ORDER DIRECTING SUPPLEMENTAL BRIEFING

This appeal from a district court order denying a contest concerning the November 2020 presidential election in Nevada was filed yesterday, hours before today's expiration of the safe harbor provision provided by 3 U.S.C. § 5. Appellants have filed a motion seeking to expedite our review, and respondents have filed a motion for summary affirmance, seeking a decision by today. Timely responses to both motions have been filed, with appellants' response outlining the issues they would like to raise on appeal.

Although the motions and responses were not accompanied by inclusive appendices, we have before us the district court's comprehensive 34-page order, and this court is familiar with the detailed findings and conclusions thoroughly set forth therein. The district court record on appeal has also been filed. Therefore, in light of the urgency this appeal presents, appellants shall have until 7 p.m. tonight, December 8, 2020, to file and serve a supplemental brief identifying the specific portions of the district court order with which they disagree, by page and paragraph number, and accompanied by citations to the record in support of their arguments. NRAP 2. Respondents may file, also by 7 p.m. tonight, a supplemental brief addressing any issues they believe appellants will raise in their brief.
