 9 largely within the sound discretion of the trial court and in the absence of abuse of 10 discretion a reversal will not be granted.” Azbill v. State, 88 Nev. 240, 246, 495 P.2d 11 1064, 1068 (1972) citing Smith v. Illinois, 390 U.S. 129, 88 S.Ct. 748 (1968). “The 12 Confrontation Clause guarantees an opportunity for effective cross-examination, not 13 cross-examination that is effective in whatever way, and to whatever extent, the 14 defense might wish.” Delaware v. Fensterer, 474 U.S. 15, 20, 106 S.Ct. 292, 294
15 (1985). Even when the bias of a witness is at issue, trial judges retain the right to 16 restrict “inquiries which are repetitive, irrelevant, vague, speculative, or designed 17 merely to harass, annoy or humiliate the witness.” Bushnell v. State, 95 Nev. 570, 18 573, 599 P.2d 1038, 1040 (1979); Delaware v. Van Arsdall, 475 U.S. 673, 679, 106
19 S.Ct. 1431, 1435 (1986). “Trial judges ‘retain wide latitude’ to restrict such inquiry 20 ‘based on concerns about, among other things, harassment, prejudice, confusion of the 21 issues, the witness’ safety, or interrogation that is repetitive or only marginally 22 relevant.” Bridges v. State, 116 Nev. 752, 761, 6 P.3d 1000, 1007 (2000); Leonard v.
23 State, 117 Nev. 53, 17 P.3d 397, 409 (2001).

24 The trial court properly exercised its discretion in controlling the trial 25 proceedings and preventing a time-consuming, confusing, irrelevant and speculative 26 cross-examination of witness Neal on specifics of a dismissed case that had no
27 bearing on her credibility or bias towards the Defendant.

28

THE TRIAL COURT DID NOT COMMIT
REVERSIBLE ERROR WHEN INSTRUCTING
THE JURY REGARDING MALICE

First, there is no indication in the record that defense counsel made a timely objection to Jury Instructions #8 and #9, the instructions now alleged to have been erroneously given. The Court specifically asked: "Defense is likewise familiar with the proposed instructions. Any instructions that defense wishes to object to at this time?" Ms. Simpkins: No, Your Honor." (AA, 938).

It is axiomatic that failure to object in a timely fashion precludes appellate consideration. Cutler v. State, 93 Nev. 329, 337, 566 P.2d 809, 814 (1977); McCall v. State, 91 Nev. 556, 557 540 P.2d 95 (1975); Clark v. State, 89 Nev. 392, 393, 513 P.2d 1224 (1973); State v. Foquette, 67 Nev. 505, 524, 221 P.2d 404 (1950). This Court has stated that "when a defendant's counsel has not only failed at trial to object to jury instructions, but has agreed to them, the failure to object or to request special instructions precludes appellate consideration... The only exception we have recognized to this otherwise absolute rule is one for plain error." Bonacci v. State, 96 Nev. 894, 899, 620 P.2d 1244, 1247 (1980). Plain error has been defined as that which is "so unmistakable that it reveals itself by a casual inspection of the record." Patterson v. State, 111 Nev. 1525, 907 P.2d 984, 987 (1995), citing Torres v. Farmers Insurance Exchange, 106 Nev. 340, 345 n. 2, 793 P. 2d 839, 842 (1990), quoting Williams v. Zellhoefer, 89 Nev. 579, 580, 517 P.2d 789, 789 (1973). In Manley v. State, 115 Nev. 114, 125, 979 P.2d 703, 709 (1999), the Court held that if the defense failed to propose a different jury instruction when the court settled jury instructions "then no patently prejudicial error occurred which warrants consideration of this issue on appeal." In McKenna v. State, 114 Nev. 1044 at 1054, 968 P.2d 739, 746 (1998), the Nevada Supreme Court held that the failure to object to a jury instruction precludes appellate review, unless the error is patently prejudicial (citing Flanagan v. State, 112 Nev. 1409, 1423, 930 P.2d 691, 700 (1996)).

1 Second, NRS 200.020(2) states that "Malice shall be implied when no
2 considerable provocation appears, or when all of the circumstances of the killing show
3 an abandoned and malignant heart." In Cutler v. State, 93 Nev. 329, 336, 566 P.2d 4 809, 813 (1977), this Court noted that it is appropriate to give a statute as an 5 instruction to the jury in a criminal case.

6 Third, as in Hernandez v. State, 118 Nev. Adv. Op. No. 55, 50 P.3d 1100, 1111
7 (2002), Defendant failed to preserve the issue for appeal or demonstrate plain error.
8 In Hernandez, this Court stated, "as to whether implied malice is defined in 9 impermissibly vague, archaic terms, this court considered and rejected this argument
10 last year." citing Leonard v. State, 117 Nev. 53, 78-79, 17 P.3d 397, 413 (2001).

