Patricia Miller Has anyone thought of the obvious? Relocate Carl Lackey Has anyone looked into the four (4) orphaned cubs born Jan. 1 and trying to grow up without the direction of their mother. One of the fox things a baby bear learns is "climb a tree". They don't have that luxury. And, what about the beautiful teenager that was killed in Sand Harbor two weeks ago. He didn't even have one ear tag but NDOI shot him anyway. So, so sad.

John Bryden Lackey and his ndow will continue to set traps when these people who fear bears continue to call them. So perhaps it would be better to focus on hunting and east side homeowners education. So many think our black bears are dangerous like grizzlies. That is not the case with Tahoe black bears.

Like Reply June 21 at 10:26pm

Tom Panek I don't know how you can relocate bears. They have such a wide range and an instinct to their territory that it wouldn't surprise me if they showed up again a few days or weeks later.

End the bear bloodshed once and for all! Same for all of the wildlife that are being used as pawns by state politicians everywhere in the country!

- Bridgit Brackett This is so not needed! These bears do not want to hurt anyone. I live here had a bear go into my garage (thru the door, ripped a panel right off) to eat stuff out of my freezer (he-lee cream) didn't touch the meat! Lol. And all I did was make sure and feed him for it. So when it came back what I did was bark really loud and it took off. I only had to do that twice and now it avoids my house. We live in their territory not the other way around.

Gilmora Rogers in my conversations with NDOOW, they admit that California bears are included in the Nevada population numbers, as bears sometimes cover large distances. So, the population of Nevada bears is really less than NDOOW estimates. Both Tahoe bears, and California bears, are being trapped and relocated into the hunt zones, because everything but the Tahoe Basin is a hunt zone. The Nevada Trophy Bear Hunt must stop. Governor Sandoval is responsible for this hunt. Please write him!

Like Reply 5 August 24 at 6:14pm

Even scientists take selfies with wild animals. Here's why they shouldn't.

Why do so many people take safety risks or abuse wild animals for the sake of a photo with them? In one researcher's view, scientists may encourage this trend by...

some food. Hurt no one, ran away, what is wrong with people, they move into wilder's backyard and then kill them off. Who the hell do us humans think we are... so sick of "just kill it" mentality... Anyone starting a petition, please tag me with it.

Lake Tahoe Wall of Shame Ginger, we need to refer to the Bears as BEAUTIFUL but not "cute".

Cloud tends to "de-emphasize" the fact that they are indeed "wild" animals.
A photographer I know had a "vision" ask if she could "pet the bears"... True

Mary Baker Kelley These people who get wildlife in trouble SHOULD have charges brought against them. There are laws that people are supposed to follow when being in wildlife habitat. There needs to be more people willing to file charges and work with DA with the bills to enforce the laws. Just my humble opinion. Animals are only doing what comes natural and eating and feeding babies is natural.

Geoff McGarry It looks like Carl Lindsey's solution to the bear problem in Incline is to hit all the bears thus eliminating the problem. What kind of thinking is this. Black bears have never killed anyone in Lake Tahoe that I am aware of. Some camps have been hit. See more.

May 20, 2013 at 4:38pm Like 0 1

Melanie Olin Please enlist the help of daily persons around there, for locations. No true Tahoe resident approves of this, taking the amazing bears, torturing babies. Type this to end, NON VIOLENCE on their end also, we abide by the rules of the land. It's their turn to abide also!! Society is judged on the treatment of the smallest of its creatures. Pray this man has an epiphany.