11 Fourth, Defendant's contention (Opening Brief, page 29, line 24) that the 12 "abandoned or malignant heart" language is not used by any other state and violates 13 due process is factually and recklessly incorrect even if couched in equivocal terms.
14 A cursory and non-exhaustive search reveals that the "abandoned and malignant 15 heart" language is used in both statutes and cases from several states to include
16 California, Georgia, Wyoming, Idaho, Michigan, Utah, Arizona and Illinois.¹

18 ¹ Section 187 of the California Penal Code provides in pertinent part: "(a) Murder is the unlawful 19 killing of a human being with malice aforethought." and Section 188 provides: "Such malice may be 20 express or implied. It is express when there is manifested a deliberate intention unlawfully to take 21 away the life of a fellow creature. It is implied, when no considerable provocation appears, or when 22 the circumstances attending the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart." See also People
23 v. Martinez, 31 Cal.4th 673, 684, 74 P.3d 748, 755, 3 Cal.Rptr.3d 648, 657 (2003); Keats v. State, 24 64 P.3d 104, 110 (Wyo.,2003)["malice may be implied or inferred from any deliberate and cruel act
25 against another, or his property, which shows an abandoned and malignant heart."]; Johnson v.
26 State, 570 S.E.2d 309, 312 (Ga.,2002)["After charging the jury on express malice, the trial court 27 charged that 'malice may, but need not, be implied where no considerable provocation appears and 28 all the circumstances of the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart.'"]; Hill v. State, 555
S.E.2d 696, 700 (Ga.,2001)["Under OCGA § 16-5-1(b), express malice is the deliberate intention unlawfully to take a life, manifested by external circumstances, and malice may be implied where no considerable provocation appears and where the circumstances of the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart."]; State v. Luke, 1 P.3d 795, 802 (Idaho,2000)["There is express intent which contains a manifest intention, and implied intent which entails killing with an abandoned or malignant heart." citing State v. Buckley, 953 P.2d 604, 605 (1998)]; People v. Goecke, 579 N.W.2d 868, 880 (Mich.,1998)["Another way to conceptualize this mental state is to recognize that because malice is implied when the circumstances attending the killing demonstrate an abandoned and malignant heart,"]; Fenstermaker v. State, 912 P.2d 653 (Idaho App.,1995)["Crime of second degree murder requires intent to kill or mental state of having an abandoned and malignant heart."];
State v. Fontana, 680 P.2d 1042, 1045 (Utah,1984)[This interpretation is consistent with our own

1 Finally, as this Court noted in Scott v. State, 92 Nev. 552, 556, 554 P.2d 735, 2 738 (1976), when the jury returns a verdict of murder in the first degree, they must 3 have found beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant murdered deliberately,
4 willfully and with premeditation. Since the jury found express malice, implied malice
5 played no part in the Defendant's conviction.

6 The instructions at issue are not unconstitutionally vague and ambiguous and 7 are not patently prejudicial.

8 VI

9 THE DEFENDANT'S CONVICTION SHOULD 10 NOT BE REVERSED FOR CUMULATIVE 11 ERROR

12 This Court has held that under the doctrine of cumulative error, "although 13 individual errors may be harmless, the cumulative effect of multiple errors may 14 deprive a defendant of the constitutional right to a fair trial." Pertgen v. State, 110
15 Nev. 554, 566, 875 P.2d 361, 368 (1994); see also Big Pond v. State, 101 Nev. 1, 3, 16 692 P.2d 1288, 1289 (1985). The relevant factors to consider in determining "whether 17 error is harmless or prejudicial include whether 'the issue of innocence or guilt is 18 close, the quantity and character of the error, and the gravity of the crime charged.'" Big Pond, 101 Nev. at 3, 692 P.2d at 1289. The doctrine of cumulative error "requires 19 that numerous errors be committed, not merely alleged." People v. Rivers, 727 P.2d 20 394, 401 (Colo. App. 1986); see also, People v. Jones, 665 P.2d 127, 131 (Colo. App.
21 1982). Evidence against the defendant must therefore be "substantial enough to 22 convict him in an otherwise fair trial and it must be said without reservation that the 23

25
26 case law, which has referred to second degree murder as being indicated "when the circumstances 27 attending the killing show an abandoned and malignant heart." citing State v. Wardle, 564 P.2d 764, 28 765 n. 1 (Utah, 1977)]; State v. Lacquey, 571 P.2d 1027 (Ariz. 1977) ["Malice is implied when no considerable provocation appears or when circumstances attending killing show abandoned and malignant heart. A.R.S. § 13-451[B]."]; People v. Massey, 364 N.E.2d 933, 938 (Ill. App. 1977) [ Malice may be implied when all the circumstances surrounding a homicide show an abandoned and malignant heart on the part of the assailant. People v. Jones, 186 N.E.2d 246. (Ill. 1962)"]

1 verdict would have been the same in the absence of error." Witherow v. State, 104
2 Nev. 721, 724, 765 P.2d 1153, 1156 (1988).

3 Insofar as Defendant has failed to establish any error which would entitle him
4 to relief, there is no cumulative error. Chief Justice E.M. Gunderson observed in his 5 dissenting opinion in LaPena v. State, 92 Nev. 1, 14, 544 P.2d 1187 (1976), "nothing
6 plus nothing plus nothing is nothing." In the instant case Defendant's claims of error
7 amount to "nothing."

8 Furthermore, it is important to note that a defendant is not entitled to a perfect
9 trial, but only a fair trial . . ." Ennis v. State, 91 Nev. 530, 533, 539 P.2d 114 (1975), 10 citing Michigan v. Tucker, 417 U.S. 433, 94 S.Ct. 2357 (1974). Here, Defendant
11 received a fair trial.

12 VII

13 THE STATE DID NOT 14 WITHHOLD DISCOVERY

15 Defendant's contention that the State withheld impeachment evidence in 16 violation of Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83, 83 S.Ct. 1194 (1963) is without merit.
17 More specifically, Defendant contends that the pre-sentence report and plea canvass 18 on witness (and former codefendant) Gantt were not provided and consequently, 19 Defendant is entitled to a new trial.

20 First, NRS 176.156(5) prohibits the State from providing a copy of a 21 presentence report on a witness to Defendant's counsel. This statute expressly states 22 "Except for the disclosures required by subsections 1 to 4, inclusive, a report of a 23 presentence investigation or general investigation and the sources of information for 24 such a report are confidential and must not be made a part of any public record."
25 Since the subsections are not pertinent to Defendant's case, the State would have been 26 violating the law if it had provided the Defendant with a copy of the presentence 27 investigation in dispute.

28 Second, as the United States Supreme Court stated in Strickler v. Greene, 527
U.S. 263, 281-282, 119 S.Ct. 1936, 1948 (1999), "There are three components of a

1 true Brady violation: The evidence at issue must be favorable to the accused, either 2 because it is exculpatory, or because it is impeaching; that evidence must have been 3 suppressed by the State, either willfully or inadvertently; and prejudice must have 4 ensued." In this case, there is absolutely no evidence whatsoever in the record that the 5 "evidence" (Gantt's PSI and plea canvass) was favorable to the Defendant, no
6 evidence whatsoever that it was suppressed by the State and no evidence that 7 Defendant was prejudiced as a result. Defendant completely fails to satisfy any of the 8 three requirements articulated in Strickler, supra.

9 Third, there is no evidence that Defendant requested these materials or made 10 any independent effort to obtain them from the State or the court. Nor is there any 11 evidence that the State even possessed a transcribed plea canvass. As this Court noted 12 in Steese v. State, 114 Nev. 479, 960 P.2d 321 (1998), "Brady does not require the 13 State to disclose evidence which is available to the defendant from other sources, 14 including diligent investigation by the defense." Defendant had the ability to obtain 15 these materials directly from the court or pursuant to court order and didn't need to 16 rely solely on the prosecution. More recently, in Evans v. State, 117 Nev. 609, 28
17 P.3d 498, 511 (2001) this Court rejected the proposition that the State has any 18 affirmative duty to compile information or pursue an investigative lead simply 19 because it could conceivably develop evidence helpful to the defense.

20 Fourth, there is no evidence that Defendant made a timely objection to the lack 21 of these materials which would clearly have been known to defense counsel before
22 trial. Failure to make a timely objection or a valid claim of newly discovered 23 evidence precludes appellate review. Defendant's bare claim, based solely on 24 speculation, that exculpatory or impeaching evidence was contained in these 25 documents, is insufficient to sustain his claim.

26 NRS 175.282 provides a mechanism for the Court to review, excise if 27 appropriate, then make available to the jury any agreement to testify. That obligation 28 was satisfied when the State provided a copy of the plea memo and agreement to

1 testify to defense counsel (AA, 458). Furthermore, the State had the plea agreement
2 admitted as Exhibit 127 (AA, 933).

3 The Defendant's failure to obtain witness Gantt's presentence investigation
4 report and a copy of Gantt's plea canvass is not attributable to the State and 5 consequently does not constitute Brady error.
